MELLON SAYS HIGH SURTAX DOES HARM TO COUNTRY

In Letter to Couzens, Secretary Defends Proposal for 25 Per Cent Rate and Asks That There Be "Diagnosis and Cure, Not Autopsy and Verdict."

DEMOCRATS FOR 40 PER CENT RATE

Normal Tax of 2 Per Cent and Increase in Exemptions Also Suggested at Meeting — Promise of Help From Insurgents.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today, in a letter to Senator Couzens of Michigan, defended his tax reduction program and elaborated on his reasons for fixing the maximum surtax rate at 25 per cent.

Declaring that we have in this country a system of "war-time high surtaxes," that will yield less and less revenue to the Government and drive more and more capital out of productive enterprises, he urged the Government to cure and not hold an autopsy and render a verdict.

The letter of Mellon to Couzens was in response to one written Dec. 31 calling for evidence that the proposed reduction in surtaxes would be good for the country. Secretary Mellon was told by the Michigan Senator that his communications to Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee and others on the subject did not contain "conclusive evidence," that the recommendations were not justified by facts.

Secretary Mellon's Letter.

The Mellon letter reads:

"I have your letter of Dec. 20, the purport of which is that my statement that high surtax rates are becoming progressively less productive has not been sustained by the figures which have heretofore come to your notice. You also state that the year 1921 was a period of business depression which would necessarily be reflected in a reduction of income, and that you desire similar statistics for the taxable year 1922 from the returns of the year 1923.

"The preparation of income statistics is a mater of considerable time and labor and cannot be done until all returns are in from the collectors, can be assembled, examined and tabulated. The statistics of 1921 returns were available in October, 1923. The 1922 statistics will not be available until next fall. I cannot, therefore, present the 1922 figures to you at this time.

"We have, however, statistics the force of which is most compelling. May I call your attention first to table 2, an appendix to my letter of Nov. 10 to Mr. Green and from which you quote This table contains the total net incomes reported from all classes as well as the net incomes of those in the $300,000 class. It is true that the year 1921 shows less total income than the year 1922, but 1921 is substantially the same as 1919, and may, therefore, represent a not unusual situation. If you will take the full six-year period (1916-1921) shown in the table, you will notice that the total net incomes returned have increased from $6,298,000,000 to $7,577,000,000, whereas incomes in the $300,000 class have decreased from nearly $1,000,000,000 to $153,000,000, and in number of taxpayers in that class from 1296 to 246. Again referring to the same table, you will note that dividends and taxable interest on investments have increased during the period from $3,200,000.00 to $4,160,000,000 whereas dividends and taxable interest on investments of the $300,000 class taxpayers have decreased from $706,000,000 to $155,000,000. If now you will refer to the prosperous year 1920, you will note that, whereas that year showed a peak in total net incomes and total dividends and taxable interest on investments, it made no halt in the progressive diminution in the number of taxpayers with incomes in the $300,000 class, in their total net incomes, or in their incomes from dividends and taxable interest on investments.

Surtaxes for Six Years.

The following table shows the amount of surtax returned on account of incomes in excess of $300,-

2000 CHILDREN BRAVE ZERO COLD TO ATTEND FIRST OF FREE SYMPHONY CONCERTS

Most of Audience of Grade School Age—Orchestra Management Gratified at Attendance in Such Weather.

PASSENGERS in the Grand boulevard district between 10 and 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when the thermometer was 8 below zero, saw on every street car groups of boys and girls who stamped rubbered feet and clapped gloved hands, and whose nipped cheeks and frosted noses peered from sweater and overcoat collars and from mufflers and knitted caps. Mostly of grade school age, they were making their way without adult escort to the Missouri Theater, where was to take place the first of a series of five free children's concerts, for which the Symphony Orchestra has been engaged by the Post-Dispatch.

As late as 10:15 a few score children were swallowed up in the dusky spaces of the theater's parquet, while other little groups, apparently awaiting comrades, huddled in the lobby and blew on their fingers. But after that every arriving street car disembarked its scores, and soon a steady stream of little misses and masters was pouring inside. By 10:30 the parquet was virtually filled, and about 100 had found places along the balcony of the mezzanine floor.

A Street Car Crowd.

The fact that nearly 2000 children ventured forth in such weather was a reason for surprise and gratification to the orchestra management, and the opinion was expressed that this was an imposing tribute to the popularity of the Post-Dispatch concerts, now beginning their third year.

In his introductory remarks, Rudolph Ganz, director of the orchestra, declared he was highly appreciative of so large an attendance on such a morning, and said that anyone braving the cold must have "a very warm heart for music." There were very few arrivals in automobiles; this was decidedly a street car crowd.

"My dear children," Ganz began the proceedings, "I'm glad you have come to our concerts again. How many of you have attended our concerts in previous years?" About half the hands in the theater went up, at which the director expressed pleasure at seeting so many familiar faces.

He said he didn't need to say much about Shubert's "Marche Militaire," which opened the program, because the children either knew it or ought to know it. But he wished to draw their attention to solos for flute, oboe and clarinet in the middle section, because at the next program, on Jan. 19, he proposed to teach them all about the instruments of the woodwind section. After the march had been applauded, the leader proceeded to the second number on the program, the overture to Rossini's "William Tell."

Enjoyed Storm Music.

"This overture," he explained, "is in four parts. The first describes a beautiful landscape in Switzerland, with a lake and mountains. Then, as often happens to us when we are having a nice picnic, a storm arises. But you needn't be afraid; it won't come here. It'll stay right on the stage." There was much laughter. "After the storm, a shepherd comes out of his cabin and plays on his little pipe." Here the English horn player held his odd

GANZ SIGNS TO LEAD SYMPHONY AGAIN

Terms of 3-Year Contract Withheld—Agreement Reached Without Difficulty.

Agreement upon the terms for the renewal of Conductor Rudolph Ganz's contract with the St. Louis Symphony Society was reached yesterday at a conference between Ganz and the Contract Committee. Members of the committee declined to reveal the terms, saying final action lay with the society's board, to whom they will report their recommendation.

It is understood, however, that the contract, like the one to expire this spring, will be for a three-year period. The salary figures were withheld, but it was said an agreement was reached without difficulty.

PHILADELPHIA "CLOSED TOWN"

Plan of Mayor-Elect Kendrick, Who Will Take Office Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—This city is to be a "closed town" so far as gambling, bootlegging and the like are concerned for the next four years, Mayor-elect W. Freeland Kendrick, who takes office Monday, announced today.

With Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler of the Marine Corps as Director of Public Safety under the new administration, Kendrick said that the "lid would be screwed down tight."

COOLIDGE BRAVES COLD AND WIND ON SEVEN-HOUR CRUISE

Undeterred by Weather, He Takes 20 Friends Down Potomac on His Yacht.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Undeterred by a howling northwester and the coldest weather of the winter, President and Mrs. Coolidge and a party of about 20 friends cruised for about seven hours today on the Potomac.

The presidential yacht Mayflower put out from her dock at the navy yard about 2 o'clock with the wind so strong that it sent sailors hats whirling. It didn't appear to affect the President, who has been alarming his friends for weeks by walking about Washington without an overcoat. The Mayflower went down the river as far as Quantico, Va., before turning back. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock and just before the boat docked a motion picture show was given.

The President at 8 o'clock went to the wireless room and pressed a key which sent another boat, the President Harrison, away from San Francisco on a trip around the world. The pressure of the President's finger sent a flash to the wireless station at Rocky Point, Long Island, which relayed it across the continent.

With the President were Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Senator Spencer of Missouri, Senator and Mrs. Frazier of North Dakota, Senator McKinley and Mrs. Mattis of Illinois, Representative and Mrs. Winslow of Massachusetts, Representative and Mrs. Dickinson of Missouri, Representative Graham of Illinois, former Senator and Mrs. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh of Washington, R. W. Razier, Cosby, N. D., Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reynolds of Washington and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston.

SKATING IN ALL PARKS TODAY

Lagoons at Forest Park Opened to Sport.

Skating will be permitted in all the city parks today, it is announced by the Park Department. Skating has already been allowed on some of the smaller lakes, but yesterday was the first time skaters were permitted to try out the longer course on the Forest Park lagoons. Ice has been reported as not glassy on the lagoons, but not rough enough to hinder good skating.

PERSIA TO SELL ITS JEWELS

Proceeds From Crown Regalia to Be Used to Build Railways.

By the Associated Press.

TEHERAN, Persia, Jan. 5.—Persia has decided to sell part of its great collection of crown jewels in order to raise money for the construction of railways.

Among the jewels are the famous Mogul diamond, weighing 280 carats, the Darya-I-Nurb diamond of 186 carats, and the Taj-E-Mah of 146 carats, valued at millions of dollars.

FIRE DAMAGES TWO DOWNTOWN BUSINESS BLOCKS

SPREADS TO THE ADJOINING BUILDING

Four Alarms Turned In to Fight North Fourth Street Blaze — Crowds Gather Despite Zero Weather.

Fire, discovered at 10 o'clock last night in the Day Rubber Co., 415 North Fourth street, spread rapidly up through the four-story building and soon the interior was a mass of flames. The adjoining four-story building, occupied on the ground floor by the Schroeder & Tremayne Co., spoge dealers, also was soon burning fiercely. A four-alarm was turned in.

The buildings are only a short distance from Nugents Department Store. The flames, surging upward in spectacular fashion, attracted a large crowd, despite the zero weather.

Firemen quickly had 27 streams of water playing on the fire and on adjoining buildings. The flames soon endangered adjoining buildings and leaped across Fourth street to the east side, to the roof of the Geller, Ward & Hasner Wholesale Hardware Co. building.

The spray from the hoses became a thin sheet of ice after striking the buildings. The street became slippery and street car and other traffic had to be diverted. Impeding telephone and trolley wires were cut down by the firemen, adding to the confusion.

While this fire was raging a two-alarm fire was reported in the building occupied by the Standard Rag & Paper Co. at 116-18 South Commercial street only a few blocks fro the Fourth street fire.

ROCKEFELLER'S GOLFING COMPANION DIES ON LINKS

Ashton Harvey Collapses When Playing Twosome With Oil King at Ormond Beach, Fla.

By the Associated Press.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6.—Ashton Harvey of New York died suddenly on the Ormond Beach golf links today when playing in a twosome with John D. Rockefeller Sr., with whom he has been playing occasional matches, the last five winters.

Harvey and Rockefeller had just started playing at the time the former was stricken. Harvey was preparing to make his second shot when he complained of a pain in his heart. The day was somewhat chilly and Rockefeller, thinking the ailment was due to the cold, advised Harvey's caddy to go back to the clubhouse and get a paper vest.

The two, with a caddy, were approaching the first green when Harvey collapsed. Rockefeller and his caddy tried to assist him into a chauffeur's barracks near by, and were joined by two bellboys from the hotel. They had just got him inside when he succumbed.

Despite the incident, Rockefeller, who will be 85 years old in July, went unescorted to his automobile, which had been called immediately and stood up well under the shock.

No word had been received early tonight from Harvey's relatives. He was about 70 years old. He started coming to Ormond Beach nine years ago and had been coming every winter since except two. He retired from practice of the law several years ago and had made his home with a daughter Mrs. D. S. Baker Rockridge, Greenwich, Conn. Mrs. Harvey was drowned in 1906 at Shorthills, N. J.

RISING TEMPERATURE HERE TODAY; MERCURY 39 BELOW IN MINNESOTA; COLD WAVE SWEEPS OVER WIDE AREA

BELOW FREEZING TEMPERATURES AS FAR SOUTH AS LOUISIANA

North Central Section of Country Greatest Sufferer From Temperature Drop; Low Marks in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

CHICAGO REPORTS 6 DEATHS FROM COLD

Park Policeman Frozen to Death in St. Paul; Kentucky Reports Negroes Going South; East to Experience Colder Weather This Week.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Upward of a dozen deaths were reported today from one of the most severe cold waves which has swept the country in years.

The north central section of the United States was the greatest sufferer from the cold, Chicago and Illinois having low marks which have not been passed since 1905, while Kansas, Missouri, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa also reported exceptional cold.

The coldest point in the United States today, according to unofficial reports, was Virginia, Minn., where 39 degrees below zero was reported, but this record was closely approached by Mankato, Minn., where the thermometer registered 38 below, and Gordon, Neb., with 37 below.

Tonight the death list in Chicago, where the lowest official reading today was 16 below, but where unofficial readings in suburbs reached 22 below, stood at six. Deaths were reported from St. Louis, and in St. Paul a park policeman was found frozen to death.

In Fargo, N. D., 35 below zero was reported; Norfolk, Neb., and Fort Dodge, Ia., reported 32 below; Sioux City, Ia., 25 below, and Des Moines, 22 below. Although Omaha's lowest was only 20 below, it was the coldest temperature recorded in three years.

Milk Deliveries Suspended.

La Crosse, Wis., with 28 below, was the coldest place in Wisconsin, where milk deliveries were virtually abandoned in some sections.

In Illinois thermometer readings ranged from 16 to 25 below zero.

Considerable snow fell along Lake Erie and sub-zero weather prevailed throughout Ohio for the first time this winter. Several Ohio points, including Columbus and Cincinnati, reported readings of 7 below. The cold weather put an end to the fear of floods in Ohio river towns.

Many Southern states also suffered the coldest weather of the season. Below freezing temperatures were recorded in Alabama, Louisiana, Tennessee and Georgia, and in some Mississippi towns. Southern Louisiana had the coldest weather of the year.

At Fulton Junction, Ky., it was reported that large numbers of negroes were passing through in their annual exodus to the South to escape the cold weather prevailing in the Northern states.

Warmer in the West.

In the extreme West and Rocky Mountain states, the cold wave had passed and warmer weather resulted. All the Pacific Coast states except Oregon again were fast approaching normal conditions.

Although the Government weather forecast for the coming week is generally fair weather throughout the upper Mississippi and lower Mississippi Valleys, the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions and the Pacific states, subnormal temperatures also are forecast. The same is true of the West Gulf states and Ohio Valley, while it is predicted that the Atlantic and East Gulf states will experience much

THREE DEATHS DURING DAY ATTRIBUTED TO EXPOSURE

Woman Reported to Have Been Frozen to Death in County—Much Suffering Amog the Destitute.

Three deaths were attributed to exposure during yesterday's extreme cold, which was also the cause of much suffering among the destitute.

Mrs. Julia Pencenno, 72 years old, a negro laundress, was found last evening in the shanty boat where she had lived for many years, at the foot of Malt street, 6600 south. She had become ill and had been unable to keep up a fire, and her feet had frozen. She died as she was being taken to the City Hospital.

The Sheriff's office at Clayton last night received a report that a woman had been frozen to death near Barrett's Station, St. Louis County, two and one-half miles east of Valley Park. The report came fro ma worker of the County Welfare League. The name of the woman was not learned.

Patrick Donnelly, 67 years old, who had no fixed place of abode, stumbled into a doorway at 722 Market street, some time before dawn yesterday, suffering from the cold. At 8 a. m. his thinly-clad body was found there, frozen. City hospital attacehs identified him, remembering that he had been treated there previously.

Donnelly gave up the struggle within five blocks of the warm Municipal Lodging House, 110 South Twelfth street, where about 700 homeless men were being sheltered at that time.

Peter Davis, 63, of 1603 Carr street, who was found suffering from exposure at Fourteenth and Carr streets, Thursday, died at city hospital Friday afternoon.

A stream of persons suffering from frozen or frost-bitten members began going to the hospital for treatment Friday night and the stream has not yet ceased. Those who were least affected were sent home after treatment, but a number remained at the hosptial. Cold water applied to the nipped spots and stimulants were the chief remedies. Policemen and firemen were among the sufferers.

Families which had run short of fuel, and which lacked money to buy fuel and food, made appeals for help in some cases. One family of five was provided with coal and food through the efforts of policemen.

At the Municipal Lodging House, the number of inmates increased last night to 765. These lodgers receive coffee, soup, sausage and bread in the morning.

Father Dempsey's Hotel, 1119 North Seventh street, was full last night, but the priest-proprietor said this was not a new condition. "We have had all we could accommodate for several days," he declared. "Everybody is being kept comfortable," he added. "My guests have more money than usual this winter, and they are drinking less than in past seasons."

$8000 IN BURIED GOLD OF MISSOURI HERMIT FOUND

More Valuables Believed to Have Been Concealed Before His Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

LA PLATA, Mo., Jan. 5.—Buried gold to the amount of $8000 has been found on the farm of Melville Smith, a farmer living two miles from here, who died Thursday night. It was discovered on New Year's day by the Rev. Arthur Smith of Carthage, Mo., a nephew, who is one of the executors of the will made two weeks ago. He arrived about three weeks ago to be with his uncle, who had been ill for some time. More gold and personal property probably are buried on the 480-acre farm, but the recent freeze prevents further search.

Melville Smith was 80 years old and lived the life of a hremit in a rough cabin among heavy timber on his farm. He often denied himself the necessaries of life.

He and his brother, William, came with their father, Robert Smith, from Athens County, Ohio, 42 years ago. They married sisters. Melville's wife died without children. A letter received this week from Mrs. Sarah Prall of Millfield, O., says that she and her brother are his children, born before he came to Missouri. She was in correspondence with him, she says, several years prior to his death.

Thirty years ago, the two brothers inherited jointly from their father 480 acres of land, $12,000 in Government bonds and other valuable property. When Will Smith died, two years ago, $2400 in gold was found buried on the farm, but the $12,000 in bonds has not been located. They are said to have been in a Kirksville bank until about eight years ago. It is believed they were converted into gold.

The Rev. Dr. Smith is a member of the National Board of Education of the M. E. Church with hearquarters in New York.

An old-fashioned spelling match—students vs. parents—is one of the features planned for Soldan High School community center at forthcoming Friday evening meetings. The "spelling bee" and other forms of prospective cultural entertainment were discussed by some 250 students and parents Friday night at the first meeting of the center, called by Principal John Rush Powell and the Mothers' Club of Soldan.

The attendance was about half students and half parents, and a brief program of orchestral music, fancy dancing and gymnasium drill was given. A girls' debate will be the feature of next Friday's program.

FIREMEN GET 96 ALARMS; DAMAGE TO FRUIT FEARED

Saturday Coldest Day in St. Louis Since Winter of 1917-18—Lowest Temperature Was 11 Below Zero at 8:25 O'Clock in the Morning.

ICE IN PARK LAKES AND WATER PIPES

Railroad Trains Late in Arriving — Little Interference With Street Car Schedules, Despite Increase in Passengers.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Fair today and probably tomorrow; rising temperature.

St. Louis weather is expected to have less of the Arctic touch today, following two nights and a day of minus-sign temperatures, with a record of 11 below zero at 8:25 a. m. yesterday.

Yesterday was the coldest day seen in St. Louis since the war winter of 1917-18, when zero weather began in mid-December and recurred frequently through January and into February, with an extreme of 17 below on Jan. 12. The lowest mark ever reached here was 22 below, just 40 years ago yesterday, Jan. 5, 1884.

Unlike most extremely cold spells here, the present one came with the ground bare. Snow, which is a complication of cold weather to some persons, and a compensation for it to others, has hardly been seen here this winter, except for flurries. There was ice in the park lakes and in the water pipes of some householders. There were ice floes in the Mississippi, and river men said it would take at least two days more of intense cold to weld them together in such form as to give the river a solid crust.

Transportation Hampered.

Even without snow, the cold hampered outside transportation, and all railroad trains arriving at Union Station last evening were late, by periods of an hour to four hours. Street car service suffered little interference, but there were more passengers, because family automobiles were left at home; and for the same reason the trolley cars met with less traffic obstruction on downtown streets.

Ninety-six fire alarms were recorded yesterday up to 9 p. m. The usual number is 15 to 18 a day. Most of the alarms were caused by small fires, due to overheated furnaces and stoves, but some were for bursting water pipes, the firemen being called to stop the water instead of starting it.

Damage to fruit, in the orchards and nurseries around St. Louis, was a subject of speculation. County Agent Langenbach of St. Charles County said that recent warm weather had brought up the sap in many fruit trees, grapevines and berry bushes, only to be frozen now, and that the crop would suffer in consequence. He did not believe wheat would be affected.

Merchants on commission row were kept busy protecting their stocks on hand, with business nearly at a standstill.

The general forecast for this week, sent out from Washington, is for temperatures lower than normal in the next few days. This does not necessarily mean zero temperatures, as the normal mean, or daily average, temperature for this time of the year is 31 degrees.

The Rev. Mr. Smith has been temporarily supervising the removal of the Ozark Wesleyan College from Marionville to Carthage, Mo., and its refinancing for a million dollars. Together with a neighbor, he located the treasure on New Year's day. The borrowing of a spade from Roscoe Graves caused him to follow the two men

BORAH ADVOCATES COUNTRY-WIDE TAX CUT CRUSADE, DENOUNCES BONUS

Declares Greatest Aid Nation Can Offer to Soldier Would Be to Restore Economic Stability.

"WEST LOSING FAITH IN THE GOVERNMENT"

Farmers Tire of Taxes and 'Saturnalia of Spending,' in Which, He Says, Departments Are Indulging.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Asserting that the question of tax reduction ought to be made a crusade in this country, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho told the National Republican Club of New York today that the greatest contribution the nation could make to the soldier would be to restore the economic stability of the country by lower taxes. Vigorously opposing the soldier bonus, which was championed by Edward E. Spafford, New York State commander of the American Legion, Senator Borah declared tax reduction and the bonus could not be reconciled.

"One has a right to be for the bonus, or he has a right to be for tax reduction," said the Senator. "But he cannot be for both. You cannot take off a temporary burden of $140,000,000 or $150,000,000 and lay on a permanent obligation of $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000 and call it tax reduction. That would be too great a strain on the credulity of the voter. It would be a dangerous political experiment and would defeat any party that would undertake it."

Replying to the threat of the Legion commander that the former service man would muster more than 18,000,000 votes to defeat the Mellon tax reduction plan and compel adoption of a bonus, Senator Borah asserted there were at least 29 Senators who would oppose a bonus bill if there were 10,000,000,000 votes against them.

Assailed as Class Legislation.

Secretary Mellon's plan for tax reduction was assailed by Spafford as class legislation.

"Every opponent of the provision for the veterans, led by the war profiteers and the whole kit and crew of those who exploit the masses of the country to their own profit," he asserted, "has seized upon it as debarring now and forever the payment of the just dues the nation owes its soldiers."

Tax reduction and a soldiers' bonus are inconsistent, declared S. Parker Gilbert, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, and a bonus would make tax reduction impossible for many years to come.

Asserting that the leadership of the American Legion had committed the organization to a bonus program which the conscience of thousands of its members had rejected, Capt. Knowlton Durham, president of the Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League, predicted it eventually would destroy itself.

Senator Borah quoted figures indicating the rate of increase of taxes in the last eight or ten years, declaring they "represented the most searching tragedy of American life." In Eastern industrial centers the situation was serious enough, he asserted, but in the agricultural regions of the West "they are losing faith in the Government" because of unbearable taxes and "the mad saturnalia of spending," in which the speaker declared the Government continued to indulge.

Out in the Farm Country.

"Out in the great agricultural areas," he said, "where, in the last analysis, must be found the source of national wealth and contentment—the place from which we are fed—there is going on a patient, dogged struggle for the preservation of homes and farms such as no man can appreciate who has not witnessed it. Men and women who have tamed the desert, suffered and sacrificed, denied themselves, and under the most adverse circumstances opened up farms, now with 50 years of struggle behind them, stand in mortal dread of the coming tax collector with his ever-increasing call. They have seen their tax burden mount 300 and 500 per cent in the brief space of a few years, and while reflecting over what has happened, they are even more anxious about what may happen.

"What do such tax burdens mean? They mean imperiled and forfeited homes, they mean dissatisfied and discontented domestic life, they mean less educational advantages for the coming citizen, they mean separated and demoralized families, they mean energy thwarted and enterprise sterilized, and last of all, they mean thriftlessness and improvidence and moral breakdown of a great and proud citizenship.

"Have we the courage to do our plain duty?" Senator Borah asked. "I beg the people to understand that it is not alone a question of reducing the taxes. It is also this: Can we throw off this national disease of extravagance and waste?"

"Disease of Extravagance."

Congress is the center of fire in the tax-cut controversy, the speaker said, but not Congress alone is divided on the issue.

"It seems to me that the administration is not presenting a united front," the Senator continued. "At a time when economy is the crying need and when the morale of the forces fighting for economic relief is of the utmost moment, the demands which are coming in for a greater army and for heavy additional expenditures for military purposes should not be presented.

OPENING OF TUTANKHAMEN'S COFFIN MAY BE DELAYED

Possibility Mummy May Not Be Unwrapped and Radiographed Before Next Season—Body to Be Left in Sarcophagus.

By the Associated Press.

LUXOR, Egypt, Jan. 5.—Howard Carter's action Thursday in postponing further work on Tutankhamen's shrine and opening the doors of the successive caskets to establish whether the Pharaoh's sarcophagus really was within, has given him the satisfaction of knowing that at length his ambition has been realized and that this modest tomb with its wealth of treasure is indeed the sepulcher of the mystery monarch.

The frieze of inscriptions on the pink stone coffin, freely interspersed with Tutankhamen's cartouches, definitely establishes this. But the immense and solid lid of the coffin, which is perhaps four inches thick, effectively bars the way to further investigation until the surrounding shrines have been dismantled.

May Delay Opening Coffin.

The world will have to wait possibly until next season before the mummy of the King can be unwrapped and radiographed to establish two important historic points—the age at time of death of this ruler, who is everywhere portrayed as a slim, handsome, athletic youth, and whether the cause of death was natural, or Tutankhamen, as some hold, was slain by his successor, King Ay.

An official communique today confirms the recent announcement that the Egyptian Government has decided to leave the King's body where it lies in the sarcophagus.

No tomb in Egypt will be more impressive than Tutankhamen's when the resplendent canopy and the other shrines within have been dismantled. The mortuary chamber should be a well proportioned setting for this beautiful, gleaming pink coffin, unscratched and unchipped by the hand of man: unmarred by time.

Work With Lowered Voices.

Once more the two impressive life-sized statues of the King, grasping staves and maces and adorned with gilded wigs and sandals of pure gold, will take up their watch on the threshold of the sepulchral chamber, from whose walls a brightly painted procession of gods look down upon the dead sovereign, and among them the prominent figure of King Ay, shown in the act of performing for his predecessor the mystical funeral ceremony, "the opening of the mouth."

It is not known whether Carter's personal feeling that, when the scientific work is ended, the lid should be replaced upon the sarcophagus and the King's mummy hidden from the public gaze, will be respected. Others, however, agree with him that it would seem more fitting, when the needs of Egyptology have been satisfied, that the tomb should be restored to its inviolate state, leaving the Pharhoa to slumber beneath the stone lid through the succeeding centuries as he has slumbered for the last 3000 years and more.

The finding of the sarcophagus has brought a curious hush to the sepulchral chamber where, in the warm air, deep below the earth, in the glare of the electric lights, the scientists go about their work, speaking in lowered voices in respect for the presence of the royal dead.

Today draftsmen were busy sketching the details of the doors of the shrines, with their elaborately incised decorations.

It is not yet known whether further treasures are between the walls of the newly opened shrines, but it is understood the doors in their present position will effectively prevent the excavators from exploring the recessses between the caskets until they are successively dismantled. A complete motion picture record of this week's discoveries has been made.

84 Tons of Tutankhamen Relics on Way to Washington Museum.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Jan. 5.—Eighty-four tons of relics from the tomb of King Tutankhamen left here last night aboard the steamship Crisfield for Philadelphia, whence they will be transported to Washington for installation in the National Museum, it was learned today.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Officials at the National Museum and the Smithsonian Institution said today they knew nothing of a shipment of relics from the tomb of King Tutankhamen, but expressed interest in dispatches from Halifax saying such a shipment was on the way.

MELLON SAYS HIGH SURTAX DOES HARM TO THE COUNTRY

000 for the six-year period, together with the total surtax returned and the percentage the surtax on incomes in excess of $300,000 was in relation to the total surtax:

| | Total Surtax | Surtax of Income in Excess of $300,000 | Percentage of total those in excess $300,000 |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1916 | $121,946,136 | $ 81,404,194 | 66.8 |
| 1917 | 433,345,732 | 201,937,975 | 46.3 |
| 1918 | 651,289,027 | 220,218,131 | 33.8 |
| 1919 | 801,525,103 | 243,601,410 | 30.4 |
| 1920 | 596,803,767 | 134,709,112 | 22.6 |
| 1912 | 411,327,684 | 84,797,344 | 20.6 |

(1916 was a year of low surtax rates).

"From this you will note that, whereas the total surtax has varied, the percentage of surtax paid by the $300,000 class has progressively decreased from 66.8 to 20.6, without a break for any prosperous year.

"We have, therefore, the six years of varying degrees of prosperity statistics showing a marked and continuous tendency. That the statistics of 1922 when available will show a reversal of this tendency under the same conditions which have caused it heretofore is improbable.

"I stated in my annual report: 'That tax exempt securities are not the only means by which the wealthy taxpayer, within his strictly legal rights, avoids a burden which appears to him to be confiscatory. It has been the history of taxation throughout the world that means have always been found by the ingenuity of the citizen to avoid taxes inherently excessive.'

Tax-Exempt Securities.

"It is not necessary, therefore, that we consider solely tax exempt securities as the means of tax avoidance, but the existing tax exempt securities which would be unaffected by any constitutional amendment are the most open and well-known invitation to the avoidance of high surtaxes.

"There are approximately $11,000,000,000 of wholly tax exempt securities outstanding and the loss of revenue to the Government over what it would receive if the income were taxable is estimated at over $200,000,000 a year and the loss of revenue over a similar investment in productive business at over $400,000,000 a year. In the 1921 revenue act the Congress removed the requirement that tax exempt income be reported. The extent to which people of wealth have had resort to this means of avoidance is not available to the Government except in returns for inheritance tax purposes. The inheritance tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau has taken 21 returns filed in 1923 of estates of descendants having net estates of from $1,000,000 - 000 up. These returns were taken at random from the estates of various net values of the great number of returns filed in that year, which have not yet been audited for statistical information, and, therefore, while typical, do not include all of the returns over this net value. Individually, of course, they vary, but as a whole they show that the percentage of wholly tax exempt securities to total gross estates in 1923 was 28.97, and the percentage of wholly tax exempt securities of total bonds and stocks, was 41.98. This compares with similar percentages for previous years, as follows:

| | Wholly tax exempt to net estate. | Wholly tax exempt to total stocks and bonds. |
|---|---|---|
| 1917 | [illegible] | [illegible] |
| 1918 | 4.27 | 8.66 |
| 1919 | 5.70 | [illegible] |
| 1920 | 9.79 | 14.50 |
| 1921 | 8.97 | 13.30 |
| 1922 | 6.82 | [illegible] |
| 1923 | 28.97 | 41.98 |

"Again we have proof of this progressive diversion of wealth from productive to unproductive development.

"Your statement that tax-exempt securities are not attractive as compared with bank stocks and industrials, which yield from 10 to 100 per cent on their investment, is misleading if you make your basis the amount originally invested. The proper basis is the market value of the securities. The question is, can a taxpayer get more return after income taxes out of $1000 worth of tax-exempt securities or out of $1000 worth of some taxable investment? I know of no sound bank stock which paid as high as 10 per cent on what it can be sold for and the money put in tax-exempts, nor of any sound investment which ran up to 100 per cent on the market value of the stock. It is true that speculation sometimes gives these high returns, but it is the very demand for such returns on account of the high surtaxes which has kept capital out of ordinary productive business and attracted it only to such projects as give opportunity for undue profit.

Cites Rockefeller Holdings.

"Your citation of the Standard Oil dividends as an example of investments which would be made in preference to tax-exempt securities is most appropriately answered by the return of the estate of Mr. William Rockefeller, who was undoubtedly quite familiar with the Standard Oil companies. The total market value of his investments in these stocks was less than $7,000,000, whereas the value of his wholly tax-exempt bonds was $44,000,000, six times what he has in the four Standard Oil companies.

"We have in this country a system of war-time high surtaxes which have been and will continue to be progressively less productive of revenue to the Government, and which, by driving capital out of productive business and driving the American spirit out of business initiative, are working grave economic harm. It is not those who have the capital who are hurt; it is the whole country who would benefit by its productive use who suffer. Common experience and all statistics available point to the same end. What is the remedy? Let us have diagnosis and cure—not autopsy and verdict."

Democratic Position.

The position of Senate Democrats on the Mellon plan was outlined by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader in the Senate, in an address broadcast to the country tonight from a radio station. His pronouncement came after a conference of House Ways and Means Committee Democrats with Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the minority leader in the House, at which a comprehensive program is understood to have been worked out.

Senator Robinson declared that, while the proposed reduction in the surtax rates on large incomes was justified, in part at least, it could "not be demonstrated that 25 per cent is the one and only rate which will diminish investment in tax-exempt securities and invite them into industrial and commercial enterprises."

"From what evidence does it appear," he asked, "that a maximum of 40 per cent levied on incomes above $200,000 will not have a similar effect to a greater degree?"

As a means of reaching income from tax-exempt securities without amending the Constitution, the Senator suggested the imposition of transfer or inheritance taxes which distinguished between securities which have borne their fair share of tax burden during the decedent's lifetime and securities of the same class which have not.

Senator Robinson declared that, while "propagandist influences" undoubtedly were at work behind the Mellon plan, "an overwhelming public sentiment is behind the movement for tax reduction and this sentiment is based on justice and sound reason."

Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee formally announced today that he would have some amendments to the Mellon plan to offer before the committee, which he said had been "progressing quite rapidly" in its consideration of the Treasury bill. He said he would propose a tax on gifts above a certain amount, such a tax not being contained in the draft bill submitted by the Treasury.

Also Green announced that he would seek to tighten up by amendment some of the provisions of the Treasury draft designed to prevent tax evasion. His proposed change would be aimed primarily to prevent tax evasion through reorganization of corporations.

Among the suggestions considered by the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee in preparing their program were ones to increase the exemptions allowed unmarried persons from $1000 to $2000 and also to increase the exemption for married men; to extend the "earned incomes" credit of 25 per cent, proposed in the bill, definitely to farmers and small store proprietors, and to increase the range of proposed nuisance tax repeals.

Minority Discusses Rates.

The minority members of the committee are understood to have agreed that the maximum surtax rate should be at least 40 per cent, some of them favoring a maximum slightly above that figure. There was a general agreement that the normal tax rate should be cut to 2 per cent and either 4 or 6 per cent, as against the prevailing rates of 4 and 8 per cent, and the Mellon proposal of 3 and 6 per cent.

The Democrats drafting a minority program said they were prepared to press for its enactment fully aware that President Coolidge was opposed to any changes in the essential provisions of the Mellon draft, as was announced yesterday at the White House. They said also that they expected to have the support of a sufficient number of Republican insurgents and House members from the central and far West to put over their amendments.

The soldiers' bonus again was injected prominently into the situation with the filing of formal petitions for a conference of House Republicans next Thursday night to decide whether the Ways and Means Committee is to report a bonus bill ahead of tax legislation. Former service men who are members of Congress pressed their demand for a conference despite the opposition of some party leaders to their program. A call for the conference probably will go out early next week.

VENIZELOS TAKEN ILL JUST BEFORE HE WINS ELECTION

Seized With Heart Attack When He Enters Chamber at Meeting of National Assembly.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Jan. 5.—Former Premier Venizelos, who was taken ill during today's session of the National Assembly, of which he was elected President, became worse after reaching his home, and a consultation of four physicians, including a heart specialist, was called. It later was reported he had suffered a heart attack, although not a serious one.

When Venizelos entered the Assembly Chamber before the balloting, he was given a great ovation, the entire chamber joining in the cheering, which lasted more than a minute.

Venizelos received 345 votes of a total of 356 cast by the Assembly.

Venizelos was extremely pale as he walked slowly to his seat in the Chamber and after the cheering subsided he threw back his head repeatedly, as if catching his breath. The acting president announced that the assembly would proceed with the election of a permanent president. The Liberals having announced the candidacy of Venizelos, the leader of the Republicans, M. Papanastasiou, arose and said they would vote for Venizelos according to his services for the country.

The leader of the radical Republicans, Admiral Hadjikiriakos, then began a violent speech attacking Venizelos and denounced his followers as hero worshipers. During the course of his remarks he declared: "I am for ideas, not for idolatry."

During a pause in the Admiral's speech, Venizelos, growing paler, put aside his hat, which he had been twitching nervously, and made as if to speak, but the Admiral motioned him down, saying he had not finished.

At this juncture, Minister Doxiadis of Public Relief, who was seated next to Venizelos, took the former Premier's pulse and whispered for him to leave the room. The Admiral was just finishing his attack when Venizelos walked out, assisted by Doxiadis, who immediately took him home in his car.

After the voting, resulting in favor of M. Venizelos, the acting president thanked the assembly on behalf of the ex-Premier, made it known that he had been obliged to retire owing to an indisposition, and quickly adjourned the proceedings.

Found Situation Complicated.

At the close of his first day on Greek soil yesterday, Venizelos told friends that he found the political situation more complicated and the chances for permanent peace less promising than he has imagined.

The question of King George's return is proving a stumbling block. The royalists have told Venizelos that before any conversations begin the King must be returned to Greece and remain here pending a plebiscite to determine whether the country shall have a republican or monarchial government.

On the other hand, the Republicans refuse to discuss the question of the King's return, even going so far as declining to promise Venizelos that they would abide by the decision of a plebiscite should it result in favor of the retention of the monrachy. The former Premier told the ex-ministers of the revolutionary government at a dinner last night that he hoped to be able to stabilize the internal situation and enable Greece to obtain the unused credits granted by foreign nations, especially the United States.

Object to Avert Civil War.

"I intend," he continued, "to remain only until I obtain what I came for, namely, to suppress the probability of civil war. I am not asking the Greeks to do the impossible. I do not expect all Greeks to become friends, but I want them to become accustomed to respect the popular voice of the people and see that when one party is in power it will not wield its power unfairly against those out of office."

Col. Plastiras, head of the Revolutionary Committee, has been awarded the grand cordon of the Order of the Saviour, the highest Greek decoration, by the regent. Col. Plastiras is leaving Athens tomorrow.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, D. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

PLAN TO REVEAL KLAN 'COME-BACK' BY TERRORIZATION

How Order Gained New Power After 1921 Exposures Nearly Wrecked It to Be Told to Senate

Post-Dispatchf Bureau.
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The original exposure of the Ku Klux Klan by the Post-Dispatch and the New York World begun in the fall of 1921 and given the widest publicity throughout the country, so effectively crimped the organization that it was about to take the final count when the last of the articles was printed. In a state of utter collapse for months, it began to recover lost ground when it instituted a campaign of intimidation in the South and Southwest.

This, it is confidently predicted, will be revealed during the approaching trial of Earle B. Mayfield, junior United States Senator from Texas, whose forced return to private life is demanded because a klan conspiracy is held responsible for his nomination and election. The enormous sums expended by the klan in Mayfield's behalf will be only one phase of klan activity revealed during the course of the Mayfield investigation.

Thousands Deserted Klan.

As a consequence of the exposure, the Invisible Empire's membership dropped at an alarming rate. Thousands upon thousands of klansmen deserted outright and as many more refused to remit their dues.

With no money in the treasury and hundreds of bills outstanding, the klan seemed headed for a receivership and disbanding. It was then, it is proposed to show in the Mayfield contest, that the program of terrorization and sabotage was adopted and put into force.

Immediately thereafter, it is planned to show, whippings were started, boycotts instituted against merchants and business men not members of the klan, and politicians not on the roster notified that political extermination awaited them. This crusade of intimidation had the desired effect, it will be alleged.

Join to Avoid Terrorizing.

Men in all walks of life, especially in the Southwest, began to join the klan in large numbers. They did so, it was revealed, for self-protection, to escape violence, boycott and political ostracizing. Men who held in contempt the teachings of the klan subscribed to its tenets.

Soon the klan's depleted treasury was replenished. Missionaries were sent through the South, West and North. The measures that had been so productive in the Southwest were adopted in other states with similar results. In this manner will the remarkable recrudescence of klanism following its collapse be explained to the Senate. Large sums of money were handled by Ku Klux financiers. In this connection, there will be revealed cogent reasons why members of the imperial family having access at various times to the coffers of the Invisible Empire have become involved in factional conflicts which today menace the future of the klan.

Conditions in Texas.

Klan super-government in Texas, it will be demonstrated, was enforced by an autocratic minority against a majority which feared to register its protest at the polls because of reprisals which might result. Conditions in Texas, it will be emphasized, are symptomatic of those in other states where klan domination now prevails.

Mayfield's election, following the most bitterly contested campaign in the history of Texas, was accomplished with nearly half the voters remaining away from the polls. From evidence to be adduced only one conclusion, it is forecast, can be reached—that men and women were afraid to exercise their franchise against the klan.

It has been possible for the attorneys seeking Mayfield's expulsion to approximate the grand total of money he expended in his primary and election campaigns by the klan. Witnesses will be on hand, it is promised, to testify that Mayfield attended klan conferences at which arrangements were made to finance his election.

Above all, it is the purpose of his accusers to prove that Mayfield was, and is, a klansman in spirit as well as in name and that his announcement that he resigned from the klan is not to be taken too seriously.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

MRS. PRICE'S PLAN TO MAKE $50,000 SOCIETY CLEAN-UP

cheme to Get West End Woman as "Bird Dog" for Oil Salesman Written to Son of Wife Suing Her

ETTER IN EVIDENCE IN ALIENATION SUIT

Even Prepared to Have Man 'Die Suddenly' to Smooth Way for Elaborate Lease Selling Project.

Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price, oil speculator, lawyer and former president of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce, devised a scheme to interest a prominent St. Louis woman in a "successful" oil venture and then to try to induce this woman to become a "bird dog" for an oil stock salesman among wealthy West End women, in the hope that $50,000 might thus be "cleaned up."

This was disclosed yesterday in the taking of depositions in a $75,000 suit for alienation of affections, filed last week against Mrs. Price by Mrs. Edna A. Cooper of 2708 Arkansas avenue, whose husband, Sheridan Cooper, is a business associate of Mrs. Price.

Made Wheels Go 'Round Better.

Information as to the scheme was contained in a letter written June 13, 1922, by Mrs. Price to Hall Cooper, 27-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Cooper.

The letter, offered in evidence by Randolph Laughlin, counsel for Mrs. Cooper, was addressed to "Dear Hall." In explanation of this familiarity, the writer wrote that she "liked to call all her business associates by their first names, because "it sort of made the wheels go round better."

"Your esteemed and venerable father is the only exception, and I respect his gray hairs too much to get frivolous," the writer added.

"I have intended writing you for a long time," the writer continued, for I have a plan that will make us all a lot of money if you can help work it out. 'In order that you may know the exact condition, I will have to begin at the beginning and 'wise you up.'"

"Plan Is Beautiful."

The "beginning" was a meeting with a man who answered an advertisement for stock salesmen made by the Missouri Car Co. (now in receivership) of which Mrs. Price then was secretary. The president of the company had asked her to "look over" the man, which she did at a luncheon.

"It soon came out," the writer narrated, "that this man and I were both in the oil business, and he said he would sell my Duncan lease for me. His plan was to sell at $150 an acre. After he had disposed of my lease on a 50-50 basis, we were to sell his Mexia leases on the same basis.

"Now his plan was this—to meet a society woman, or 'bird dog,' as he called it, sell her a few acres, return her original investment plus 50 per cent in a short time, get her all pepped up on the quick return, get her down in the fields and sell, and then come back here and have her take him around to her wealthy friends and make a killing. He wanted her to make a lot of money, which he called 'advance commissions,' on future sales. The plan is beautiful and could really be carried out, and make us forty or fifty thousand dollars."

Vanishes With Only $250.

The plan was so good, in fact, that they proceeded at once to put it into execution, according to the letter. She sent him, she told, to a woman friend in the West End, prominent in public affairs, who took the whole cork under at one time," turning over a $500 Liberty bond and arranging "with friend husband" to let her go down to the fields and sell."

Then the new-found friend and stock-selling partner left for Mexia with $250, and, strangely, the writer had not heard from him since! She was further puzzled because the West End society friend had $5000 in her safe deposit box which he could easily have handled."

To make matters further complicated, the oil man left a coupon for $10, due in April, which made it necessary for the writer to "get an alibi" for the man, "so, very suddenly, he was called to the Tampico fields, and I do not know just when he will return." The writer then stated that the oil man had a partner looking after their interests in the Duncan and Mexia oil fields and she suggested that if the partner could not be made to "come in," then, "I can have him die suddenly and you can name someone else, only he must be a good man."

"Have You a Good Scout?"

Then returning to the subject of the society woman "bird dog," the writer continued:

"You see the jam I am in. Have you a good scout down there that will work with us, advance $750 to her as an investment? This I know will run into the thousands for us. Now she will do nothing until she makes some money herself, and she will not sell her friends here until she has tried

MRS. PRICE'S PLAN TO MAKE $50,000 SOCIETY CLEAN-UP

Scheme to Get West End Woman as "Bird Dog" for Oil Salesman Written to Son of Wife Suing Her

LETTER IN EVIDENCE IN ALIENATION SUIT

Even Prepared to Have Man 'Die Suddenly' to Smooth Way for Elaborate Lease Selling Project.

Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price, oil speculator, lawyer and former president of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce, devised a scheme to interest a prominent St. Louis woman in a "successful" oil venture and then to try to induce this woman to become a "bird dog" for an oil stock salesman among wealthy West End women, in the hope that $50,000 might thus be "cleaned up."

This was disclosed yesterday in the taking of depositions in a $75,000 suit for alienation of affections, filed last week against Mrs. Price by Mrs. Edna A. Cooper of [illegible] Arkansas avenue, whose husband, Sheridan Cooper, is a business associate of Mrs. Price.

Made Wheels Go 'Round Better.

Information as to the scheme was contained in a letter written June 13, 1922, by Mrs. Price to Hall Cooper, 27-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Cooper.

The letter, offered in evidence by Randolph Laughlin, counsel for Mrs. Cooper, was addressed to "Dear Hall." In explanation of this familiarity, the writer wrote that she "liked to call all her business associates by their first names, because "it sort of made the wheels go round better."

"Your esteemed and venerable father is the only exception, and I respect his gray hairs too much to get frivolous," the writer added.

"I have intended writing you for a long time," the writer continued, "for I have a plan that will make us all a lot of money if you can help work it out. In order that you may know the exact condition, I will have to begin at the beginning and 'wise you up.'"

"Plan Is Beautiful."

The "beginning" was a meeting with a man who answered an advertisement for stock salesmen made by the Missouri Car Co. (now in receivership) of which Mrs. Price then was secretary. The president of the company had asked her to "look over" the man, which she did at a luncheon.

"It soon came out," the writer narrated, "that this man and I were both in the oil business, and he said he would sell my Duncan lease for me. His plan was to sell at $150 an acre. After he had disposed of my lease on a 50-50 basis, we were to sell his Mexia leases on the same basis.

"Now his plan was this—to meet a society woman, or 'bird dog,' as he called it, sell her a few acres, return her original investment plus [illegible] per cent in a short time, get her all pepped up on the quick return, get her down in the fields and sell, and then come back here and have her take him around to her wealthy friends and make a killing. He wanted her to make a lot of money, which he called 'advance commissions' on future sales. The plan is beautiful and could really be carried out, and make us forty or fifty thousand dollars."

Vanishes With Only $250.

The plan was so good, in fact, that they proceeded at once to put it into execution, according to the letter. She sent him, she told, to a woman friend in the West End, prominent in public affairs, who "took the whole cork under at one time," turning over a $500 Liberty Bond and arranging "with 'friend husband' to let her go down to the fields and sell."

Then the new-found friend and stock-selling partner left for Mexia with $250, and, strangely, the writer had not heard from him since! She was further puzzled because "the West End society friend had [illegible] in her safe deposit box which he could easily have handled."

To make matters further complicated, the oil man left a coupon of $10, due in April, which made it necessary for the writer to "get an alibi" for the man, "so very suddenly, he was called to the Tampico fields, and I do not know when he will return." The writer then stated that the oil man and a partner looking after their interests in the Duncan and Mexia oil fields, and she suggested that if the partner could not be made to "bring in," then, "I can have him die suddenly and you can name someone else, only he must be a [illegible] man."

"Have You a Good Scout?"

Then returning to the subject of the society woman "bird dog," the writer continued:

"You see the jam I am in. Have you a good scout down there that will work with us, advance $750 to her as an investment? This I know will run into the thousands for us. Now she will do nothing until she makes some money herself, and she will not sell her friends here until she has tried her hand down there. She does not want to sell stock, but leases. Can't you tie up some and let us sell them there to Easterners coming down to the fields?

"Think this over, sonny, it's ready money for us. We must not get our wires crossed. She would probably recognize the name of Cooper, as I tried to get the $1000 for our lumber company. She said, 'No, I'm going to shoot it in oil.' If you can work out a plan, enclose a letter signed by our partner, ——, if you think he will do, if not sign it by any name. You can say that —— is still tied up in Tampico and may not return until fall, that he has a big deal on down there, and then proceed to tell us the grandest scheme I know you can unfold. Now get busy and think—then let me hear from you. I will not send this until your dad has placed his O K on it, although we have talked it over many times. It also looks like the Cooper Lumber Co. is about to have an inning. Best regards."

On Woman's C. of C. Paper.

The letter was written on stationery of the Women's Chamber of Commerce, with Mrs. Price's name and position as president on the letterhead. It was identified by Mrs. Bernice M. Watson, a research worker at the Women's Chamber of Commerce, 706 Chestnut street, as one brought to the offices of the organization by Mrs. Cooper, and exhibited to her and Mrs. J. Alex Goodwin, the incumbent president. Mrs. Cooper had said she got the letter from her son, to whom it had been addressed by Mrs. Price.

Mrs. Price, who is charged in Mrs. Cooper's petition with alienating Cooper's affections under "the mask and cloak of business partnerships," was summoned to appear at Laughlin's office at 2 p. m., yesterday, to give her deposition. Mrs. Price did not appear, but her attorney, Montague Punch, communicated with Laughlin and told him that on the ground of legal technicalities he had advised his client she did not have to appear. Mrs. Price was not represented by counsel at the deposition hearing.

Mrs. Price Out of City.

To a reporter for the Post-Dispatch Attorney Punch said Mrs. Price had left the city with her father on account of his failing health, under a doctor's orders. He said she was prepared to go when the summons was served on her Jan. 2 at her home, 4540 Chouteau avenue.

The notary-reporter taking the testimony in the depositions then issued a writ of attachment to compel Mrs. Price's attendance at the hearing, upon application of Laughlin, and this was given to the Sheriff for service.

The first witness at the depositions was Mrs. Anna Shapiro, a nurse, of 4302A Maryland avenue. She testified that Cooper roomed at her house for a time, that he never mentioned his wife and that she believed him a widower. She also testified that she attended S. A. Bonner, Mrs. Price's father, during his illness from July to October, 1923, and that Cooper called at Mrs. Price's apartment "almost every day" and that he and Mrs. Price frequently left to attend picture shows together.

Mrs. Price is 49 years old and a widow. She has served in various public activities, and in 1921 sought election on the School Board. To date, she has not been reached for a statement concerning the charges of alienation of affections, or the letter written to Hall Cooper.

Mercury Climbs to Zero.

Mercury in thermometers and citizens in heavier wraps than usual began shrinking simultaneously early yesterday, and while the mercury did climb as "high" as zero for a little while in the afternoon, and later to 2 above, only to drop back again to its sub-zero escapade, the citizens never ceased to shrink from the wintry blasts.

It was extraordinarily cold; so frigid that frost thickened on window panes like snow, though the sun shone through a smoke haze. There was cold comfort in the news that thermometers and shivering residents were behaving much the same in the greater portion of the United States—below zero weather was reported in many states and some places the minimum was colder than the "11 below" attained here.

Drop Began Friday.

As often happens, private readings even lower than the official temperature were reported, some of them being 15 below. Weather Bureau readings are taken in an instrument shelter on top the Railway Exchange Building, which is exposed to all the winds that blow. The shrinking mercury began its retreat Friday at 4 p. m., from the day's maximum of 21 above; 16 hours and 25 minutes later it had dropped 32 degrees to the low point and yesterday's temperature table looked as though the Weather Bird had been studying algebra negatives.

One reason for forsaking automobiles was the fact that many machines had frozen radiators or balky motors. Large quantities of alcohol were sold openly—for radiators. The Automobile Club of Missouri reported an unusually large number of calls for help in starting members' cars.

Mercury and people were not the only shrinkers. Telegraph and telephone wires behaved likewise and their contraction caused many to snap. American Telephone and Telegraph Co. long-distance circuits between St. Louis and Kansas City, Detroit, Memphis, Louisville, Cincinnati and Cleveland were all broken yesterday. Only a few of the circuits between here and each of a number of cities were available. There are 98 long-distance circuits out of St. Louis, and at 7 a. m. yesterday 78 of them were out of order. At the same hour 67 out of 250 Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. long-distance circuits were out of order. Steady progress was made in effecting repairs. There was little local telephone trouble.

Trouble on Western Union telegraph wires was widespread, but little trouble was reported on the Postal system. There was general disorder on leased wires used by press associations and stock and grain brokers.

By way of compensation, the conditions that hindered wire communication were excellent for radio transmission and messages crackled through the air with great clarity.

A broken trolley wire, early yesterday, caused a McKinley System of sleeping cars to be tied up for several hours this side of Edwardsville. Its destination was Peoria.

Notable Fire 40 Years Ago With Weather Coldest on Record.

Just 40 years ago Friday night, Jan. 4, 1884, one of the notable fires in the city's history occurred—that of the old St. Nicholas Hotel Building, Fourth street, between Morgan and Franklin avenue. That was the night of the coldest weather on record here, and local histories record that the firemen tried to work with the temperature 26 degrees below zero and with a blizzard raging. One of the histories relates:

"Sufferings of the firemen were intense, nearly everyone having some member of the body frozen. The walls of the building where water was thrown to put out the fire were covered with ice two feet in thickness, with tracings of frost which made a spectacle that thousands crowded the street to see for days after. The sidewalk in front of the building appeared like an iceberg in miniature. One of the aerial ladder-trucks, which had been raised in front, had to be abandoned, being plated with tons of ice."

The building was not then used as a hotel, but was occupied by these stores: E. C. Lewis & Co., undertakers' supplies; H. B. Fabricius, toys; J. Morisse, hardware.

RICH. MAN SLAIN AFTER MEETING WITH WOMAN

Gunmen Said to Have Lured New York Realty Broker From a Subway Station.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Edward W. Dolge, wealthy Mount Vernon real estate broker, who died today of gunshot wounds after reporting he had been attacked by robbers last night, actually was shot down by gunmen, who followed him from a rendezvous with Mrs. Minnie Pachie, District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx and police officials declared tonight after examining two alleged witnesses to the shooting.

Dolge, whose wife was at his hospital bedside when he died, had known Mrs. Pachie for two years, the police learned. Instead of being fired on as he was entering a subway station, according to Dolge's ante-mortem statement, he was lured from the station and set upon, say the authorities.

Mrs. Pachie is 38 years old, and the wife of a Brooklyn department store floorwalker. She was quizzed by police tonight, with Charles S. Neilson, a former policeman, who now is an attendant at United States Veterans' Hospital No. 81.

Nielson is alleged to have been with Dolge a few hours before he was attacked, and to have spent considerable time with Mrs. Pachie up to six weeks ago when Dolge returned from a business trip to Brazil.

Dolge's last words, spoken just before he died, were addressed to his wife, who had hastened from their home in Mount Vernon to his bedside.

"I'm sorry to have caused this inconvenience," he said to her. "It's too bad for you to get up so early and come away down here."

Dolge also was manager of the Harlem River towing line and a prominent figure in lodge circles in New York and Mount Vernon. He was reputed among his friends to carry large sums of money often on his person, besides the valuable jewelry he wore.

The temperature here early tonight had dropped to 15 above zero.

PETITION NAMES GOETHALS FIRM IN TEMTOR SUIT

Alleged Reports Made by Engineering Firm Part of Papers Filed in Suit to Recover $1,000,000.

The two reports alleged to have been made by George W. Goethals & Co., Inc., on the Best-Clymer Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis and the Temtor Corn and Fruit Products Co. and dated within three days of each other in Sept., 1919, are attached to the petition in the suit for claims amounting to nearly $1,000,000, filed in the New York State courts in New York City.

The Goethals engineering firm, which is headed by the builder of the Panama Canal, is declared in the petition to have been employed in furtherance of an alleged conspiracy to defraud purchasers of the stock by misrepresentation of the proposition offered to investors. The petition also accuses M. G. Clymer, R. King Kauffman, C. Sewell Thomas and Samuel A. Mitchell of St. Louis and the New York investment firm of Kissel, Kinnicut & Co., of having had part in the alleged conspiracy.

St. Louis investors held a large part of the $4,500,000 stock issue of the Temtor Co., and about two-thirds of the $3,000,000 stock of the Best-Clymer Co., whose output the Temtor Co. controlled. Two previous suits have been filed against the officers and promoters of the Temtor and Best-Clymer companies, but the Goethals firm was named for the first time in the suit filed Wednesday.

Unfavorable Items Deleted.

The petition states that the Goethals firm, after a survey of the plant at Granite City and the properties of the Best-Clymer Co., made a report which, if made public, "would have manifested that the corporation to be organized and promoted was doomed to disaster, and would have seriously jeopardized, if not wholy thwarted, the accomplishment of the aims of the said plot." The petition charges that the Goethals firm was induced to render "for public consumption" a brief supplemental report, "deleting said unfavorable items, and giving the entire enterprise an unequivocal indorsement."

The first report of Goethals & Co., as it appears attached to the petition, is lengthy, and discusses in detail the value of the Granite City plant, its record of earnings for four years previous, the earnings of the Best-Clymer company for the same period, and the estimated future earnings. This report is dated Sept. 16, 1919, and is addressed to Kissel, Kinnicut & Co. of 14 Wall street, New York, and Pape, Potter & Kauffman of St. Louis.

The report says the plant in Granite City should be purchased for not more than $4,200,000, instead of the figure of $4,500,000, which had been suggested. It says the labor conditions in Granite City "at the best can be considered only fair."

Estimates Regarded Optimistic.

After detailed presentation of figures on past earnings and consideration of estimates of future earnings, the report says:

"We regard these as rather optimistic estimates, showing what may be earned under continuing favorable conditions, as, in our opinion, the record of estimate in the earnings of the combined properties, based on the best data available, covers probably the most profitable period of the food industry; and, in spite of the reduction in taxes, the percentage of net profits which will be earned in the future or will be permitted under proposed legislation, will have a downward tendency.

"The Granite City plant has, during the past four years, been operating at what may be accepted as its normal capacity, and there is no reason to anticipate any appreciable additional earnings, except as a result of extensions. We have, however, in estimating the profits, taken a rather heavy depreciation on value of the physical plants, $3,500,000. After making reasonable allowances for increase in earnings of the Best-Clymer plant, as a result of the present extensions, we are of the opinion that $1,500,000 net earnings per year, after taxes, may be safely anticipated from these properties under competent management. Additional earnings, above these, in our opinion, will result from favorable conditions or from extension to present properties.

Strong Financial Man Urged.

"We desire also to call attention to the fact that the new management for the combined properties will be to a certain extent experimental, and cannot logically be expected to obtain the best possible results immediately. We are of the opinion that Mr. Clymer is rather optimistic, and he has not had experience in the past in the operation of properties of anything like the size of those proposed in this combination. In view of this, we feel that the bankers should provide for a strong financial man in the organization who would protect the company from unwise expenditures of money."

The foregoing expressions were those which, in the opinion of the plaintiffs in the suit, would have "seriously jeopardized" the sale of the Temtor stock, if they had been made public. The second alleged report of Goethals & Co. is dated Sept. 19, 1919, and is addressed to the same New York and St. Louis investment concerns as the first report.

The second report repeats some of the statistical matter and estimates of the first report, but does not repeat its counsels of caution. The latter part of the second report, embodying favorable conclusions, is:

"We estimate the earnings of the combined properties for the year ending Dec. 31, 1921 at $1,712,000, which will reflect the actual operations of the addition to the Best-Clymer plant at 60 per cent of its capacity. These earnings will be at the rate of $8.56 per share on the proposed issue of both classes of stock, after all allowances, including $59,500 for dividends on Best-Clymer preferred stock.

"Issue of Superior Merit."

"In our opinion, the combined average earnings of the two properties for a period of some years beginning Jan. 1, 1921, will exceed $1,500,000 per year, or at a rate of $4 per share on the 193,050 shares of both classes of stock, leaving a surplus in excess of $668,300 or as applied to the Class A stock, the estimated earnings will be in excess of $10.47 per share after all allowances as above.

"The combination of the two properties possesses special advantages, as their combined operation will begin with raw material and end with the finished product delivered to the general trade, which should insure a better margin of profit and protect the company against interruptions in operation.

"We have investigated the management, have examined the properties, and, in our opinion, the proposed capitalization, based on past and estimated future earnings is fully justified and we regard the proposed issue of stock as one of superior merit."

The defendants in the suit filed in New York Wednesday are Kissel, Kinnicut & Co., and Edward T. Bedford, president of the Corn Products Refining Co. The St. Louisans named in the petition are described as "associates," though not made defendants, and they are accused of conspiracy to sell the stock at an excessive price. The Goethals firm is not named as a defendant, and is mentioned only as having been engaged by the alleged conspirators.

2000 Children Brave Cold to Attend Concert

instrument aloft, and there were cheers.

"And somewhere in a tree," the director continued, "a little bird is singing. The little bird is our flute player. He has two legs like a bird, and he plays as beautifully as if he had wings." The children giggled over this sally. "Finally the shepherds go out to battle for liberty. This is sometimes very trying, but here they win a victory, and everybody goes home satisfied."

The little auditors seemed to relish highly the storm and battle music, but fidgeted and chattered a bit during the landscape scene and the pastoral. This caused Eugene M. Hahnel, supervisor of music in the public schools, to arise and plead with the youngsters not to "wiggle." They replied with a chorus of "Yes, sirs," and handclapping.

Fun Over Instruments.

Then came the educational part of the program, which was devoted to an exposition of all the string instruments. Ganz introduced the violin by having a player sound the four open strings, and when this succession of fifths tickled the children's risibilities, the speaker convulsed them over again by saying, "That's a pretty melody." The viola, presented as the violin's elder brother, also sounded its quartet of strings, and then the violoncello was brought forward as "the biggest brother—the one that goes to college."

"Now for the father of the family, the doublebass," proceeded the speaker, and the instrumented grumble in an abysmal voice. "Ugh, ugh," several of the boys mimicked its tone. A doublebass with five strings instead of four was presented as the father's brother, a year older." This instrument sounded the lowest pitch of the whole string choir, and the children were asked if it didn't remind them of the bears in the Zoo. They cried that it did. The second violins were described as twins of the first violins, and the harp as a very good friend of the family.

Like the Lively Music.

To illustrate the first violin, Ellis Levy played the Meditation from "Thais." The viola number was the Berceuse from "Jocelyn," played by Jacques Tushinsky, and the violoncello was represented by "The Swan" of Saint-Saens, played by H. Max Steindel.

"Now father will come forward and do a little stunt for us," announced Ganz. "Father doesn't play very often, and perhaps he's nervous," he added, as there was a bit of delay. Then Otto Hyna came into view dragging his huge bass fiddle, and the children gasped, "'Oh, oh!'"

They had become quite restive during the violin, viola and violoncello numbers, which are sentimental and have no lively rhythms to make the feet of little boys and girls go pitty-pat. But the double bass struck their sense of humor with its gruff voice and elephant-like gambols. The number was Kukla's "Serenade," a duet in which Edward J. Hyna assisted his brother with the violin. This piece was directed by Frederick Fischer, who followed it with his transcription of a violin study by Josepn Mayseder, entitled "Ballroom Scene." It was very brisk and merry, and the volume of applause increased most perceptibly.

Ganz returned for Bolzoni's Minuet, written for all the string instruments. He explained the difference between bowed and plucked strings, both of which are illustrated in this piece. The announcement of "Shepherd's Hey," by Percy Grainger, as an extra was welcomed with shouts for this favorite of other seasons.

Hear Herbert Fantasy.

The program ended with Victor Herbert's "American Fantasy," built on "Suwanee River," "Dixie," "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and other patriotic and popular songs. At "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," part of the children stood as if thinking it the national anthem. All stood and sang the finale, "The Star Spangled Banner."

A few minutes later, and the tots were streaming out again into the cold, wrapped to the ears. Ganz held a little reception at the back, and numbers of the older children thanked him for the concert. One tiny urchin was discovered weeping. He had lost a penny of his carfare. The coin was supplied, and he departed rejoicing.

Prize for Music Criticism.

Before the concert, Mrs. William John Hall, chairman of the National Junior Clubs of the National Federation of Music Clubs, told the children of prizes which the organization is offering for the best 500-word criticisms submitted before June 15 by boys and girls between 13 and 18 upon three pieces of music heard this season. The prizes will be $25, $15 and $10, with honorable mention for the next three competitors. Essays are to be sent to the office of the local orchestra, and are to be signed with fictitious names, which also must appear on sealed envelopes containing the writers' real names and addresses, and attached to the criticisms. Speaking concerning musical education, she said:

"For years children in other cities have been hearing the great orchestras of the country, but in most cities the children have to pay. Thanks to the Post-Dispatch, the children of St. Louis may hear their orchestra free of charge."

Associated with the Post-Dispatch in the enterprise is the management of the Missouri Theater, at Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue, which donates the use of the theater for these concerts without charge. Employes said that at 5 o'clock yesterday morning the temperature was 11 degrees below zero in the theater. But the structure was cosily heated by the time the concert began, so that the children were comfortable without their overcoats.

The theater also supplied a staff of ushers, who distributed programs, escorted the youngsters to their seats, and quelled one or two little outbreaks of juvenile spirits. The order kept by the children was mostly excellent, and almost to the last one they remained until the concert was finished. Noticeable among them for good behavior were several groups of children from parochial schools, in the care of nuns.

SLAB RECALLS MYSTERY OF FIRST ANGLO-AMERICAN COLONY

Purports to Tell of Virginia Dare, First White Child Born in What Is Now U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—One of the unsolved mysteries of history has been called to the attention of scientists of the Smithsonian Institution as the result of the discovery of a slab of lead here today three feet under ground, bearing an inscription which may throw light upon the disappearance of Virginia Dare, the first white child born in what is now the United States.

Digging in his back yard, Russell Kaufman uncovered the slab, which is one-eighth of an inch thick, 14 inches long and 6 inches wide. When cleaned by acid the following inscription, apparently cut with a hot instrument, was disclosed:

"Virgin Dare.
"Died here.
"Captif Powhatan.
"1590.
"Charles R."

DEADLOCK OVER CHIEF FOR 35TH DIVISION

Hyde Supporting Gen. Raupp, Kansas and Nebraska Backing Gen. Martin.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 5.—Missouri and Kansas, hereditary enemies for many decades in many things ranging up and down from football, are at grips again, this time over who shall be Major-General commanding the Thirty-fifth Division. This unit of the army is composed of National Guard troops in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska.

Although Missouri has more National Guardsmen than Nebraska and Kansas combined, the officials of those two states appear to have made a deal whereby they are supporting Brigadier-General Charles I. Martin of Wichita, Kan., against Brigadier William A. Raupp of Missouri for the place. This despite the fact that when the division was formed at Omaha Nov. 5, 1920, division headquarters was given to Missouri.

Raupp's Statement.

"Gov. Hyde has recommended me to the War Department for the place, and the matter is now in the hands of that department," Raupp, who is Adjutant-General of Missouri, said today. "So I do not care to say anything further."

In alloting the various troops of the division, Missouri was given one brigade of infantry, which the late Brigadier-General Harvey Clark commanded at its organization and to which command Raupp, as the senior Missouri Colonel, succeeded at Clark's death.

Kansas was allowed one brigade of artillery, of which Gen. Martin is commander, and Kansas and Nebraska each has a regiment of infantry in a split brigade, for which Col. Rowan, Adjutant-General of Kansas, recently was recognized by the Militia Bureau at Washington as Brigadier-General and commander. This left Nebraska, which in the beginning had supported Raupp for the division commandership, out in the cold.

Unite Upon Martin.

Lately it has been learned that officials of both Nebraska and Kansas have united upon Martin of Kansas, which Missouri military men do not understand, unless it should mean a shifting of Rowan to command of the Kansas artillery brigade, in the event of Martin's elevation, with a consequent appointment for Adjutant-General H. I. Paul of Nebraska as commander of the Kansas-Nebraska split infantry brigade.

Appointment of the Major-General will be made by the Secretary of War upon advice of Major-General George C. Rickards, chief of the Military Bureau. He in turn had asked for recommendations of the Governors of the three states. Because of the conflict, he has instructed Major-General Duncan at Omaha, commander of the Seventh Corps Area, to convene a conference there of representatives of the three states to try to reach an agreement.

Hyde Not Likely to Yield.

Missouri military men, however, do not anticipate that Gov. Hyde will recede from his support of Gen. Raupp, whom he considers eminently qualified for the promotion, especially in the face of what Missouri guardsmen view as the superior claims of their State for division headquarters. Gov. Davis also has declared that he will stand pat. The obvious inference would be that no division commander will be selected until changes occur either in the governorships or in the high places at Washington.

Raupp, Missouri's candidate, has been in the National Guard since 1886, a period of 36 years, and has been an officer since 1892, 32 years.

All of the 47 different units Missouri was asked for organize for the Thirty-fifth Division, including tank, aircraft and other outfits requiring expensive outfits, have been organized and put into service. It is believed that neither of the other states has done as well.

MEXICAN INDUSTRY HARD HIT BY RAIDS UPON RAILROADS

Small Rebel Bands Trying to Destroy the Tracks — Traffic Disorganized as Result.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5 (Via Laredo)—Passengers and freight traffic of railroads has been disorganized lately, creating a rather strained industrial condition in the Federal district. The transportation of military forces, together with the appearance of small rebel bands near the railway tracks attempting to destroy the roads, has placed many trains behind schedule.

The Government has been rushing troops to disperse these bands in an endeavor to keep traffic open and to stamp out the banditry which is reappearing.

Factories in the Federal district, especially weaving mills, are beginning to close down because of a lack of raw material, the Compania Minera being the first to close. Labor organizations have suggested opening conferences with employers to discuss the situation together and obtain Government aid for the transportation of raw material. Leading importers have approached the Secretary of Finance, demanding permission to send special trains carrying white flags to bring merchandise that has been unloaded at Vera Cruz. Merchants are willing to pay twice the import taxes, settling with both the Government and the rebels, in view of the gradually increasing scarcity of foreign merchandise in Mexico City and the injury to their interests.

The food situation, although never serious, is being relieved as the prime necessaries are being brought from the United States by the commission regulating the price of foodstuffs, which beginning Monday, will start a sale of corned beef, flour and beans arrived from the border.

It was officially stated that rebel forces commanded by Manuel Dieguez appeared in the vicinity of Leon, 30 miles northwest of Guanajuato, evidently with the intention of taking the city. The War Department ordered Generals Eulogio Ortiz, Rodolfo Galleges and Julian Medina to fight off the rebels. It is believed a battle is now being waged.

De La Huerta Orders Purchase of Arms for Rebels in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—Dispatches today from Washington, quoting officials as saying there was no provision of law against arms purchases unless there is evidence of a conspiracy to use American soil as a base for operations against friendly foreign powers, resulted in instructions from Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican revolutionary leader, to his agents here to purchase and assemble immediately a large quantity of war munitions in New Orleans, says the New Orleans Daily States.

The substance of the dispatch was cabled to Vera Cruz by Teodore Frezieres, revolutionary government agent here, and De La Huerta replied immediately with instructions to purchase 3,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 5000 rifles, 10 machine guns and 1,000,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition. At the same time, declares the newspaper, funds to cover the purchase were cabled to a New Orleans bank.

Frezieres immediately called upon Department of Justice officials here and told them of his intention to purchase the munitions, the newspaper added, and followed it with a visit to police headquarters for the same purpose.

Many Casualties Among Rebels Reported by Federal General.

By the Associated Press.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Jan. 5.—Military reports of Gen. Caraveo on the battle between his forces and those of the rebel leader Figueroa, at Zocoalpan, received today by the Mexican Consul here from the sub-secretary of the Foreign Office, state that a large number of the enemy were killed and many captured in the defeat of the rebels.

President Obregon has ordered a strong military force to depart at once in an attempt to regain Tuxpam and the remainder of the oil district, and the success of these operations is expected momentarily, the dispatches state.

5000 Federals to March Against Rebels in Oil Region.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPICO, Jan. 5.—Five thousand Government troops under command of General Espinosa Cordoba arrived here today from various points to march against rebels in the oil region. The column, which consists of two battalions of infantry and artillery, will leave tomorrow, beginning an immediate attack upon the rebels and initiating an advance toward Tuxpam, 90 miles south of Tampico. Vessels arriving from Tuxpam, which is under rebel control, are being detained here.

Farmer Senators Who Take Their Exercise at Wood Cutting

CONVENTION CAMPAIGN TO OPEN TOMORROW

Workers Will Seek to Raise $100,000 to Bring Democratic Gathering Here.

The three-day drive to obtain the balance of the $100,000 minimum fund sought in the campaign to bring the Democratic national convention to St. Louis opens at 9 a. m. tomorrow, when members of the active Finance Committee of 100 assemble at the Chamber of Commerce.

Each worker will be furnished with the names of unsolicited prospects to be visited during the morning. Reports of the morning's work will be presented at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce. Mayor Kiel, W. Frank Carter, general chairman of the Campaign Committee, and W. Palmer Clarkson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will speak.

The Jefferson Barracks band will play selections and members of the chorus of the Music Box Revue will be present.

The solicitation work will be continued Tuesday and Wednesday morning and reports will be presented at luncheons on each day. As is known, $51,000 of the amount sought has been pledged.

Convention's Importance Stressed.

Statements commenting upon the importance of the convention for St. Louis were made yesterday by several leading business and professional men as follows:

W. Frank Carter, attorney and chairman of the Citizens' Committee supervising the $87,000,000 bond issue expenditures: "St. Louis has never fallen down on anything she set out to accomplish and this is not the time to start. This is a chance to further show the nation that St. Louis is an up-and-coming metropolis that wants the convention is going to get it."

E. D. Nims, president Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.: In the past few years St. Louis has gained a reputation for civic progressiveness second to no other city in the nation and it will be a sad commentary upon our civic foresight if we do not immediately pledge the necessary funds and send a committee to Washington to present the strongest possible arguments to bring about the desired result.

Carl F. G. Meyer, president the Advertising Club: New York would give a million dollars to have the Democratic convention held there. What we spend will be returned tenfold in actual expenditures of delegates.

Political Highlight of Year.

John G. Lonsdale, president National Bank of Commerce: This convention will undoubtedly be the political highlight of the year and, as usual, will be a publicity source of greatest value to the city in which it is held. As a business enterprise, or a matter of civic progression and advertising, the move to land it must succeed.

W. Palmer Clarkson: There is no doubt that the distinction and prestige of the city selected for the convention will be materially increased. Delegates will spend many times the amount required to get the convention and in addition there is the fact that the name "St. Louis" will be carried on date lines and in stories in newspapers and magazines throughout the world.

Aaron Fuller, president Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co.: The eyes of the political world would be centered upon this city for several days at least and if it was worth while to raise the money to bring the air meet here for three days it certainly is the logical thing to bring the Democratic convention here.

YOUTH HELD AFTER POKER GAME HOLDUP

Howard Herndon Arrested Here Following Robbery of Dent County Farmers.

'Twa sthe night after Christmas and 10 Dent County farmers were gathered at the farmhouse of Columbus Holbrook playing poker. Among them was Howard Herndon, 20 years old, who had ridden horseback from Gladen, 10 miles away, and whose luck was bad. He quit in a huff at 10 p. m. and went home. Three hours later the nine remaining players were held up by two masked robbers who shot out the lights, took about $100 in cash and fled on horseback.

The nine farmers are so positive that one of the bandits was Herndon that they agreed to plead guilty to gambling and pay fines for gambling if he is prosecuted. Last Thursday he was arrested in St. Louis and last night Constable H. H. Medlock and Prosecuting Attorney John M. Stephens came here to get him.

Salem has been having a good laugh for the last week at the rage of the nine complaining witnesses, Stephens said last night. They are all positive, he says, that the robbers were Herndon and Will Steers, a former convict, who also lives at Gladen. They recognized Steers' voice during the holdup and Herndon's oil-cloth mask slipped from his eyes once during the robbery, he declared.

Besides, it was a bright moonlight night and two horsemen mounted on one horse were seen galloping on the road to Gladen. A farmer identified the riders as Herndon and Steers, according to Stephens.

Herndon boarded a train for St. Louis two days after the holdup, it is alleged, while the nine men were deliberating on whether to prosecute. When they agreed to plead guilty to gambling, Stephens issued warrants and communicated by telephone with the St. Louis police. Herndon was arrested Thursday at a rooming house at 305 North Twenty-third street.

Herndon, at Central District holdover, welcomed Stephens with a smile and admitted only that he was in the poker game. He denied the holdup.

GIFT OF $25,000 FOR WASHINGTON U.

Mrs. Newton R. Wilson Supplements Previous Donation With Fund for Geology Building.

Mrs. Newton R. Wilson of Brentmoor Park has given Washington University a supplemental $25,000 for the full equipment of Wilson Memorial Hall, for the department of geology, for which building she previously gave $250,000.

Announcing this new gift yesterday, and outlining the building program of Washington University for the year 1924, Chancellor Hadley said:

"With this additional gift from Mrs. Wilson, which has made possible the completion and equipment of Wilson Memorial Hall, the work for the construction of the building has now begun and will add another beautiful building to the present university plant, to be constructed in the prevailing type of Gothic architecture.

"The plans for the construction of the William K. Bixby Hall for the School of Fine Arts are now being drawn and the contract for the construction of this building will be let probably in the course of the next 30 days. This building is to be constructed along classical lines, just to the south of the old Fine Arts Building, which will, of course, be torn down. While it will be a departure from the present type of architecture of the other university buildings, it will, it is believed, be appropriately adapted to the location and the general design of the university buildings. For this building Mr. Bixby, first vice president of the corporation, has given $250,000.

"With the construction of these two buildings upon the university campus, and the probable construction during the course of the coming summer of seven or eight fraternity buildings, we have a busy building program before us. The extent of the building program of the university also includes the medical school, where it is expected that the new maternity hospital will be built, and also additions to the present nurses' home, or a new building for that purpose. This will be necessary to make available the gift, announced yesterday by Dean Marriott of the medical school, of $650,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation for the establishment of the department of obstetrics. Altogether the cost of these several buildings will exceed $1,500,000.

"The construction of these fine new buildings will indicate the substantial and continued growth of Washington University."

CHIPPEWA BANK HAD $2,282,819 DEPOSITS

Figures Compiled by Examiners Show Decrease of $200,312 Since Sept. 14.

Deposits in the Chippewa Bank, 3801 South Broadway, totaled $2,282,819.71 on Dec. 20, last, when the bank was closed and turned over to the State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh, after Joseph S. Carr, deposed cashier, had admitted irregularities existed in his accounts in addition to others previously admitted, on which he had paid $34,000 in restitution.

These figures on the deposits, compiled yesterday by the State examiners now checking the condition of the bank, show a decrease of $200,312.18 in deposits since Sept. 14, last. A statement submitted by the bank to State Finance Department of its condition on that date showed total deposits of $2,483,131.89.

Deposits on Dec. 20, the audit shows, were as follows: Individual checking accounts, $841,974.53; time deposits, $574,253.95; savings deposits, $866,591.23.

Verification of the savings accounts has been in progress since last Wednesday, and during the same period the books of depositors with checking accounts have been taken up for balancing and examination of the accounts. Up to yesterday afternoon approximately 6000 of the 8500 depositors had presented their pass books. The bank will remain open daily this week for presentation of books and tomorrow night will remain open until 9 o'clock.

Pass Books Held Up.

Slightly more than 100 savings account pass books have been held up for checking of discrepancies, it was said, most of them involving small amounts. Balancing of checking accounts had been in progress for two days, but the balances have not been referred to the individual depositors for personal verification. Charles N. Gilles, examiner in charge, said this would be started tomorrow.

As has been related, bank officials, following the closing of the bank, stated preliminary examination indicated some of the irregularities were due to "juggling," or manipulation of inactive accounts on the individual account ledger. The balancing of all the accounts will bring these operations to light, it was said.

Amount of Shortage Uncertain.

The exact shortage in the bank's accounts will not be definitely determined, it was said, until the check has been completed on all of these accounts and verification of the loan accounts is made with the individual customers.

Verification of the validity of the notes, to ascertain if the element of forgery is involved, and checking of payments made on notes, will be started with the individual customers of the bank Tuesday, Gilles said. Inventories have been completed by the examiners of all the notes, payments credited and collateral deposited, as shown by the bank's records.

NEGRO FATALLY HURT IN DISPUTE OVER GLOVE

Said to Have Threatened Youth —Was Hit With Pick Handle.

Hit on the head with a pick handle during a quarrel over a lost glove, Fred Price, a negro, 35, 4144 Papin street, died late yesterday at City Hospital. Jesse Parr, 15, and his father, John B. Parr, 3515A Market street, teamsters for the Radio Coal Co., were arrested in the company's yard at 3915 Duncan avenue where the quarrel occurred.

The negro accused the younger Parr of stealing one of his gloves, they said, and drew a six-inch knife.

"I'll cut your head off," he shouted, according to the prisoners, when the father to protect his son hit him with the pick handle. He died within an hour of skull fracture.

Soviet Trade Body May Quit Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The entire Russian Soviet commercial organization in Paris, headed by M. Skobeleff representative of the Soviet commerce commissariat, it is reported, will be transferred to London soon. M. Skobeleff is at present in Moscow where a decision in this case is said to have been made. The reason for the Soviet attitude is found in the recent decision of a French civil tribunal that as France has not recognized the Soviet rule, acts of the Soviet representative have no legal validity in France.

False Modesty Wrecks Health

THE young lady just assuming the responsibilities of a woman is very apt to be self-conscious of her physical functions, and in consequence neglect them. There is no time, however, when it is more important for her to look after them. Chief among her troubles is constipation, and her suffering will be serious when she gets older if she does not regulate her bowels now. Mrs. Mary Kellar of 132 Benton St., Sisterville, W. Va., was perplexed about her daughter until her own druggist told her they used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at his house, and she did likewise. Miss Irene Mazierska of 90 Peter St., Buffalo, N. Y., is glad her attention was called to Syrup Pepsin.

Safe for Young and Old

Let mothers with growing daughters interest themselves in this matter and see that their judgment is enforced. A rule followed by many is to take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin once a week until the bowels function daily, and at such other times as there is headache, biliousness, sores and fever blisters, lack of energy and appetite, sleeplessness, indigestion.

A dose can be given in these conditions to any member of the family however young or old as Syrup Pepsin is a simple compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasing aromatics, and perfectly safe.

Public Recognizes Merit

You will quickly see the difference between a mild laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and castor oil, or rough cathartics and physics. Syrup Pepsin acts gently and does not gripe. Increased doses are not necessary. A bottle can be had at any drug store, and a spoonful costs less than a cent. It has been successfully used for thirty years and is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles having been sold in drug stores last year. Keep Syrup Pepsin in your medicine chest.

PROF. ROY S. DAILEY DIES

Was Head of a Department at Lindenwood College.

Prof. Roy S. Dailey, head of the department of education and psychology at Lindenwood College, died at St. Joseph's Hospital, in St. Charles, shortly after noon yesterday, following an operation for an intestinal ailment. He had been suffering from this ailment for some time, and had recovered from a similar operation in October.

Dailey, who was 33 years old, came to Lindenwood in 1920, after having been superintendent of the high school at Richmond, Mo. He was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1917 and a year later was given a master's degree and an additional bachelor's degree. Dailey's home is at Hale, Mo. He is survived by his wife, a son and a brother, Arthur L. Dailey, of St. Joseph, Mo.

PRESS OF NATION TO AID IN BOK PEACE PLAN POLL

Draft of Proposal on Which Prize Has Been Awarded Will Be Published Tomorrow.

TO TAKE VOTES OF CLUB WOMEN

Churches and Farm Organizations Request Copies of Plan—Arrangements Made for Poll at Hotels.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The winning plan of the American peace award will be announced through the press of the country Monday, Jan. 7.

With the publication of the plan will begin the referendum in which millions of citizens in every community will have an opportunity to vote.

One of the most direct means of balloting will be through newspapers. Daily and weekly newspapers will print the ballot with the text of the plan or a digest of it. The circulation of the dailies that have told the committee in charge of the award that they will print the ballot with the plan, totals 15,000,000.

These papers include the Post-Dispatch, as well as most of the other important papers of the country. More than 400 dailies in all states will print the ballot and the plan or a digest of it.

Editors of 7000 weekly papers, with a combined circulation of 7,000,000 also have written that they will print the ballot. Besides the newspapers, 400 magazines with a total circulation of about 5,000,000 will carry the ballot.

Many cities are making an official matter of the referendum and Mayors are appointing committees to conduct the vote.

A telegram from Cleveland says that the announcement of the referendum will be made in all Protestant churches tomorrow, and that 40,000 copies of the plan and ballots will be placed in theaters, moving picture houses and hotels.

Women's Clubs to Help.

Women's clubs, in every state, by action of the directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will receive copies of the plan and a ballot for each one of their members, a total of 1,500,000, with a letter from the president of the General Federation.

Through the American Council on Education, arrangements have been made to have universities and colleges take the referendum among faculties and 700,000 students.

Ministers, through the action of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, will receive copies of the plan and a multiple ballot. The ministers will appoint special committees of their congregation to see that each member has an opportunity to vote.

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations has sent in orders from every large city in the country. The National Catholic Welfare Council will present the plan to every one of its constituent bodies. Some of the farmers' organizations are sending out ballots to each of their members.

Voting in Hotels.

Thousands of hotels will give their guests and employes an opportunity to vote by having ballot boxes on the hotel desk or in the lobby.

Seven hundred libraries have sent in orders for the plan and ballot, in some cases requesting as many as 100,000 copies.

Department stores, insurance companies and industries of all kinds have arranged to take the referendum among their employes and, in the case of the department stores, among patrons.

The Reading Railroad, through its president, Agnew T. Dice, announced that the referendum would be conducted among 30,000 employes.

DISASTER AT LUNCH HOUR

Corn Products Men Eating When Explosion Occurred.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Ill., Jan. 5.—Disaster overtook the workmen in the Corn Products plant, where two buildings were destroyed by a dust explosion early Thursday, as they sat with dinner buckets before them. Walter Stewart, who is suffering from burns, told today of a brief warning. "We were all sitting together eating lunch," he said. "It was about 3:30. We were talking and joking as usual when there was a loud puff. Some said, 'What's that?' and looked at each other, without moving. Then the explosion came. How I got out is more than I know."

With 24 or 25 men still missing, the identified dead increased in number to eight today with the deaths of Earl Griffin and Theodore Pickerel.

Cured His Rheumatism

In the year 1893 I was attacked by muscular and sub-acute (inflammatory) Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them 70 to 80 years old and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatism to try this home treatment for its remarkable healing power. Do not send a cent, simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it, and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of your rheumatism, you may send me the price of it, one dollar, but understand I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. # HAWES TELLS WHY HE SUPPORTS TAX CUT

Asserts There Should Be No Partisanship in Matter of Mellon's Proposal.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—In explanation of his stand for the Mellon tax reduction plan, Representatives Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis today made the following statement:

"There should be no partisanship in the matter of tax reduction. There was little partisanship during the war; none should exist in a return to normal. Our present heavy tax burden is the result of the war.

"Two Democratic Secretaries of the Treasury under the Wilson administration made practically the same recommendations as those now advanced by Secretary Mellon. As a Democrat, I shall not be frightened from support of a plan simply because it is renewed by a Republican official.

"I am not concerned with who proposes a measure as much as I am with the merits of the proposal. If it squares with American fundamentals and is fair and beneficial, it should be supported because of its merits, not because of its name.

"Very few Cabinet officers actually write laws. They are worked out in departments by trained experts of high ability and long Government training. These fine public servants are not known to the general public, and when a beneficial plan comes from their scientific and disinterested minds, their work is forgotten and the proposal carries the name of the Cabinet head. Some day these men will receive both the credit and emoluments to which they are entitled.

"These same disinterested minds made the same proposals under Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. Now is the time for their adoption.

For Fair and Equal Burden.

"There are certain forms of taxes, in addition to being a burden, are irritating and annoying. They are properly called nuisance taxes. Such as taxes upon club members, amusement taxes and transportation taxes. They should all be repealed.

"Taxes should be equally and fairly distributed. When this is not done the burden will be shifted, so that all must ultimately pay. Unequal and burdensome taxes are passed down by the more fortunate and finally are paid by the less fortunate, and the full burden is borne by the average man and woman. This has been demonstrated so many times that it cannot well be disputed.

"While not so readily discernible, it will be found in increased cost of housing, food, clothing and transportation, which everyone must pay. We may not call this increased cost of living a tax, but it carries the same burden. And the housewife finds it in her coal bill, light bill, grocer's bill, rent bill, and it comes in the bill of the doctor and the lawyer.

"The tax upon income created by the brain or muscles of men and women should be largely reduced. There are years spent in preparing for the work of brain and brawn. There are years when this preparation pays, and there are years when old age comes, or sickness interferes, when capacity decreases and income production stops.

Like an Old Age Pension.

"This meritorious reduction upon earned incomes removes the penalty from the producing years of a man's life. It is in a way something related to an old age pension, because it enables a man to lay away during his 'fat' years and provide for the 'lean' years which come with sickness of advancing age.

"If our earned income reaches the point of capital for investment, then that capital invested commences to pay like any other investment, so the original reduction is equaled. Our dollar has declined in purchasing power to less than 60 cents, a drop of 40 per cent. The man with an income of $1000 can buy with it only $600 in life necessities. The income of $10,000 has dropped in value to $6000.

"A Congressman has an income of $7500. It has a purchasing power today of $4500. In effect, his salary has been reduced $3000 a year. If the American dollar drops another 10 cents in buying power it will be on a par with the Mexican dollar.

Restore Dollar to Old Value.

"One way to restore the dollar to its old value is to decrease taxes. A reduction of taxes should be the first move made by Congress. Normal conditions cannot be restored until Congress gives us a normal tax rate. The high cost of living is largely affected by a high tax. The treasury experts report that we can now cut our tax bill $300,000,000. Why should it not be done? If it is the sole accomplishment of Congress, it will be enough. It will help restore the purchasing power of the dollar; it will help reduce the high cost of living; it will give the man who earns his income fresh hope; it will take some of the irritation out of life and give the whole nation an exhilaration by releasing $300,000,000, to be put into the farm, the workshop, the factory, in trade and transportation.

"It will help wherever anything is grown, made, bartered or sold."

PAY COSTS IN FUR SALE CASE

Four Commission Firms Charged With Selling Skins Without License.

Four commission companies paid costs Friday in the Court of Criminal Correction before Judge Miller upon the dismissal of charges that they offered furs for sale without a State license. The charges were filed by State Deputy Game and Fish Warden W. A. Wiemeyer, who said that the companies had offered hides and furs for sale.

The companies were the Emil Heitz Commission Co., 716 North Third street; Fisher Produce Co., 801 North Third street; J. A. McLain & Bros., 711 North Third street, and New Market Produce Co., 933-35 Notrh Fourth street.

Mrs. Kindrick Made $70.00 On Chickens

Once Sickly, Now Making Money Besides Doing Housework

"I had pains in my side and could hardly do my housework. One doctor called it appendicitis and another 'female trouble.' I began taking Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) and in two weeks I began to feel better. Now I do all my housework, raised and sold $70 worth of chickens and worked two gardens. I cannot say too much for Adlerika." (Signed) Mrs. O. Kindrick.

A Treacherous Disease.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection, because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. The same procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows: It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports from Physicians.

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and Enderle Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The Best Cough Medcine You Ever Used. A Family Supply Easily and Quickly Made. Saves About $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clairfied molasses, honey or corn, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptyl heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid fro bronchitis, croup hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes.

RIVERVIEW CLUB HEAD FACING PROSECUTION

Losers in Stock Deal Complain to Prosecuting Attorney.

Charles P. Van Graafeiland, oil broker and president of the Riverview Club, faces prosecution under the blue-sky law as a result of complaints made to the Prosecuting Attorney by men who went into a deal with him and came out angry.

The warrant, issued yesterday, charges him with the sale of stock in the Marigold Oil & Refining Co., which, it is alleged, was not listed with the State Finance Department, as required by law.

One of the chief complainants was Herman Spoehrer, secretary of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., who is said to have lost $1200 in his dealings with Van Graafeiland. Spoehrer asserts that the Marigold stock he bought was misrepresented to him, and that after he complained to Van Graafeiland the latter attempted to trade him stock which also was no good.

A number of prominent St. Louisans, many of them members of the Riverview Club, were reported to have lost an aggregate of $200,000 in Marigold stock. The concern now is in the hands of a receiver.

Van Graafeiland, who declares that he lost $100,000 in the speculation, has insisted that it was a legitimate deal.

TESTIMONY HEARD ON AWARD OF "RICHEST OIL SECTION"

Government Departments Said to Have Been Present When Standard Company Made Application.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—All interested Government departments were represented at the hearing before Albert B. Fall, as Secretary of the Interior, which resulted in the allocation to the State of California of Section 36, naval oil reserve No. 1, according to testimony today before the Senate public lands committee. That section has been described by experts as holding the most valuable oil lands in the world.

Joseph J. Cotter, vice president of the Pan-American Petroleum Corporation, who participated in the hearing as the representative of the Doheny interests, said the conference included also Assistant Secretary Tinney of the Interior Department, and officials of the navy and justice departments and the land office. They were all given opportunity, he said, to oppose the application of the Standard Oil Co. of California for confirmation of the title it had obtained from the State, but no evidence in rebuttal was submitted and Secretary Fall then made his decision.

Charges made in the course of the committee's inquiry into oil reserves, that the lease to reserve No. 1 in the Elk Hills of California, was awarded to the Doheny company without publicity, led to the production today, at the instance of Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, of numerous items on the subject appearing in newspapers of that date.

P. R. Tinker, president of the Chase Securities Co. of New York, explained that his company's connection with the development of various corporations by Harry F. Sinclair, lessor of reserve No. 3, Wyoming, had been nothing more than any ordinary financing operations of the bank.

SEINE FLOOD IS ABATING

Paris Still Anxious Because River Is Undermining Buildings.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The Seine flood is abating, the dropping of the waters coinciding with a sharp frost. Late this afternoon Gen. Gouraud, Military Governor of Paris, visited the inundated quarters of the capital and congratulated the soldiers on their work of rescuing many families.

Mlle. Trocquer, Minister of Public Works, inspected the suburbs, where conditions are lamentable, hundreds of families having been driven from their homes and exposed to biting winds and arctic temperature. Army engineers are laboring to supply shelter for every one by tomorrow. The drop in temterature saved Paris from a much greater catastrophe than has befallen. Had the heavy snow in the Marne Valley and the upper district of the Seine melted, as was feared, it would have pushed the level of the river far above the record level of 1910, but it now is believed that danger of such a disaster is past. The collapse of the retaining wall at the Invalides railroad station this morning causes much anxiety, indicating the water is undermining walls, streets and buildings.

ALLEGED I. W. W. SENTENCED

Convicted of Violating Injunction Restraining Distribution of Radical Books.

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 5.—E. Wood, alleged member of the Industrial Workers of the World, arrested for violation of a Superior Court injunction restraining the distribution and display of books teaching or suggesting criminal syndicalism, sabotage or direct action, was found guilty today. He was fined $250, in default of which he must serve 125 days in jail. Wood offered no defense.

Affidavits filed by police who arrested him declare that Wood had admitted he was a member of the Industrial Workers of the World and that I. W. W. literature was found on his person. Wood's conviction is the first in the State on contempt charges alleging violation of the injunction.

BRIEF BY C. OF C. ATTACKS RAILWAY MERGER PROPOSAL

Argument Filed With I. C. C. Says Ripley Plan Is "Overloaded With Chicago."

REMOVAL OF MARKET "CORNER" IS URGED

Contention Advanced That Proposed Merger Would Violate Transportation Act of 1920.

A brief and argument setting forth the opposition of the Chamber of Commerce to the proposed consolidation of the country's railroads into a number of great systems has been filed with the Intersate Commerce Commission.

The consolidation scheme is the Ripley plan, which was prepared for the I. C. C., and on which numerous hearings were conducted It will be remembered that representatives o fthe commission held a hearing here last May.

Specific objections of St. Louis interests to the consolidation idea acrose from the proposal to merge the Frisco, Cotton Belt and Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines into one system, and the proposal to link southwestern lines with St. Louis-Chicago lines. The latter suggestion was attacked as one which would result in making St. Louis a "way station," removing its commercial prestige and having an actual depressing effect on St. Louis business for certain economic reasons. The merger of the three roads mentioned above was attacked as a plan that would destroy life-giving competition.

"Overloaded With Chicago."

The brief and argument were prepared by the following Chamber of Commerce representatives: P. W. Coyle, Traffic Commissioner; R. D. Sangster, Industrial Commissioner, and Glendy B. Arnold of counsel. Their conclusions at the end of the document are:

The Ripley plan is overloaded with Chicago. It is neither to the public nor carrier interest that railroad terminal congestion should be increased in the Chicago district, as would follow the inauguration of this sweeping scheme in the Middle West;

It is not large systems that the country needs so much, notwithstanding the attractiveness of diversified traffic, as intensive, economic development promoted by good, local transportation service;

The country has never demanded such a colossal plan of railroad consolidation as the commission has laid out;

The transportation conditions existing when the idea crept into the law have largely passed and given way to a more prosperous railroad situation, with a healthy outlook, provided the principles of the 1920 act in other respects are continued;

As a result of the commission's series of hearings, apparently very few communities or carriers favor the plan, except through self-interest;

Transportation, while it is a universal service, touches the public, essentially, in a local way. The subject can only be dealt with—in the way of consolidation—piecemeal; it is out of the question to expect the country to swallow such a comprehensive plan at one gulp and to assimilate it;

Amendments Urged.

The law should be amended, withdrawing the direction to the commission to prepare and propose a plan, so that it would thus remove the constructive market "corner" that it has placed upon a large number of railroads, for sale or merger purposes;

Permissive consolidation should remain, and be developed along natural and logical lines, subject, in every instance, to the scrutiny and approval of the commission, after due and full public hearing.

The brief rehearsed chief facts brought out in the St. Louis hearing and presents exhibits of statistics. The argument declares that the proposed merger in question would violate the transportation act of 1920, which provides: "Competition shall be preserved as fully as possible, and, wherever practicable, the existing routes and channels of trade and commerce shall be maintained."

Coyle said last night that he does not expect a decision in the case for a long time and he predicted that eventually solution of the problem will be up to Congress.

Our Big Annual After-Inventory Sale

Once a year, in taking our annual inventory, there are hundreds of items which we find we have too much of—or, perhaps, slightly shopworn. As is our custom, we set aside two days for housecleaning, and regardless of what they cost us, make prices that will do the work in two days. This is one sale where you save real money.

A GREAT OPTICAL SALE

A real stylish—all shelloid frame—with big round crystal lenses. An actual $9.00 value.

In order to have a sale eclipsing any optical sale ever made in this city, we induced a noted manufacturer to sacrifice his profits on 720 of these beautiful Frames. There is no metal showing—nothing but shelloid to be seen. $9.00 is as low as we have heard of them being sold, and $12.00 is not an unusual price. They will be fitted with the large crystal spherical lenses—after a careful free examination of the eyes by our expert optometrist, Dr. Edwin Cohn—everything complete at the remarkable price of $3.90

Giants Buy Pitcher Dean Of Louisville

Reported Purchase Price Is $50,000 and Players—McGraw Outbid Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers—Coombs Not Disposed Of.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The New York Giants tonight announced the purchase of Wayland Dean, star right-handed pitcher of the Louisville club of the American Association, and one of the most-sought-after of minor league moundsmen.

Except to admit that both cash and players were involved, the Giants did not disclose details of the deal, but it was understood in baseball circles that the National League champions parted with the equivalent of about $50,000 for Dean, who won 21 games and lost eight last season, ranking second in effectiveness among American Association twirlers.

The players whom the Giants will send to Louisville as part payment will be named later. Under the compromise agreement reached between the majors and the American Association, they will be subject to draft.

In taking their first important step toward bolstering the pitching staff that virtually collapsed against the Yankees in the last world series, the Giants obtained Dean by outbidding a number of rival clubs, including the Brooklyn Dodgers and Yankees. The announcement, however, came as a surprise because J. J. Tierney, secretary of the Giants, denied yesterday the National League champions were bidding for the Louisville stars

Won 21, Lost Eight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 5.—Announcement tonight from New York of the purchase by the Giants of Wayland Dean, pitching ace of the Louisville Colonels, marked partial culmination of negotiations for sale of two of the Louisville ball club's stars, Dean and Earl Combs, outfielder.

Dean, who is a husky right-hand pitcher, 21 years old, is a native of Huntington, W. Va. He goes into major league diamond company with an apprenticeship of two years in professional baseball.

When he joined the Louisville club of the American Association in 1922, Dean was sent to the Daytona club of the Florida State League. He experienced only a fair season while twirling for the Daytona club, with a record of eight games won and six lost.

Starting the 1923 season in the spring training camp of the Colonels, Dean got away to a flying start and carried through the season with a series of sparkling performances on the mound. He was credited with a record of 21 games won and eight lost.

Details concerning the consideration involved in the sale of Dean were withheld by the management of the Louisville club.

SWEDEN MAY PROTEST MEMBERS OF AMERICAN OLYMPIC SKI TEAM

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 5.—Sweden doubts the eligibility of three American skiers who are trying out for the American Olympic team here and probably will protest them if they are sent to France.

This became known late today when F. W. Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee and also of the A. A. U., wired R. G. Leighton of the Minneapolis Park Board, recreation department, a member of the American nominating committee, a duplicate of the message he dispatched to L. J. Sverdrup, president of the National Ski Association in Waverly, Mo.

The telegram read:

"Have wired Sverdrup as follows: 'Swedish ski jumpers and newspaper correspondents question eligibility of Hansen, Haugen, Omtvedt. They probably would be protested abroad. Are you quite sure your nominated men will be eligible under the rules of International Ski Federation or Commission.'"

The skiers referred to are Hans Hansen and Anders Haugen of Minneapolis, and Ragnar Omtvedt of Grand Beach, Mich.

Wightman Will Succeed Davis As Tennis Head

Boston Man, Now Vice President, Nominated by U. S. L. T. A. Committee.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—George W. Wightman of Boston is slated to succeed Dwight F. Davis of Washington as president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. His selection by the nominating committee of the U. S. L. T. A. was announced tonight and his election is regarded as a certainty at the annual meeting of the association to be held here February 2.

Mr. Wightman has served as vice president of the association for the past year, assuming, however, practically the entire burdens of the presidency since the appointment of Mr. Davis, donor of the famous international trophy bearing his name, to the post of assistant secretary of war. The Boston man for years has been closely identified with the governing tennis body and devoted a large share of his time to the interests of the game.

Jones W. Mersereau, of New York, has been nominated to succeed Mr. Wightman as vice president, while Paul B. Williams of Utica, N. Y., and Louis B. Dailey of New York, are slated for reelection as secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Other selections on the official slate of the nominating committee, of which L. H. Waidner of Chicago, is chairman, are:

Delegates-at-large, for two year terms: Harry S. Knox of Chicago; E. J. Wuensch, Indianapolis; R. Clifford Black, New York.

Former presidents, serving in advisory capacities: George T. Adee, Henry W. Slocum, Robert D. Wrenn; Julian S. Myrick, Dwight F. Davis.

Nominating committee for 1925: J. C. Auchinloss, chairman, New York; Harry S. Walsh, Chicago; Charles S. Garland, Pittsburg.

Only two sectional associations so far have picked official delegates to the national organization. They are: J. B. Adoue, Jr. of Dallas, Tex., representing the Southwestern L. T. A. and C. Drummond Jones of St. Louis, representing the Missouri Valley L. T. A. The New England, New York, California and Northwestern sections have yet to make selections.

YALE'S FIVE-MAN DEFENSE WINS FROM NORTHWESTERN, 34—13

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Yale's basketball team defeated the Northwestern quintet, 34 to 13, here tonight in a game featured by the Eastern team's five-man defensive tactics that the purple were unable to penetrate. Yale took the lead soon after the start of the game and was never in danger of being passed. The score at the half was 15 to 8. Pite's accurate shooting for Yale featured. He got eight baskets and two free throws.

MALLORY TO SPEAK AT YALE ALUMNI DINNER

William F. Mallory, captain of Yale's 1923 football team, considered one of the best in the country, will speak at the annual dinner of St. Louis-Yale Alumni Association tomorrow night at the University Club. Dean F. S. Jones of Yale College, a former Missourian, will also address the Association members.

Mallory has been a member of the Yale football team for the past two seasons and was catcher on the baseball team in 1922 and again last year. He is a native of Memphis, Tenn., and is but 21 years old.

HANLEY EXPECTS TO COACH HASKELL AGAIN

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 5.—Dick Hanley, coach of the Haskell Indian team which played the Olympic Club of San Francisco at Los Angeles on Christmas day, took occasion while in Portland today en route to Spokane for a brief visit with his parents, to deny published reports that he has been engaged to coach at the University of Nebraska next year.

Soccer Games Are Called Off

Too Cold for Spectators, Officials Say—Vespers to Play in the East.

Because of the intensity of the cold wave, St. Louis Soccer League officials have called off the scheduled league double-header at High School Field today. Extreme cold cut down the attendance New Year's day, although the standard of play was as high as on a warmer day.

The fifth round national challenge cup game between the Vespers of the local league and the Harmarsville, Pa., club is scheduled to be played next Sunday at Harmarsville.

In the event that the cup match is played at Harmarsville it is probable that an Eastern team will be brought here for an exhibition game. President Winton E. Barker of the St. Louis Soccer League intimated yesterday that he will bring either the Bethlehem or the New York club here for the added attraction in the absence of the cup game. If either of these teams consents to the trip to St. Louis it will be sought to have them here both on Saturday and Sunday, to play picked teams on each day.

Would Play Here.

Manager Harry McCarthy of the Vespers yesterday received a telegram from Harmarsville asking him to name his terms for a transfer of the cup game to St. Louis. He said, however, that since all of his players are desirous of making the trip to the East, he will decline the privilege of entertaining the Harmarsville team.

"My lads have never had a good trip away from home and at their request I shall insist that the game be played at Harmarsville, which is near Pittsburg. We will leave Friday night and return Monday morning. If we are fortunate enough to remain in the competition for the final, we will play the game in St. Louis. Thus, not many more opportunities will be afforded for a trip East this season," said McCarthy.

Novel Carnival of Sports to be Held With Olympic Games

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 5.

AN immense international sport exhibition, the first of its kind, will be held in the Trocadero during May, June and July, in connection with the Olympic games.

Athletic equipment of all the countries in the world, from snow shoes to skates of Northern Canada to the primitive weapons used by the natives in hunting the lion in central Africa and the tiger in Bengal, will be included in the exhibition.

Central's Brilliant Spurt in Extra Period Defeats Yeatman

Thomas, Running Guard, Scores Four Successive Field Goals in Final Five Minutes of Play—Hunt's Foul Throw Ties Score.

Central furnished the real thrill of the opening double-header of the High School Basketball League games at Cleveland High auditorium last night, coming from behind in the extra period and scoring 11 points to win, 20 to 9. Yeatman was an apparent winner until the last minute of play in the fourth quarter.

Central was distressingly out of form through the regular minutes of play. It was not until the extra period that Doc Callan's team showed anything approaching championship caliber. Then, so furious was its attack that the Yeatman defense was ripped asunder and Thomas swept through to four successive field goals.

The outcome was startling and will go down as one of the strangest basketball contests ever played in the High School League.

It was the first time in the history of the league that the game was played under the "quarter" system of four eight-minute periods. Thomas obtained a field goal in the opening minute, but Yeatman took the lead with a field goal and a foul. The first quarter ended 3 to 2. Muchow scored twice for Yeatman, but Central also added two field goals and the first half ended 7 to 6. Cristal, who led the league in scoring last year, obtained his first basket from the field and put Central in the lead. However, Engler put Yeatman ahead, 9 to 8.

Tied in Last Minute.

With only one minute to play and Yeatman leading, it appeared certain that the champions were destined to lose. However, Hunt saved the situation when he scored the first foul goal that Central had been able to cage in 11 attempts. Ten times the Central men had failed on free throws and Hunt came through at last, with the score that tied at 9 to 9, and gave the Red and Black a chance to win later.

An extra five minutes of play was ordered in an effort to break the tie and in that interval Central piled up more points than it had been able to score in 32 minutes of regular play.

The efforts of Thomas, the running guard, were almost wholly responsible for the striking finish which put Central far into the lead.

Hannegan entered the game for about one minute at guard for Yeatman and immediately hurt his bad knee and retired. It is probable that he will be out for the season.

Cardinals Buy Allan Sothoron

Rickey Gets Former Spitball Star of Browns From Louisville Club.

The Cardinal baseball club last night announced the purchase of Allan Sothoron, pitcher, from the Louisville (American Association) club.

Sothoron was a member of the Browns from 1917 to 1921. He was at one time one of the most sensational pitchers in the American League, his greatest asset being a spitball. In 1919 he won 20 games and lost 12 for the Browns, but the next season he lost 15 while winning only 8. He was traded to Boston, sent back to the Southern Association and shipped back to Cleveland in 1921 and had a fair year with the Indians.

Last season he established a business here and did not report to Louisville until near mid-season. He was not worked very often and his record for the season was not impressive.

The Cardinal management announces that Sothoron will be used as a pitcher and not as a coach.

Sothoron has made his home in St. Louis ever since he was transferred by the Portland club to the Browns in 1917.

DEMPSEY ON AUTOMOBILE TOUR THROUGH FLORIDA

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 5.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, accompanied by his trainer, Teddy Hayes, left here today in the champion's automobile for Miami where he plans to spend a few days. He will stop over in Daytona for the night. He will tour South Florida for several days, more as a sight-seeing trip than for training reasons. He will only don the gloves from time to time to keep in condition.

The champion's plan for a round of golf was abandoned today because of severe weather conditions, as were also plans for a hunting trip.

He will return here within two weeks, it is thought, and be the guest of many boxing admirers and hunters who have offered every means for spending several days in the woods.

British Open Champion And French Champion Win by 7 and 5 Score

St. Louisan Turns In Best Card — Weather So Cold That Players Have Difficulty Gripping Clubs — Play Is at Times Brilliant but Erratic.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—Handicapped by a driving north wind that chilled to the bone, Arthur Gladstone Havers, British open champion, and his touring partner, Jimmie Ockenden, French open champion, easily defeated Walter Hagen, ex-British open champion and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn of St. Louis in a thirty-six hole match by a count of 7 and 5 at the West End Country Club today.

A large crowd braved the frigid elements to witness the international clash. It perhaps was better football weather than a day for golfing, but the stars tackled their task with vigor and satisfied the gallery with a dashing brand of brilliant golf, although somewhat erratic at times.

Mehlhorn, with a couple of good holes on his morning round, turned in the best card for the first lap of the course. He was out in 39, with a 37 on his inward journey. Havers covered the first nine holes in 40, to come in with a 39 for 79. Ockenden negotiated the distance in 38-41—79. Hagen turned in a card of 41-39—80.

Concordia Loses To Hanover, 20-14

Indiana College Team Exhibits Suptrior Passing Game—Score Tied at End of Half.

Concordia Seminary's basketball team succumbed to the superior passing game of the Hanover College team at Francis gymnasium last night, the visitors winning, 24 to 14.

Concordia held its ground in the first half, and at the interval the score was 10 to 10. Buchheimer's field goal kept the count tied at 12 to 12, but Hanover pulled away at that point and was never halted.

The game was well played with Schmidt and Buchheimer standing out among the local players and Powell and Cezar starring for Hanover. Cezar, captain of the visiting team, directed the play and at the same time played a good defensive game.

The score:

CITY HANDBALL TITLE TOURNEY OPENS JAN. 10

The National Athletic Association will start its second handball championship tournament Jan. 10. The individual event has been added and many leading players have signified their intention of entering. Many clubs will be represented in both the singles and the doubles.

The tournament will have the sanction of the A. A. U., the first that has been issued to handball in St. Louis. All players will be registered and all games will be played according to the Amateur Athletic Union rules. All players and clubs are advised to send in their entries as soon as possible to the National Athletic Association, 201A North Sixth street.

SOUTHERN BASEBALL MEN IN CONFERENCE TODAY

SHERMAN, Tex., Jan. 5—Baseball officials of several cities in North Texas and Southern Oklahoma will meet in Denison, Tex., tomorrow afternoon to attempt reorganization of the Texas-Oklahoma League, according to Max Gibbs, vice president of the Sherman club. Cities expected to be represented include Durant, Ardmore and Sapulpa, Ok., and Sherman, Denison, Paris and Greenville, Tex.

BOOTH, JOHNS HOPKINS STAR, WILL BE MAIN RELIANCE AT OLYMPICS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 5.—Famous coaches, one after another, have shaken their heads when Verne Booth, Johns Hopkins University distance runner, shuffled down the track, arms high and held close to his body. It was all wrong.

"He'll never do with that form," they unanimously agreed.

But today Booth is the hope of the country in the Olympics with Ritola returning to Finland. Ritola's departure leaves Booth at the head of the class. The only defeat Booth has suffered came at the hands of Ritola in the five-mile senior event at Chicago. Among Booth's victories is one over Joie Ray in a shorter distance event. Booth is intercollegiate and South Atlantic cross-country champion.

The Hopkins man runs anything from a half mile to a marathon. He entered a 10-mile street run and easily finished ahead. He planned on entering longer races but his coaches objected. They pursuaded him to stick to the shorter events and be eligible for the 3000, 5000 and 10,000-meter events in Paris. He reluctantly agreed for he liked the marathon idea.

Booth is awkward but consistent. He has remarkable sense of timing. He keeps the same pace from start to finish.

Booth works his way through school. He waits tables, tends furnaces and clerks in stores. No chore is too small for him. He's out to win and he has all of the earmarks of a winner.

Hoppe to Tour With Schaefer

Pair Will Probably Exhibit in St. Louis—Class "B" Tourney to Open.

Willie Hoppe, world's balkline billiard champion, and Jake Schaefer, former world's champion, will soon start upon an extended exhibition tour through the United States and Europe, according to word received here yesterday by Charles C. Peterson.

The pair will probably appear here this season. Peterson has been asked to specify at what time he can arrange for their appearance. The tour is being handled by Charles Tennes of Chicago.

According to advance literature, Hoppe and Schaefer will give exhibitions in three-cushion as well as balkline and fancy shots. Until last season Peterson himself was associated with Hoppe on such tours and the Hoppe-Schaefer team is a new combination.

Peterson may take to the road late this season. Although no definite arrangements have been made, his partner may be Edouard Horemans of Belgium, one of the recent challengers for Hoppe's title.

A three-cushion tournament for Class B players will be started at Peterson's within a week. Players who engaged in the major city championship tournament will not be eligible for the Class B event. Peterson expects to have at least 20 entries, to be divided into two divisions, the winners to play off for the title.

VanderpoolHeads Golf Association, Succeeding Byers

New President Against Modification of Stymie and Other Natural Handicap Rule.

FAVORS SLOWER BALL

Two Million Golfers Spent $217,000,000 for Supplies and Fees Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The election of Wyant D. Vanderpool of Newark, N. J., as president of the United States Golf Association; the approval of the dates set for the 1924 championship tournaments; the adoption of a new rule on punched and ribbed clubs, and the suggestion of the association's attitude on the questions of the stymie and the power of the golf ball, were the outstanding features at today's annual meeting of the U. S. G. A.

Reducing the power of the ball in order that play may become "real tests of golfing skill rather than tests of strength and endurance" was declared by J. Frederick Byers, retiring president, to be the most important problem with which the U. S. G. A. must deal.

Byers expressed the hope that there would be no letting down of the bars in respect to the stymie and other natural handicaps. His attitude was indorsed by President Vanderpool.

Approve Marking Rule.

The meeting unanimously approved the new rule to limit the markings on the face of iron clubs, which became effective Jan. 1. The rule is:

"Club faces shall not bear any lines, dots and other markings made for the obvious purpose of putting a cut on the ball, nor shall they be stamped or cut with lines exceeding one-sixteenth inch in width nor less than three-thirty-seconds inch apart, measured on their outside edges. Both line and dot markings may be used, either alone or in combination, with the above limitations, provided all rough and raised edges are removed."

The reducing of the power of the ball and the use of steel-shafted clubs are now being considered by the Implements and Ball Committee, which is expected to report within a short time.

Two million American golfers, who expended $217,000,000 last year in dues, permits, golf equipment and caddie fees, made the season of 1923 the most notable in golfing history and revealed the tremendous popularity of the game, according to the report of the Executive Committee.

Game Shows Fine Growth.

"Keen popular interest in this pastime is becoming more and more evident," said the report. "It has been estimated that the yearly increase in clubs averages about 30 per cent. This percentage, however, does not appear to provide the necessary facilities for all players on both private and public links. There are more than 3000 golf and country clubs and more than 2,000,000 golfers in the United States.

"The investment in real estate, buildings and construction by newly organized clubs during 1923 is estimated at $88,000,000, and the annual expenditures by members of all clubs for the same period for dues, permits, golf balls, supplies and caddies totals $217,000,000."

Retiring President Byers paid tribute to the Western Golf Association for its co-operation with the U. S. G. A. and spoke of the spirit of friendliness which existed between the two bodies. No mention was made, however, of the reported plan to combine the two in a national association.

ALLEN TO MANAGE ST. PAUL, AMERICAN ASSOCIATION CLUB

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 5.—Nick Allen, catcher with the St. Paul American Association baseball club, is to be Saints' new manager to succeed Mike Kelley, now manager of Minneapolis, it was announced tonight.

While John W. Norton, owner of the St. Paul club, said official announcement of the selection would not be made at present, he added that "I am almost certain it will be Allen."

"Allen will get the job unless something unforeseen happens within the next fe wdays," said Mr. Norton. "Allen is one of the smartest players in the league, is well liked by other members of the club and is a leader among his fellow athletes."

Mr. Norton said he had two other men still under consideration, Otto Miller and Art Griggs.

Allen came to St. Paul from the Cincinnati Nationals in 1921 in the deal that sent Catcher "Bubbles" Hargrave to the Reds. He was first-string catcher for the Saints in 1921 but when Mike Gonzales joined the club in 1922, Nick became second-string receiver. He was ill part of the 1922 season but performed well in 1923.

Savage to Coach 1924 Billikens, Board Decides

Seven Football Games Arranged—Missouri and Notre Dame Not on Schedule.

BY FRANK GAFFNEY.

Dan Savage, coach of St. Louis University athletics, was indorsed by the athletic board of the Billiken School yesterday and will be engaged to lead the Blue and White sports activities during the 1924 season. The choice of assistants will be left to Savage and it is very probable that the head coach will once more appoint Charley Rademacher, Jim Finnegan and Paddy Fitzgerald as his aids during the football year.

The athleic board also announced that it had closed seven football dates for the coming year and that two or possibly three games were pending. Seven schools are negotiating with St. Louis for the trio of dates, one of which is the Thanksgiving day engagement.

The Billiken schedule of this season will be of an entirely different construction from that of the past year. The 1923 dates provided three very "soft" contests for the locals and as a consequence the Billiken eleven was not given stiff preparation for its later games. This year the St. Louis aggregation will inaugurate the gridiron campaign with a series of touch contests. The opening fray will be against the Springfield Normals, which last year held Missouri University to a 10—0 score in the Tigers' opening game. Oct. 4 the Billikens journey to West Point, where the Army will be tested in the second contest of the year. Rolla School of Mines will be the third opponent of the Blue and White, and will meet the locals here on Oct. 11. The opponent of the following week, Oct. 18, is one of the pending contracts.

Detroit to Play Billikens.

Detroit University, which last year humbled the Gonzaga eleven of the Pacific coast in an intersectional game by a 13—7 score, and which held Washinfton and Jefferson to a 6—0 count, and the undefeated Marquette juggernaut to an 18—6 total will be the Billiken guest on Oct. 25. St. Xavier of Cincinnati, the team which trounced the St. Louisans by a 20-to-10 margin last year will be brought to St. Louis on Nov. 1, when the Blue and White hope to avenge the defeat.

Nov. 8 the Billikens will attempt to settle the tie game of Thanksgiving day, 1922, when the Michigan Aggies and St. Louis battled to a 7—7 dead heat. The Michigan eleven has been contesting with several Big Ten teams and has greatly strengthened its standing in the football world. The Oglethorpe University from Atlanta, Ga., has been picked as the opponent for Nov. 15. The team from the South is a regular rival of the strong Southern teams and last year played the Georgia Tech machine to a 28-to-13 count. Sewanee also defeated Oglethorpe by a tight count, the total being 13 to 0.

Nov. 22 and Thanksgiving day, Nov. 27, are still open on the St. Louis schedule, but final arrangements for these dates, together with the Oct. 18 date, will be made this week. Whether the Billikens will play the Saturday before Turkey day or not depends on the final choice for the Thanksgiving day game.

Missouri Game Definitely Off.

It was definitely announced by the Billiken board that the Blue and White will not meet either Missouri or Notre Dame this season. The Tiger authorities requested that St. Louis play at Columbia this season, but declined the conditional acceptance of the Billiken school. Notre Dame has decided to abandon Thanksgiving day football and the Billikens were unable to negotiate for the Saturday following Turkey day due to the fact that the local season terminates with the holiday game. The large guarantee demanded by the whirlwind team of Rockne made it impossible for the locals to contract for an early date.

The games announced are as follows:

Sept. 27, Springfield Normals, at St. Louis.

Oct. 4, Army, at West Point.

Oct. 11, Rolla School of Mines, at St. Louis.

Oct. 18, pending.

Oct. 25, Detroit University, at St. Louis.

Nov. 1, St. Xavier, at St. Louis.

Nov. 8, Michigan Aggies, at St. Louis.

Nov. 15, Oglethorpe U., at St. Louis.

Nov. 22 and Nov. 27, pending.

Schmidt Named Manager.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 5.—Charles Schmidt, who during the 1923 season was employed as coach of the Brooklyn Nationals, has been signed to manage the Springfield Midgets in the Western Association. Announcement was made today by Al Eckert, president of the club. Schmidt is a former Detroit catcher. He managed the Ft. Smith club of the W. A. in 1921 and '22.

Tee Shots Will be Decisive in Match With Havers, Sarazen Says

Gene Points Out That British Open Champion Is Famous for Long Drives but Believes He Can Match His Power—Havers Inclined to Sacrifice Accuracy for Distance.

By Gene Sarazen,
American Professional Champion.
(Copyright, 1924.)

It is my opinion that driving will come near deciding my special 72-hole match with Arthur Havers, British open golf champion, which will be played late next month in California. Havers crossed the ocean chiefly to play this engagement. He is the longest driver abroad and naturally is keen about his laurels. Dropping modesty for a second, I fancy that my tee shots on the average are about as long as those of any professional in this country.

The California courses with their firm surface certainly are built for long-range clouting and Havers and yours truly will undoubtedly be in their element. Extra distance off the tee is a mighty valuable asset if the ball stays on the fairway but if the drive gets in trouble then there is another story. What I saw and heard about Havers during my visit abroad last spring I believe the English champion occassionally falls into the damaging tendency of hooking his tee shots. Havers likes to take chances and passes up Harry Vardon's old tip that it is better to be on the fairway than 40 yards further with the ball in trouble.

Havers' driving style is considerably different from mine. He overlaps one finger on his left hand while my favorite grip is the interlocking. The English champion's stance is only slightly open; mine is wide open and perhaps is one of the widest straddles used by any professional in the United States.

Results Determine.

The invading title holder plays the ball rather well off his left heel. My method is to play the ball in a center line from both feet. However, it isn't for me to say which method is the best. Results only prove the efficiency of golf styles and it will be interesting to check on the tee shots in our encounter in California.

Accurate iron work is highly essential in a big match and many championships have been won and lost on the green, but the drive remains the most spectacular shot in the game and it is confidence or loss of nerve made on the tee that frequently affects all other strokes, and the result of an important encounter.

When a player is driving nicely all other shots seems to go better, at least he has more confidence when taking hold of an iron or putter. When tee shots are going off the line additional effort must be taken with the second shot and a strained shot seldom comes up to expectations.

There are mighty few who are so capable with their irons that they can purposely sacrifice distance from the tee. If my memory is correct, Harry Vardon was the last great champion who could successfully recover distance from the tee with his iron game.

The Mental Hazard.

It is very discouraging for anyone to be continually outdriven 20 or 30 yards in a match. This handicap means that on numerous holes the short driver must play wood on his second shot while the long hitter can get home with less risk with an iron. Somewhere along the route this handicap is bound to result in a lost hole or two.

The advantage of long driving was plainly seen in the play-off last July at Inwood for the national open title. Bobby Jones, who has no superiors in the amateur ranks in this country as a driver, drew for opponent Bobby Cruickshank, who weighs hardly 125 pounds and is one of the shortest drivers among the professionals.

Throughout the 18-hole play-off Cruickshank had to play his long wooden second shots with unusual skill to hold his opponent ever going to the green. The break never came until the eighteenth where Cruickshank badly fizzled his tee shot and Jones, after a beautiful drive, enjoyed the favorable position of seeing little Bobby take another shot and then only about coming up to his drive. This settled the match as Jones, confident and with the terrific strain lifted, sent a great second shot dead to the pin.

Getting back to my match with Havers it is my firm belief that the outcome will be decided more on the tee than anywhere else and personally I am impatient to test my driving skill with the long-range king from England.

Promoter James C. Mullen Plans Show Though Case Hangs Fire.

James C. Mullen of Chicago, who has promoted the last three boxing shows at the Coliseum here, will arrive in St. Louis today in advance of the hearing in his injunction case, set for tomorrow in Judge A. B. Frey's court. The temporary injunction was obtained by Mullen last month and restrained the police authorities and all State officials from interfering with the boxing entertainment at which Jack Dempsey gave an exhibtion. Arguments as to the right of Mullen to obtain a permanent injunction will be heard tomorrow, unless a continuance is obtained. The case originally was in Judge Landwehr's court. One continuance has been granted thus far.

Despite the unstable condition of the game, Promoter Mullen's friends here have been advised that he is going forward with a show set for Jan. 15, this date having been obtained from the Coliseum by the Angelica Physical Culture Club, which Mullen represents. Mullen has told friends that he expects to hold about the best show he has thus far arranged. The three performances already sponsored by Mullen were considered excellent entertainments. About the only bout in the three shows that was criticized unfavorably was that between Pal Moore and Champion Joe Lynch.

All other local promoters of boxing shows have been marking time pending the settlement of the Angelica Club case. The club, it is said, will make efforts to make its position air-tight by removing all cause for criticism of its legitimacy as a club. Informal opinions handed down by Attorney-General Barrett of Missouri a year or more ago, in replying to a request by the Elks for a ruling as to the organization's right to hold bouts for its members, indicated that clubs organized on a legitimate basis were within the law in holding boxing shows. The opinion also intimated that clubs organized solely to make money out of boxing, to which membership could be obtained within a few minutes of fight time, were not legitimate clubs within his construction of the law.

Olympic Body Declares War on Athlete-Writers

Definite Move to Bar Contestants Who Write Articles Is Disclosed.

DISTRACTS ATHLETES

Rubien Says Reporting Games Takes Too Much Time and Attention.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—On the heels of the move by the United States Lawn Tennis Association to declare ineligible players who write for newspapers and magazines, officials of the American Olympic Committee tonight revealed a plan to check activities by American athletes who participate in the Olympics at Paris this year.

"This action has been under consideration for some time; in fact, ever since the 1920 Olympics," declared Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the Olympic Committee. "A definite proposal to bar athletes from literary activities in connection with the games will be laid before the next meeting of the executive organization of the Olympic Committee."

It was said that a majority of Olympic authorities were in sympathy with the plan, and Mr. Rubien predicted that it would be indorsed.

Reduces Efficiency.

"I believe that it is contrary to America's best interests to have athletes on our Olympic team write accounts of the games for newspapers, magazines or other periodicals," Mr. Rubien continued. "Aside from the possible aspect of commercialism, I think such activity would take up too much of an athlete's time, and, in the end, be detrimental to his or her performances.

"It is all right for an athlete who does not make or try out for the team to go over and write accounts of the games. But team members should devote their entire attention to competition. The two things do not mix.

"I think several cases in connection with the last Olympic proved this sort or thing unwise and I know that since then sentiment has been crystallizing toward definite action."

The prospective action of the Olympic Committee, Mr. Rubien pointed out, is not aimed at any individual. It would apply to participants in all branches of Olympic competition.

KANSAS CITY CENSOR OPPOSES SHOWING OF DEMPSEY-FIRPO FILMS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 5.—A legal battle over showing the Dempsey-Firpo fight pictures in Kansas City appeared probable today.

E. M. Parkinson of St. Louis, who has purchased the picture for exhibition in Missouri, announced his intention of applying for an injunction to prevent G. E. Bufford, city motion picture censor, from interfering with the showing of the film here.

The picture was to have been shown in a downtown theater starting today. On advice of the theater manager, Parkinson submitted the picture to Buford.

Buford, after viewing the film, said it was a violation of a city ordinance and disapproved its exhibition in Kansas City.

"I would not call the picture obscene," Mr. Buford said today, "but I turned it down because I believe it detrimental to the public morals and because it violated a city ordinance."

The film depicts the details of the fight in slow motion pictures, including the part where Dempsey was knocked out of the ring and where the challenger was floored several times by Dempsey.

TEST CASE IN DELAWARE OVER BOXING LAWS

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 5.—The bureau of police today caused warrants to be issued for Adj. Gen. Austin Ellison, Lieuts. Watson and Regan of the State organized militia, and for seven contestants at the boxing exhibition held at the State Armory here Thursday night against police department orders forbidding the shows. The bouts were held to stimulate interest in the National Guard and net proceeds were contributed to the athletic fund of the Guard. The State law prohibits the promotion of prize fights, and the warrants were issued to test the law. The defendants will be given a hearing on Monday.

TRIAL OF JOE JACKSON'S SUIT SET FOR JAN. 21

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 5.—Trial of the case of Joe Jackson, former outfielder of the Chicago club of the American League, against that organization for salary alleged to be due him under a three-year contract, running from the spring of 1920 to the fall of 1922, has been ordered for Jan. 21 in Circuit Court here.

Jackson, as a member of the White Sox team which lost the 1919 world's series to the Cincinnati Nationals, was barred from organized baseball, with several other members of the club, as a result of the scandal which followed the series. Jackson alleges that $16,000 is [illegible]

Cards Will Play 21 Spring Games, 2 With Brownies

Five Major League Clubs Will Oppose Rickeymen in 10 Florida Contests.

The exhibition game schedule of the Cardinals for next spring, announced yesterday, shows that the Rickeymen will play 19 games in the South before returning to St. Louis to battle the Browns in a two-game pre-season series.

The Cardinals this spring will not follow the same scheme as a year ago. In 1923, it will be remembered, the Rickeymen "barnstormed" with the Athletics, Rochester and Detroit, and were on trains for 16 successive nights. For the coming training trip, this system has been abandoned and only three clashes will be played after the club breaks camp at Bradentown.

The contests on the way north are with Rochester at Savannah on April 8; Atlanta, Ga., April 9, and the Nashville club at Nashville, Tenn., April 10. The clashes with the Browns are booked for April 12 and 13.

Ten Big League Games in South.

Ten of the battles in Florida will be with major league teams, series of two having been scheduled with each the Dodgers, Braves, White Sox, Phillies and Washington. The other six are with the Milwaukee team of the American Association, which trains at Palmetto, just across the Manatee River from Bradentown. The only clubs to train in Florida the Cards have not booked games with are the Giants, Indians and Reds.

The complete training camp schedule for the Cardinals follows:

Tuesday, March 11—Brooklyn at Bradentown.
Thursday, March 13—Braves at Bradentown.
Friday, March 14—Milwaukee at Palmetto.
Tuesday, March 18—White Sox at Bradentown.
Thursday, March 20—Phillies at Bradentown.
Saturday, March 22—Washington at Tampa.
Monday, March 24—Phillies at Leesburg.
Tuesday, March 25—White Sox at Winter Haven.
Wednesday, March 26—Brooklyn at Clearwater.

Back in the Big Leagues

JAKIE MAY

You Can't Make Rickey Believe Jakie May Will Ever Be a Star

Southpaw Had Branch on Verge of Nervous Prostration While He Was With the Cardinals—Pitcher Lacked Those Two Major League Essentials—Control and Confidence.

By Herman Wecke.

Several years ago, as late as 1921 in fact, when Jakie May was a member of the Cardinal pitching staff, he was one of the trials of Branch Rickey's life. As a hurler, the little lefthander was anything but an asset. He was decidedly a liability. While he was with the Cardinals, the fans and Rickey were in for a warm afternoon anytime May worked. For Jakie has two failings—lack of control and confidence.

But now this same Jakie May is to get another chance in the big tent. He has been purchased by the Cincinnati Reds from the Vernon club of the Coast League for a price said to be $30,000 in cash and two players, Pitcher Keck and Infielder Kimmick. Last winter, it will be remembered, the Yankees bid $75,000 for the left-hander, but were unable to obtain him.

Since he went to the Pacific Coast League, May has had two sensational seasons. He was rated as the best left-hander in the circuit and major leaguers bid high for his services.

May Was a Problem.

Rickey had many experiences with May. He carried him for several campaigns, in the hope that eventually he would amount to something. May always had plenty of curves, but control and confidence were lacking. As a member of the Rickeymen May never did arrive. He was shunted to the minors and since then he has been little short of a sensation.

Of all of Rickey's experiences, however, none compared with the final one, which came while the team was playing the Phillies at Philadelphia. The Cardinal manager classed this "as the worst 10 minutes he ever went through in his life." Many of the gray hair now in Rickey's thatch were due to May's exhibition of how baseball "should not be pitched" on the afternoon in question.

Among the things Jakie was wont to do when with the Cardinals was to warn Rickey before he went out to pitch the ninth inning "to warm up someone else, as you never could tell what would happen." He pulled this trick in a spring series game with the Browns in 1921, when he was leading, 4 to 1. He "blew" and the Cards lost the game.

Rickey's last experience with May was due to a new scheme by which he hoped to finally make a pitcher out of the left-hander. After trying everything, he hit upon a plan whereby Jakie was to be made to believe that some other hurler was to work. Rickey figured that if handled this way, the southpaw would not have his usual case of "nerves." The scheme worked wonderfully—until Jakie found out the truth—that he, and not some other pitcher, was due to labor.

Haines and Sugden Helped.

Jess Haines and Joe Sugden played prominent parts in the scheme. Haines, though he had only one day rest, warmed up, while Sugden took May aside and asked him to take a workout. Care had been taken to see that May did not pitch to batters in practice or "shag" flies in the outfield. May, figuring that Haines was to pitch, had perfect control in that workout in the "bull pen." This was true of the curve, fast ball and change of pace.

Rickey, by this time, was laughing to himself. The scheme was to work. He admits he was already counting up the games Jakie was to win. However, here came the jolt. The megaphone man was announcing the batteries for the day. "For St. Louis, May and Dillhoefer," he shouted.

And right there Jakie was through. The old nervousness, which Rickey had hoped would disappear, was back. All through the Cardinal turn at bat May was tossing a baseball into his glove. Finally Jakie got his chance and it was pitiful.

His first pitch hit the grand stand. The next was low. Dillhoefer had to jump for the third. Another and the batter walked.

That brought up the second batter. The first one was called a ball, and Dillhoefer, trying to help the southpaw, protested. It did not help. The next one was a wild pitch and the next pair were wide, so the batter walked.

But Rickey still had hopes. Cy Williams, a left handed batter was coming next. But Cy was not easy. The first offering almost took off Cy's chin.

Looking for Help.

May started looking to the bench for some sign that his duties for the day were over. But no sign.

Up floated another wide one and Rickey began to weaken. "I don't think I can go through with it," he said to Burt Shotton.

By this time May had served another wide one and then his fourth offering. Rickey was not looking, but heard a crash and when he peered at the diamond, he saw Williams on the ground.

"Judas Priest, he has killed Cy," cried Rickey.

Athletes rushed to Williams. He was given first aid. He was able to walk and Rickey was relieved. The pitch, it was found, had hit Williams in the calf of the leg.

So the Phils had the bases full with none out. May had pitched 12 times and each offering had been wide.

May took his place on the hill and looked at the bench. Rickey made a slight motion with his finger. That was enough. May placed the ball on the rubber and dashed for the bench, Marvin Goodwin replacing him.

Jakie May Disappears.

In a short time, the pitcher was missed. No one knew where he had gone. Finally it was discovered that he had crawled along the rafters and made his way to the club house.

Thus ended May's stay with the Cardinals.

Now he comes back to the majors with Cincinnati. Maybe two years in the Coast League have done wonders with him. But one man—Rickey—wil have to be shown before he is convinced.

Igoe Led Way for Batters in Trolley League

Peterson and Keenoy Had Higher Averages, but Did Not Play All Games.

Johnny Igoe, first baseman and captain of the East St. Louis team, was the outstanding individual star of the Missouri-Illinois Trolley League season of 1923, it is revealed by official batting and fielding figures released yesterday.

Igoe participated in every game played by his club and compiled a batting average of .410 and a fielding average of .967. He had only five errors in 150 chances in 19 games.

Harry Vaughn, Carlyle pitcher, proved himself a great batter in the 12 games in which he participated. He obtained 15 hits in 39 times at bat for an average of .385.

Allan Peterson and Mike Keenoy, both St. Louis boys, playing with Carlyle, finished at the top of the batting list, but they participated in only half of the full number of league games. Allerdisson, the East St. Louis shortstop, batted .347 for one of the best marks attained by any regular.

OKLAHOMA CITY IS WINNER IN POLO

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 5.—The Oklahoma City polo team came through to the limelight in the San Antonio midwinter polo tournament today by defeating the Twenty-third Infantry in the low goal event, 11 to 6. The Infantry team had a four-goal handicap and one of the other goals was donated when an Oklahoma player pushed one through the wrong goal.

The Fifteenth Field Artillery defeated the Twelfth Field Artillery in the second game, 10 to 3. The winners had a one-goal handicap.

Sunday will open the high goal event in which some fast teams are entered. The Fort Bliss team, which carries a 21 handicap, will battle the Detroit team in the opening game. The Fort Bliss men will have a 14 handicap to overcome.

The second game scheduled for Sunday is in the low goal event and the Fourth and Twelfth Cavalry teams will meet.

Eatonic Works Magic

"I have taken only two boxes of Eatonic and feel like a new man. It has done me more good than anything else," writes C. O. Frappir.

Eatonic is the modern remedy for acid stomach, bloating, food repeating and indigestion. It quickly takes up and carries out the acidity and gas and enables the stomach to digest the food naturally. That means not only relief from pain and discomfort but you get the full strength from the food you eat. 50c the box at your druggist's.

Harding Honored by Memorial Resolution Of Golf Association

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.

A RESOLUTION declaring that the "ancient and honorable game of golf has lost a noble devotee" in the death of President Harding was inscribed today upon the minutes of the United States Golf Association's annual meeting, in memory of the nation's chief executive.

The resoltuion follows:

"The Executive Committee by these presents adds this tribute of affection and reverence to those which his life and memory have caused to be recorded in every language among men.

"He longed for every hour that a busy life permitted him on the links, because he loved the pastime that brought him where the great cares of office seemed to lose half their burden as the sunshine, the beauties of nature, and the exhilarating spirt of the game cheered him on his way from green to green.

"The ancient and honorable game of golf has lost a noble devotee, our committee has lost a member whose friendship was one of their best of life's privileges, and the American people have parted with one upon whom they had worthily bestowed the highest commission within gift."

DRAKE TO PLAY FLORIDA GRID TEAM NEXT SEASON

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Jan. 5.—The University of Florida football team is to meet the Drake University eleven of Des Moines, Ia., here next Thanksgiving day, it was announced today by James I. White, athletic director.

33 Reservations Made by St. Louis Fives for A. B. C.

First Local Teams Bowl at Chicago March 1—Scratch Tourney Entries Close.

With the American Bowling Congress tournament entry list closing Jan. 21, 33 reservations for local quintets to compete have already been made. Some of the teams which will make the trip to Chicago for the tourney, have not been decided upon. However, among local bowling officials it is considered certain that more than 30 fives will be entered when the lists close.

The first local fives to compete for what is expected to be a record-breaking prize fund will roll March 1, when the Don Julians and Petersons of the Peterson Scratch League bowl. The Colbions No. 1 and 2 have reserved March 2. The Sweeney Zevs are scheduled to roll March 6.

Six reservations have been made for March 7, but the teams to go on that date have not been definitely decided upon. On March 8, eight are scheduled to roll. Included in this list are the Wooster Lamberts, Witter's Razz, Webers, Schaefers and Puritans, rated among the best in the city.

Annual Meeting March 7.

The Medarts, United Bakers and Bloemkers will bowl on March 24. In addition to these teams, the Cabannes of the Major City League are sure to make the trip. The Knights of Columbus also have reserved 10 dates, but the teams are not made up.

The annual meeting of the Association will be held on March 7 and the chances are that a gathering of the St. Louis Association will be held the last Sunday of the month to select delegates to represent this city. While no announcement has been forthcoming, it is almost certain that Buffalo will be awarded the next rolling of the championship. Buffalo was a strong bidder for the event to be decided in Chicago, starting Feb. 23, but was unsuccessful.

City Tourney Entries Close.

Entries for the city scratch bowling tournament to be started on the Congress alleys Jan. 23 are scheduled to close Wednesday. Officials of the St. Louis association are making a determined effort to obtain a record breaking entry. In order to do this, a great number of fives must come in on the last two days, as up to yesterday, only about 25 have actually sent in their entries, although numerous others were pledged. Several of the local leagues have signified their intentions of entering in a body.

Southern Illinois Event.

The entry blanks for the Southern Illinois tournament to be held at Schaefer's Recreation alleys, East St. Louis, starting Feb. 22, will be issued in a few days. The entries close Feb. 12 and St. Louis is sure to have a good representation. In addition to cash prizes, a gold medal will go to the all-events winner.

EPINARD MAY RACE AT BELMONT PARK, LATONIA AND AQUEDUCT TRACKS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. — Although final arrangements for the series of three sweepstakes in New York and Kentucky, in which Epinard, French thoroughbred crack, will oppose the best of America's four-year-olds, have not yet been completed, racing authorities expect the schedule to be as follows:

Belmont Park, Sept. 6, at three-quarters of a mile.

Aqueduct, Sept. 20, at one mile.

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 4, at one mile and a quarter.

August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, said today he might confer in the near future with Matt Winn, general manager of Latonia, regarding details of the program.

MANDELL WILL MEET BERNSTEIN, WINNER TO OPPOSE DUNDEE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The next opponent of Johnny Dundee, in a featherweight championship bout is expected to be developed in the meeting of Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., and Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, at Madison Square Garden next Friday night. The bout will be for 15 rounds to a decision. Bernstein was deprived of his junior lightweight title recently by Johnny Dundee on a decision that created much adverse comment.

Figures Show That Advertisers Find Increasing Profit in Concentration

During 1923 the Post-Dispatch Carried

22,516,760

Lines of Paid Advertising

(A Gain of More Than Two and a Half Million Lines Over 1922, Which Was the Biggest Year in the History of the Post-Dispatch).

This was more than Nine Million lines in excess of the Globe-Democrat—more than Fifteen Million lines in excess of The Star, and approximately Two Million lines more than the Globe-Democrat and The Star COMBINED.

Because the Post-Dispatch has far more St. Louis circulation than any other St. Louis newspaper—morning, evening, Daily or Sunday—it carries far more advertising than any other St. Louis newspaper—in fact, more than the second and third papers Added Together.

Because St. Louis newspaper readers concentrate their attention on the Post-Dispatch it pays advertisers to concentrate their advertising in the Post-Dispatch, where responsive readers expect to find, and do find, the greatest array and the greatest volume of advertising.

This again emphasizes the wisdom of and the profit from Concentration of Advertising in the one paper—Economy, plus Results

QUICK DIVORCE FOR HARRY W. BLODGETT

Second Wife of Former U. S. Attorney Fails to Contest Desertion Charge.

Harry W. Blodgett, former United States District Attorney, former Election Commissioner and former State Senator, obtained an uncontested divorce on an allegation of desertion, in Judge Wurdemann's court at Clayton yesterday, from Mrs. Marie Blodgett, whom he married Aug. 24, 1911. They had been living apart since Dec. 1, 1922.

Blodgett's petition, merely setting out the date of the marriage, the date of the separation and the allegation of desertion, was filed by Senator Ralph, his attorney, only a few minutes before the decree was granted. A reply, admitting the marriage and denying the desertion, was filed for Mrs. Blodgett by Attorney Sam B. Jeffries.

Mrs. Blodgett did not appear in court and no testimony was offered by Jeffries in reply to Blodgett's brief testimony, which went only to the allegation in the petition.

Mrs. Blodgett resides at 6677 Washington boulevard. Blodgett resides on Lackland road in St. Louis County.

Mrs. Blodgett was Mrs. M. A. Borgess. She and Blodgett were married four months after his first wife, Mrs. Daisy Blodgett, obtained a divorce from him.

To Which Class Do YOU Belong?

Quick Easy Economical Way

If you are too thin and want to put on firm flesh—if you are weak, nervous and run-down and want to increase your strength, energy and endurance—if you suffer from poor appetite, dizzy spells, indigestion or intestinal trouble, and want these quickly corrected—if you have pimples, boils, eruptions or sallowness and want a fine, clear skin, you will find it well worth while to make this simple test:

First, see how soon you tire just doing your every-day work—then weigh and measure yourself. Next, take two of MASTIN'S VITAMON tablets with each meal regularly. Notice how fresh you feel—the healthy color in your cheeks, the sparkle in your eyes, the spring in your step, the firm flesh "pep" and the tingling energy. A two weeks' test should surprise you. Continue taking MASTIN'S VITAMON until you are fully satisfied with your gain in weight, strength, endurance and improved appearance.

Thousands say there is no better, easier way to quickly increase weight, build up vitality, strengthen the nerves and improve the appearance—in fact, to help make strong, vigorous, red-blooded men.

Success absolutely guaranteed or you get back the little it costs for the trial. Ask for and take only MASTIN'S VITAMON, prescribed by doctors, recommended by druggists, athletes, successful men, attractive women and used by millions. At all druggists.

The quarry is near Kansas City. It will reduce road building prices in that vicinity and effect a great saving for the State.

St. Louisans Sell Memphis Building.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 5.—Nathan and Louis Bry of St. Louis, formerly largest owners of the Bry Block Mercantile Co. here, have just sold to the company the six-story building occupied by it at Main street and Jefferson avenue. The price is said to have been more than $500,000. Neither of the Brys is interested in the Bry Block Co. now. Acquisition of the buildings gives the company six and one-half acres of ground in the center of the city and the largest department store in the South.

Cahokia—

A ton of coal every thirty seconds

CAHOKIA will consume 1,250,000 tons of coal a year. That is approximately 80 cars or two trainloads a day. It is more than is used in this district by the city's 26 railroads. It is one-fourth the city's total consumption.

WITH Cahokia established, no Illinois coal ever can cross the Mississippi river to the fires of St. Louis industry without great money loss. The coal must stop at this new super power plant for conversion into a cheaper, cleaner, more flexible energy.

The first of four sections of Cahokia is finished. The second is under construction. It appears now that work will be continuous until the whole is completed.

NEW LOW MARK ON FRENCH EXCHANGE FEATURE OF WEEK

Stock Prices Show Considerable Irregularity, Due Partly to Profit-Taking—Advance at Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Establishment of a new low record for all time by French francs at 4.85½ cents was one of the outstanding events of this week's financial markets. Other foreign exchanges yielded too, demand sterling showing a loss of nearly 5 cents on the week.

Stock prices showed considerable irregularity due to a large volume of profit-taking by traders who deferred "cashing in" until after the turn of the year in the expectation of a reduced tax on 1924 incomes. This selling pressure was lifted in the closing session of the week and started upward again. Bond offerings were less than $20,000,000, although estimates of new financing which must be completed before March 1 run as high as $300,000,000.

Erratic movements again took place in the cotton market with active futures showing a loss of 60 to 80 points below the quotations a week ago. Considerable selling pressure in this market originated in Liverpool.

Money rates reflected the easing up of January demands, call money getting as low as 4½ after hovering around 6 earlier in the week. Time money rates also eased, more funds being available at 4¾ per cent.

The weekly Clearing House statement showed a decrease of $73,437,000 in loans, discounts and investments, and $2,889,000 in cash in own vaults. The reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank increased $27,416,000, net demand deposits increased $9,230,000, and time deposits $3,518,000.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The upward movement continued in today's two-hour market with an increasing number of stocks taking part in it. Steel common, which had hung behind Friday, got across 99. The rubber and tire shares came in for attention, United States Rubber common getting above 39, Goodrich preferred above 41, and other members of the group up correspondingly.

Stocks of companies making motor parts were very much in demand under the lead of Hayes Wheel, Bosch Magneto and Stewart-Warner. The opening of the New York Automobile Show possibly had a sentimental influence upon the speculation in the quarters as well as on the motor shares themselves. Studebaker, Chandler and others of the motor group which had done nothing Friday, finally swung into line.

The rise continued in stocks which had been in the lead on the preceding day. Prominent among these were Mercantile Marine preferred, Savage Arms, Brooklyn Manhattan Transit preferred, Dupont, Congoleum and United States Pipe.

Oil shares were once more in favor, although there was nothing fresh in the trade situation. The leaders in this quarter were General Asphalt and Producers and Refiners.

Public Utilities continued strong with stocks like Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Edison, Columbia Gas and Philadelphia Company selling at their best prices for the present.

The features among the rails was the rise in Southern Railway on very large transactions across 40. Stocks of other Southern roads were also active and strong, especially Atlantic Coast Line and Seaboard Air Line preferred. Great Northern preferred felt the effect of reputed purchases by people who a month or more ago were taxing tax losses.

The market closed bouyant and well up the best prices of the day.

The Bond Market.

The bond market continued today the show of strength initiated yesterday.

The feature was the heavy dealings in Market Street Railway first 5s and the same company's 6 per cent notes, both selling within a point or less of par. This activity was in response to the announcement that $13,000,000 in refunding bonds will be offered next week to take up the $4,000,000 of 6s and the $9,000,000 of 5s, the former maturing in April and the latter in September. Both issues have been strong all week, during that time the 5s having gained more than 4 points and the 6s about 2½.

Next in interest to the active buying of the Market Street Railway bonds was the strength in Brooklyn Manhattan Transit 6s, which made a new high also on large sales. On the week these bonds advanced between 2½ and 3 points.

In contrast, Interborough issues have been dull and heavy. Third Avenue adjustments, on the other hand, are up over 2 points on the week.

There has been good buying of Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s, which at the market yield over 6 per cent.

The New York, West Chester & Boston 4½s, up more than 4 points on the week, held their gains today, while there was a better market for other New Haven obligations, notably the debenture 6s. St. Louis & San Francisco bonds are also up for the week. Eries were firm today, but with little price change.

Among industrials, Cuba Sugar 8s and convertible 7½s sold at their recent highs. The week's advance is greatest in the 7s.

The strength in the new American Telephone and Telegraph debenture 5½s above the issue price was a feature today.

In foreign bonds the French Government obligations reacted fractionally under last night's high, but were still firm. As a matter of fact, on the week these bonds are practically unchanged.

MOTOR SHARES FEATURE WEEK-END ON CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The opening of the twenty-fourth annual automobile show in New York today caused attention to be directed to the motors in the curb market and these stocks assumed leadership in the upward movement.

Stutz Motors became more active than at any time in months. Durant of Delaware was also in demand.

Realizing sales which were responsible for the check to the recovery in the oil stocks on preceding days appeared to have been absorbed and buying was resumed.

Mining shares were more active than at any other time this week and higher prices were the rule.

New York Clearings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—New York bank clearings $846,000,000; New York bank balances, $92,000,000; New York Federal Reserve Bank credits, $76,000,000.

EXTREME GLUT IN MONEY AS YEAR OPENS IN LONDON

Partial Offset Will Be Found in Maturity of £21,000,000 in War Bonds February 1—More Commercial Bills in Lombard Street Than for Years.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today, says:

"New Year beginnings so far fulfill expectations of an extreme glut in money, which may continue longer than usual. The effect of the ingatherings of taxation during the current quarter will be partially offset by the fact that £21,000,000 in war bonds mature on Feb. 1. This ease aids investments but as anticipated at the end of the year, optimism now is emerging into anxieties concerning domestic politics. America must expect that factor to dominate our financial developments for some time. Neither semi-panicky cables nor cables portending apprehensions concerning labor should be credited. The facts are that Britain is going through a critical phase of domestic, social and political evolution with apparent occasional tendencies for the evolution to degenerate into more violent process.

Slump in Sterling.

"Meanwhile the actual concrete anxieties of certain wealthy individuals to escape even the possibility of penal taxation has accentuated the slump in sterling and, causes anxiety in financial circles which perhaps explains the action of the City Conservative Association in endeavoring to provide strategic schemes for preventing labor's coming into office. Such tactics, however, are stupid and are deprecated in the best quarters as likely to react dangerously later.

"It is impossible to foresee developments within the next few months but a labor government is almost inevitable, and meanwhile uncertainties and anxieties must hinder financial and business operations. Therefore there is a disposition to anticipate dullness in investments and other securities. But the impetus towards trade improvement already is sufficient to make for further improvement unless apprehensions develop in the direction of strikes. This is checking the disposition of capitalists to make contracts, for already there are some indications of unrest in the railway and coal industries. The cardinal need here is for discipline in every department of life, beginning with governments and ending with private individuals.

Banking Year Results.

"Banking results for the past year are excellent, especially as making for great liquidity. The curious point about the situation is that but for domestic politics most indications favor both financial and commercial activity with large loans both domestic and foreign. There are more commercial bills in Lombard street than for years past and these improvements explain the inherent optimism underlying the pessimism occasioned by labor apprehensions."

DIVIDENDS OF $303,853 ON LIVESTOCK SHIPMENTS

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 5.—Total patronage dividends of approximately $303,853.95 were earned on livestock shipments in 1923 to the markets at Omaha, St. Joseph, Mo., and Sioux City, announced today by C. J. Osborne, president of the Farmers Educational & Co-operative State Union, following a meeting of the organization's board of directors.

The per cent of dividends and the amount involved for the three points of the union's commission organizations follow:

Omaha, 70 per cent, $112,064.54; South St. Joseph, Mo., 66 per cent, $136,863.96; Sioux City, 5 per cent, $54,925.41. The gain in pro rata for the three markets is $102,830.50 over 1922, Mr. Osborne said.

Middle States Oil Offer Is Withdrawn.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The Middle States Oil Corporation, headed by former C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma, which offered $11.25 a share for brokers' stock of Southern States Oil, another Haskell concern, trading in which was suspended by the Curb market several weeks ago, has withdrawn its offer. Letters have been sent to brokers who have been members of the Haskell pool, saying the corporation found it impossible to buy the stock because of the tangle.

New York Bond Market.

DIVIDENDS OF $303,853 ON LIVESTOCK SHIPMENTS

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 5.—Total patronage dividends of approximately $303,853.95 on commissions earned on livestock shipments in 1923 to the markets at Omaha, South St. Joseph, Mo., and Sioux City, were announced today by C. J. Osborne of Omaha, president of the Farmers' Educational & Co-operative State Union, following a meeting of the organization's board of directors.

The per cent of dividends and the amounts involved for the three units of the union's commission organizations follow:

Omaha, 70 per cent, $113,898.58; South St. Joseph, Mo., 66 per cent, $138,661.96; Sioux City, 5 per cent, $51,265.41.

The gain in pro rate for the three markets was $102,830.50 over 1922, Mr. Osborne said.

Middle States Oil Offer Is Withdrawn.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The Middle States Oil Corporation, headed by former [illegible] C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma, which offered to pay $11.25 a share for brokers' holdings of stock of Southern States Oil Corporation, another Haskell concern, whose trading was suspended by the curb market several weeks ago, has withdrawn the offer.

Letters have been sent to brokers who are members of the Haskell pool, saying the corporation found it impossible to go through with the offer because the firm brokerage houses failed to report the number of shares traded in.

New York Stock Exchange houses, who were interested, formed a committee to confer with Mr. Haskell in an effort to straighten out the tangle.

New York Bond Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Today's bond market was dull with trading restricted. Eastern and local traction company liens were bought at moderate advances. Active U. S. Government bonds were steady. A local banking syndicate has been awarded an issue of $2,500,000 St. Paul, Minn., school and improvement bonds to be offered next week.

GRAIN PRICES MIXED ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 5.—Wheat futures were irregular on the market at week-end and closed lower to higher. Corn was fractionally lower at finish. The receipt situation has been the strong point in corn recently. The change in prices today was slight.

In the local cash grain market Saturday No. 2 red wheat was steady to ½c higher with selection small and no choice grain offered. Hard wheat was nominally unchanged with none offered. The light supply of corn was cleaned up at ½@1½c higher prices. Local industries took the larger part of offerings. The local trade took the greater portion of the small offerings of oats at ½c higher price. Shippers wanted some but got little.

A fair advance was recorded by wheat after the opening, but the full opening rise was not maintained in the immediate trading. Liverpool wheat closed ⅝d up on March and May. Corn also was higher here. The severe cold entered as factor in the grain market.

May wheat opened at $1.10 to $1.10¼. July wheat $1.06¾. May corn 77⅛c and July corn 77¾c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 28,600 bushels compared with 41,600 a week ago and 120,000 last year, included 16 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts, which were 93,800 bushels, compared with 166,600 a week ago and 96,200 last year, included 52 cars local and 15 through. Oats receipts, which were 38,000 bushels compared with 42,000 a week ago and 88,000 last year, included 13 cars local and 6 through. Hay receipts were 18 cars local and 9 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 1,661,011 bushels of wheat, 640,696 bushels of corn, 730,980 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 187,021 bushels of No. 1 red winter wheat, 748,107 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 193,081 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 238,799 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 85,242 bushels of No. 2 corn, 31,223 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 17,850 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 5606 bushels of No. 2 oats, 211,352 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 47,999 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 13,608 bushels of No. 2 rye.

WHEAT DOES NOT HOLD EARLY GAINS AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Wheat registered higher prices during the early hours today, but pressure from the Northwest in the way of spreads took the edge off the market and the close found prices lower and the undertone easy. Trade was greatly curtailed by the crippled wire situation. Primary receipts were very light, totaling for the week 2,792,000 bushels, compared with 9,460,000 bushels last year. There was scattered buying of the new corp wheat futures in expectation of damage from the severe weather, but the volume of trading was not lasting enough to offset the increased spreading sales that filtered in. Wheat closed ⅝@¾c lower. May $1.07¾@1.08 to $1.09. July $1.06¼ to $1.07½. September $1.05¼ to $1.06⅜.

Leading longs were credited with taking profits in corn, and this together with some pressure took the edge off the yellow cereal after prices had reached new high levels on the crop. The close looked steady, but was lower. Cash corn was in fair demand at firm prices, the offerings being exceedingly light. The country is still credited with selling lightly. Closing prices were ⅛c to ⅜c lower. May sold from 75¼c to 76⅛c; July 76⅜@76⅛c to 77⅜c; September 77¾@78⅛c.

Oats averaged higher early but reacted at the last. Commission house trade was limited. Locals bought and then sold out. Prices were ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower. May 45½c to 46c; July 43⅛@43⅝c to 43¾c; September 42⅛c to 42⅝c.

Provisions closed firm in a dull trade. Eastern interests bought lard and offset local selling. Lard closed 5c to 7½c higher and ribs unchanged.

Cash Grain Elsewhere

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Wheat No. 1 hard $1.10. Corn No. 2 mixed 74¾c. Oats No. 2 white 45¼@45¾c. Rye no sales. Barley 58@74c. Lard $12.50.

Livestock Elsewhere

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—U. S. Department of Agriculture):

CATTLE—Receipts 1000; beef steers and yearlings, 25c to 50c higher; fat she stock, 15c to 25c higher; canners, cutters, stockers and feeders about steady; bulls 25c higher; veal calves 50c to $1.00 up; top yearlings $12.25; bulk matured steers, $11.25; short feeders, $8.00@8.10; mixed yearlings, $11.50; week's bulk prices follow: Beef steers, $8.00@10.00; beef cows and heifers, $4.75@7.25; stockers and feeders, $5.25@6.75; canners and cutters, $2.75@3.60; veal calves, $11.75@13.00.

SHEEP—Receipts 1000; market nominally steady; killing classes and feeding lambs higher; fat lambs and yearlings 40c to 50c higher; sheep 50c to 75c higher; feeding lambs around 25c higher; top fat lambs for week, $13.90; best feeders, $12.85; bulk prices follow: Fat lambs, $12.75@13.75; fat yearlings, wethers, $11.50@12.00; aged wethers, $7.50@8.75; fat ewes, $7.25@8.40; feeding lambs, $11.50@12.75.

Hog receipts 11,000; active; mostly 15 to 25c higher than Friday's average; all interests purchased freely; good and choice medium and heavy weight butchers $7.35 @7.45; top 7.50; heavyweight hogs $7.25 @7.50; packing sows smooth $6.75@6.90; slaughter pigs $5.50@6.75.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 5.—With the passing of the holidays, cattle supplies have been moderate and with an apparently broader demand, practically all desirable grades of killing steers closed strong to a shade higher than a week ago, says the weekly review issued here this morning by the market news service of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Handyweights and yearlings were in demand and some sales were recorded 25c higher for the week. Best yearlings topped the week's trade at $10.50 and weighty steers sold up to $10.10. Better grades of fat she-stock were 25c to 35c higher. Calves were unevenly $1 to $2 higher, with top veals at $11.50.

Although hog supplies were considerably larger than last week, says the report, a reasonably broad demand, strengthened by a wide shipper outlet, forced prices on the more desirable grades of butchers upward 15c to 20c higher. Heavy and medium butchers sold from $7 to $7.10, with the week's top at $7.30, scored Wednesday.

Offerings of fat lambs during the week were moderate, with prices 25c to 35c higher than the week previous. Colorado fed lambs sold up to $13.35. Aged sheep were scarce and closed strong, with best fat ewes at $7.75 to $8.

Receipts were 23,000 cattle, exclusive of 6300 calves, 55,000 hogs and 22,000 sheep. This compared with 18,000 cattle, 28,805 hogs and 24,000 sheep the week before.

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Business in the Worth Street cotton goods markets was inactive today but prices were fully maintained with 11c quoted for 64 by 60s and 12¼c for 68 by 72s.

Raw silk prices showed fractional recessions for best No. 1 which was quoted at $7.90 and XXA 20-22 denier at $8.15. Cantons showed a fall of 2½ cents a pound from Friday's levels.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Raw sugar unchanged today. Spot Cubas quoted at $6.53 duty paid. Opening 1 to 4 points lower under trade selling and liquidation raw sugar futures rallied and closed five points lower on January and 1 to 2 higher on later position. January $4.85; March $4.54; May $4.62; July $4.70.

Refined continued quiet and unchanged at $8.70 to $8.90 for fine granulated.

Refined futures nominal.

Sugar futures closed irregular. Approximate sales 7500 tons. January 4.85; March 4.54; May 4.62; July 4.70.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—An after-holiday tendency on the part of the housewife to economize was considered responsible for the falling off in butter consumption during the week. Buyers found their requirements for fresh butter just about equal to the available supplies, and at Boston and Chicago competition for the limited supplies of fancy butter forced slight advances.

Consumption during 1923 was considerably above 1922, according to reports. Receipts at the four principal markets were approximately 19,000,000 pounds larger than for the previous year. Imports at New York were about 13,000,000 heavier. Trading stocks and cold-storage holdings were about the same for both years.

Range and closing wholesale prices, 92 score butter, were as follows: Chicago, ½c higher at 54½c; New York, ½c lower at 54½c; Boston, ½c higher at 54½c; Philadelphia unchanged at 55c.

Egg Prices Higher.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Excessively cold weather has temporarily checked the production of fresh eggs. Wholesale prices were today advanced as much as 2½ cents a dozen for some grades in Chicago. First quality eggs were quoted at 43 to 43½ cents today as against 41 cents yesterday.

There is still a large supply of storage eggs to be marketed, and the trade is anxiously awaiting the Government reports which it is expected will be published Monday, Jan. 7, showing the amount on hand in various cities.

HOG PRICES HIGHER IN TRADE FOR WEEK

CAMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

| | Last Week. | Prev. Week. | Year Ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cattle and calves | 20,202 | 11,115 | 19,121 |
| Hogs | 99,806 | 74,519 | 88,557 |
| Sheep | 8,411 | 5,716 | 6,862 |
| Horses and mules | 2,975 | 1,027 | 4,053 |
| Totals | 131,394 | 92,377 | 118,593 |

Under moderate receipts and a fairly active demand, the tendency was higher in most departments of the livestock market at St. Louis the past week. The cattle market was at its best during the first half of the week, trade suffering a relapse in later trading which eliminated a good part of the initial gains. Compared with the close of last week best killing steers averaged 15 to 25c higher, other grades steady; light yearlings 15 to 25c higher; butcher cows and canner and cutter cows steady; stocker and feeder steers steady; bulls 50c higher and veal calves 50 to 75c lower. The week's supply contained a good number of steers, quality of which was generally common or medium with a few good droves represented. Sales ranged from $6 per cwt. or under for common "yellowhammers" to $9 and $10.40 for more desirable offerings. The latter figure was the top. The better grades of light yearlings scored $8, $9 and $10 followed by the bulk of plainer offerings at $4 to $7. Butcher cows moved in a range of $3.50 to $7.25; cutter cows $2.75 to $3.25 or $3.50 and canner cows $2.25 to $2.50 or $2.75. Beef bulls with weight closed at $5 to $8.50 and bolognas were commanding $4 to $5.50. Canner bulls scored in the $3 column. Receipts and demand were light in stocker and feeder steers. Although the majority of sales were at $4 to $6, low grade offerings scored in the $3 column and good feeders topped at $6.85. Stock cows, heifers and bulls ruled strong. Veal calves, though closing lower than the high time the previous week, nevertheless, occupied a fairly good level, desirable lights during the period under review cashing mainly at $12.50 to $13.50. Southern canner yearlings up 25 to 50c, making $2.50 to $2.75 or $3.00.

Hog Receipts Generous.

Receipts in swine for the past week were generous, the total being 99,806 head, compared with 74,519 for the previous week and 88,557 for the corresponding week a year ago. Quality the past week was good with a generous proportion of the good weight swine included in receipts. Prices the first part of the week proceeded to advance sharply with the top by Wednesday reaching $7.75 on butcher weight hogs. Closing top for the week, however, is down to $7.45 on these weights, looking 25c higher than the previous week's close. Compared with a week ago, strong weight hogs and butchers averaging from 190 to 250 pounds, show an advance of 20c to 25c, with sales of these weights ranging from $7.30 to $7.45 largely. Light hogs and shipping grades are approximately 20c higher with offerings of the 160 to 180 pound kinds selling from $7.20 to $7.35 mostly. The pig market is steady to strong with slight advances shown by the heavier grades. Strong weight pigs from 130 to 150 pounds are quotable at $6.50 to $7, looking steady to 15c higher. Medium weight kinds are steady at $6 to $6.50 and the light pigs and pee wees averaging from 110 pounds and down are also steady, selling in a wide spread of $5 to $6, according to the weight and quality displayed by the offering. Packer sows are steady to 10c higher than a week ago today. Sales on best sows were noted as high as $6.25, with the large end of the offerings clearing at $6.10 to $6.15. Stags are steady at $3.75 to $4.25 according to weight and quality. The week's close found the different classes of swine selling in the following spread: butcher hogs averaging from 190 to 250 pounds at $7.30 to $7.45, light hogs and shipping grades from 160 to 180 pounds at $7.20 to $7.35. Strong weight pigs averaging from 130 to 150 pounds at $6.50 to $7, with the medium weight offerings from 110 to 130 pounds at $6 to $6.50. Light pigs and pee wees from 110 pounds and down were quotable at $5 to $6, according to weight and quality. Sows at $6.10 to $6.25 mostly and stags at $3.75 to $4.50.

Sheep Prices Higher.

Receipts in the sheep and lamb department for last week were modest the total being 8411 head, compared with 5716 for the previous week and 6862 for the corresponding period a year ago. Prices close higher for the week on both sheep and lambs, the latter class showing an advance of 25c over the previous week's close. Good to choice quality lambs are quotable at $12.75 to $13.25; medium to good kinds at $12.25 to $12.75, and the plain to medium grades at $11.75 to $12.25. Culls are quotable at $8 to $10 according to weight and quality. Sheep are $1 higher than the previous week, good to choice mutton ewes selling from $6.50 to $7.50 with the medium to good kinds clearing from $5.50 to $6.50 and the plain to medium kinds selling at $4.50 to $5.50 largely. Choppers and bucks are about steady at $2.50 to $3.50, with canners selling from $1 to $2, according to weight and quality.

Horses and Mules.

Combined receipts of horses and mules here for the week just ended aggregate a good total of 3000 head. About 50 per cent of the run was on a commission billing and the offering ran heavily to mules. Markets held up fairly well under a reasonably broad demand from the buying interests. There was a particularly good call for southern horses. The eastern outlet for horses was not materially changed.

Mules came into the market in large number throughout the week and moderate movement prevailed. There was quite a good inquiry on the alleys for fat cotton mules 15½ hands and under, and plain and little mules were disposed of in good order through auctions. Due to late shipments, a few consignments were carried over.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The market for coffee futures opened at a decline of seven points to an advance of six points. There was scattered realizing after the advances of the last two or three days but it was absorbed by a moderate demand and there was some trade buying of the late months.

March rallied from 9.86 to 9.90 while September sold up from 9.20c to 9.25c, but the realizing continued and the close was a few points off from the best, being net four points lower to 5 points higher. Sales were estimated at about 26,000 bags, March 9.85c; May 9.52c; July 9.37c; September 9.21c; October 9.17c; December 9.10c.

Spot coffee quiet Rio 7s, 10⅝; Santos 4s 15 to 15⅝.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—The wool market wound up the week here with prices firm and with traders showing a disposition to hold off awaiting the opening of the Fall lines of the American Woolen Co. Growers and handlers of consigned wools are standing firm for high prices. A slightly higher tendency is anticipated in Australia markets when the Sydney sales open Monday.

COTTON LOWER AT CLOSE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—A further decline under continued realizing or liquidation was followed by rallies in the cotton market on trade buying and covering. March contracts sold off to 34.31 during the early trading making new low ground for the movement and a net decline of 41 points. The price rallied to 34.63 late in the morning and closed at 34.53, with the general market closing steady net unchanged to 19 points lower.

The market opened easy at a decline of 20 to 36 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. Offerings were not particularly heavy, but there was very little support, and a few stop orders were uncovered as prices broke below the low figures touched on the decline of Thursday. The fact that selling did not become heavier as the market entered new low ground, was regarded by some of the local traders as indicating that scattering long accounts had been quite fully liquidated. This theory led to covering for over the week-end by recent sellers, and some buying was reported by the trade, presumably to fix prices. The demand was only in moderate volume but it was sufficient to cause rallies of some 30 to 35 points from the lowest, with May selling up from 34.53 to 34.88 and July from 33.51 to 33.78. January was relatively quiet and steady during the entire morning and after selling at 33.90 at the opening, advanced to 34.30 or six points above yesterday's closing quotation. Last prices were a few points off from the best under realizing. Manchester reported a better inquiry for cotton goods but said business was difficult.

Week-end reports from the domestic goods trade attracted comparatively little comment as they were regarded as reflecting no special change in the situation. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 114,000 bales, compared with 103,000 last year.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Spot cotton steady; middling 35.25.

A Giant in Essential Industries

Cities Service Company owns and controls more than one hundred subsidiary companies engaged in essential enterprises.

The operations of these companies extend from the development of natural resources—electricity—gas—oil—to the final details of marketing to the consumer.

They dam rivers for water power to be converted into electricity; build and operate electric-light plants, and furnish electric light and power to cities, factories, railways, shops, offices and homes.

They draw natural gas from the earth and manufacture artificial gas; construct gas mains and pipe lines and distribute the gas to large communities and industrial enterprises.

They produce millions of barrels of petroleum yearly from America's best known oil fields. They transport oil through their own pipe line systems, their many railroad tank-cars and their own fleet of tank-steamers.

They operate refineries which produce gasoline, kerosene, naphtha and other petroleum products. They market these products at wholesale and retail through their own service, tank and barrel stations in 17 states.

The securities of Cities Service Company and its subsidiaries are held by approximately 100,000 individuals and institutions. They are good as collateral at banks, are quoted in newspapers, and possess ready marketability.

Dividends on Cities Service Preferred Stock are payable monthly. At present market prices the yield is unusually attractive.

DOCTOR DISAPPEARS WITH GIRL MET AT PARTY FOR HIS BRIDE

"Headed for Mexico," Wrote Niece of Wife Who Lost Husband and Savings.

By the Associated Press.

TRADE LAKE, Wis., Jan. 5.—Dr. Robert S. Frank, claiming to be an officer of the Army Medical Corps at the Presidio, San Francisco, who disappeared with an 18-year-old niece of his bride of less than two weeks, took $1600 of his wife's savings, according to the statement of Cleve J. Strang, District Attorney, who is investigating the case.

Dr. Frank, who married Miss Julia Cedarquist, a nurse employed at a Seattle (Wash.) hospital, deserted his bride on the farm home of her foster parents near here shortly before Christmas. The same day Dr. Frank dropped from sight, Miss Marion Z. Christopherson, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Christopherson, also disappeared. The last heard of the pair was a card received from Miss Christopherson, mailed in Kansas City, Mo. The girl wrote:

"Trade Lake is too darned small for me. I am sick of the sticks. I want to see the world. Tell Julia we are headed for Mexico and having a bully time."

Dr. Frank and Miss Christopherson met at a party on a farm, which was given in honor of his bride.

Sheriff Acquitted in Flogging Case.

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 5.—Sheriff Les Whitaker, charged with misconduct in office growing out of a recent flogging case here, was found not guilty by a jury in District Court today. The jury was out seven minutes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Dr. Johannes Fibiger, professor of pathological anatomy at the University of Copenhagen, has been awarded the Jung cancer research prize by the commission on award, composed of four of the faculty of the University of Munich.

Gives Insurance Rate Opinion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 5.—Attorney-General Barrett today advised Ben C. Hyde, State Superintendent of Insurance, that fire insurance companies doing business in municipalities which levy a tax upon them may increase their rates in those communities to cover the extra cost, but may not spread the increase beyond the limits of those places. This opinion by Barrett represents a reversal of his advice to Hyde last August, in which Barrett held that any extra cost so incurred should go into general expenses of the companies and so be spread over the entire State for rate-making purposes.

There is Strength in Every Tablet of This Newer Form of Iron

One dose often helps commence to enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves—it is a newer form of iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach. It is so prepared that it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimulation by the blood while some physicians claim metallic iron which people usually take is not absorbed at all. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of this newer form of iron—three times per day, after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

NOTE—The manufacturers of this newer form of iron known as Nuxated Iron are thoroughly reliable: since its introduction it has reached the stupendous sale of over 4,000,000 packages annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U.S. Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U.S. Courts and many physicians. We are able to guarantee that if you do not obtain all and even greater results than you expect from Nuxated Iron the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

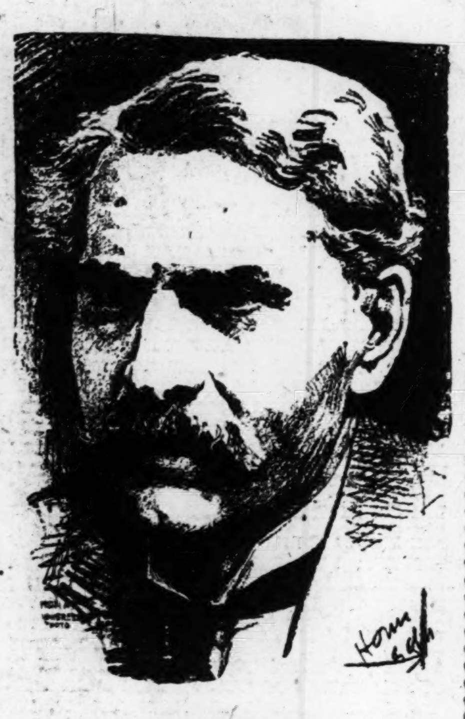
OPPOSITION TO GOVERNMENT ESSENTIAL TO GENERAL GOOD OF NATION, MACDONALD ASSERTS

British Labor Party Leader, Who Probably Will Become Premier, Makes Clear That There Is No Strain of Revolutionary Methods in His Leadership—Describes How Interplay of Opposing Party Forces Guards Interest of Public.

Denounces Dictum That the Duty of the Opposition Is to Oppose—Says, Instead, That Its Part Is to Criticise, Now Hold Back, Now Spur Party in Control to Keep Government and Administration a Bit Ahead of Public Opinion.



J. RAMSAY MACDONALD

The following article written for the Post-Dispatch and the New York World sets forth the political philosophy of the man who will become the next Premier of Great Britain, and will play a conspicuous part in world affairs. It makes plain, further, that there is no strain of revolutionary methods in the present leadership of the Labor Party. Mr. Macdonald's declaration being unequivocally in favor of constitutional methods. Parliament will meet Friday, and a crisis that will involve resignation of Premier Baldwin's government and installation of a new government is excepted to follow soon.

By J. RAMSAY MACDONALD.

THE makers of paper constitutions are coalitionists by nature. In the abstract, can anything be more logically or morally obvious than that men of good will and honest concern for the commonwealth should sit together as colleagues in effort, and devise, as a joint body, the ways and means of national and international well-being? In this instance, however, the creation of the study has little likeness to the needs of the world. That very simple expression "national well-being" is the common aim of diverse policies and opposing schools, and political controversy must be concerned in discovering in what it consists as well as in how it is to be secured.

The political field is not set out like a sports ground, but like a battle plain. The work of the politician who has any claim to be regarded as a useful citizen is to value appropriately the rival and conflicting interests and ideas of his time and correlate them into a system to guide him in his aims and his practical work. In everyday life conviction may have to compromise with conviction, and legislation be a resultance of conflicting forces; but unless these forces are kept active by independent expression, public life will become a sluggish and a muddy flow of deadening expediency.

Conservatism of Two Kinds

When leaders of opinion can strike no clear notes and can give the people nothing but a vague vision of moral ends, such as the lazy-minded or the cowardly use for soporific effect, the energies of public life slacken and the will to progress becomes weak. Minds unspurred by high and open controversy become lethargic, and then purely personal and class interests flourish in every field, and institutions like Parliament lose their grip on public interest and cease to be freshened by new drafts from the active intelligence in the nation.

At the end of strenuous political epochs, when the principles of further advance are confused, parties become partisan or are committees for the defense of sectional concerns, and the majorities are gathered by aggregates of self-regarding interests, each with a log to roll. But, normally, national life is maintained by two schools of thought, both equally conservative but one conservative in the sense that it stands still—the conservation of the skeleton; and the other conservative in the sense that it promotes organic change—the conservatism of the mind. Today the former is represented by the Tory and the latter by the Labor party.

It is all for the good of the nation that the two should be in clearly separated camps; should be free from all entanglements from each other; should, as the champions of opposing conceptions of what national well-being is, criticise and supplement each other's proposals; and now as drags. now as spurs keep legislation and administration up to, or indeed a little ahead of, the limit reached by the education of public opinion.

Public Should Be Partner

It is a profound mistake to think of Parliaments and Cabinets as bodies of specially wise or foolish men and endowed with a supreme power to do things for a passive people whose only function is to be to obey the laws. An essential part of the parliamentary or any other system of government is to educate the public so that it becomes an active partner in all that is done. Now, this is impossible without parliamentary opposition, active not only in the House of Commons, but on the public platform and in the press. Thus not only is interest, but education kept up.

The nation is kept alive to its own problems and to the ideas that are playing round them. It is enlisted as a jury in its own concerns. I know how difficult it is to get the facts before the jury. The advocate of new ideas is always handicapped by their newness. The first fate of a new idea is to be misunderstood and to become a bogy.

Nine-tenths of the anti-Socialist propaganda is bogy-dressing and points in the Socialist creed that are really vulnerable and need further consideration are passed over because it is easier to enlist fear and ignorance than full understanding. But no one can really complain of that. It is part of the resistance which society makes in its own interests before assimilating new ideas which are sound. The errors of Mr. Baldwin's speech on Socialism in Edinburgh have been the subject of examination on hundreds of platforms since it was delivered, and enlightenment has followed.

Must Test New Ideas

If society is to enjoy a stable evolution rather than endure a series of revolutions it must not suppress new ideas, but provide that they be tested before they are applied and understood before they are embodied in legislation. All we need strive for is to create the best conditions under which public education may proceed, and leave the rest to the ordinary operations of democratic government. Only in this way can we create the constitutional mind—the mind which assigns their special rights to both majorities and minorities and tolerates neither, whether Fascisti or Bolshevists exceeding those rights.

The moral and economic breakdown of capitalism, marked by its failure to provide a sufficient impetus to labor and to keep the flow of production, exchange and consumption steady, combined with post-war conditions, has presented the world with sheaves of problems of critical import. If these are to be dealt with by political methods we must have some assurance that Parliament is equipped with both the knowledge and the will to face them. The case of the sufferers must be put with plainness and with force.

The action finally taken may be a composite thing, but the discussions must be conducted by men free to express their own views, men who have come to no bargains behind the scenes and whose loyalty to colleagues does not necessitate silence or diplomatic equivocation. Coalitions can never put straight issues. As a matter of fact, the necessities of the case do not permit of such coalitions of forces or muffling of opinions.

Points of View Conflict

Today the Government and Opposition represent in principle diametrically opposed points of view; the one that "private enterprise" (as it is erroneously called) is good in itself, that public interest should be sacrificed to private gain, and that human beings should be subordinated to material things; the other, that economic power should be organized for social ends and that national prosperity must be considered in relation to the well-being of the mass of the people.

From the political clash of these two opposing views we are to have a legislative and administrative resultant which will carry us over our difficulties to a better social state But if the public are to have confidence in that method of settlement the clash must be in the open; the best that can be said on both sides must be said in the ears of the world and not around a private conference board and behind curtains; the electors must not be presented with the results arrived at but must see and hear the argument.

Not only is the best possible dependent on the prevailing view having to stand the test of public discussion, not only is the truth invigorated and promoted by being hammered and fashioned by the blows of rival champions, but if the political methods are to be accepted in preference to others which promise speedier results and more drastic effects, the country must be convinced that there is no humbug about it, and must see the conflict in full operation so that it itself is in a position to pronounce a verdict.

"Numbers Follow Reason"

One of the most precious inheritances of our Parliament is its tolerance. Whips may drive their flocks into lobbies as dogs do branded sheep, but the views of minorities, however insignificant, are expressed and have to be replied to, and this condition of tolerance secures that in the end numbers follow reason. But how can the nation reap the maximum benefit of stability from this unless every Government has to face benches where an alternative Government sits and every Parliament has a recognized and responsible opposition?

It was by no accident and by no fault of Ministers that the Parliament which sat between 1918 and 1922 steadily declined in esteem and interest; that its reports were not read and its galleries were rarely full; that it and its officials kept but a slack hand upon its privileges, and allowed, for the sake of its ease, changes to be made that increased the power of the executive unduly; that public honor was conferred upon recipients who cheapened and vulgarized the lists in which their names appeared and the badges of distinction conferred upon them. Government by party is open to great abuse unless conducted by men of honor and honesty, but it is the only way in which democracy can function and public life be kept vigilant.

As regards the working of the parliamentary machine itself, one has to come to the same conclusion—that a strong opposition is as essential as a strong government—governments have to be watched by men who will excuse nothing and condone nothing; bills and proposals have to be scrutinized by hostile eyes searching for failure to embody purposes and for looseness in expressing intention; lapses in rectitudes, like the puffing of Ministers by their own departments, have to be challenged by a parliamentary section whose business it is to let nothing of a doubtful nature pass.

Return to Freer Methods

This can never be done by men whose fortunes are in the keeping of Government whips and whose actions produced friction between themselves and the political organizations in which their political fate reposes. One has to regret that the comparatively recent doctrine that the Government must always win on a division, and that it must lose in prestige if it listens to criticism, is limiting far too much the usefulness of opposition, and I hope that one of the very first changes made in parliamentary practice by a Labor Government will be a return to the freer methods which once were pursued.

One has only to compare the clauses of bills of first-class importance—bills upon which the best departmental and drafting skill has been lavished—as first introduced with the draft of the bills when they leave the House of Commons, to see the work of an Opposition. In the present session the indemnity bill was so knocked about in fair debate that at one stage we had to suspend further discussion in order that the bill as it then stood might be printed anew, so that we might know what we were doing. As regards the housing and rent bills, although much altered by the criticisms of the opposition, amendments were rejected because the Government stood upon its armour proper, with the result that loosely worded clauses were kept in and will have to be interpreted in the courts.

Liberals Ready to Help Macdonald Make Good, Says Lloyd George

"He Has an Opportunity to Straighten Out Social Tangle"

"There May Be Three Parties, But There Is One Purpose....The Electors Gave An Overwhelming Mandate for Thorough Reform and Reconstruction in Every Department Where the Government Can Interfere."

"There Has Been a Rising and Swelling Insurrection.... Against Social Conditions Which Seem to Concentrate the Colored Lights of Joy on a Small Section of the Community, With Multitudes in the Dingy Gloom Beneath."

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
Former British Prime Minister.

(Copyright, 1924, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

LONDON, Jan. 5.

WHEN the new Parliament meets for business after swearing in of members it will have to set itself to disentangle what if one judges from appearances, will be the most confusing situation it has known during the long history of the British House of Commons.

There is a dramatic change in the protracted struggle for authority between Tory and Whig which has lasted for hundreds of years, with varying fortunes to the parties themselves, but, on the whole, with good fortune to the people of this country, whose issues were involved in the conflict. A third party has leapt into the arena with a challenge for both old parties. That party now holds second place and to it, therefore, falls the traditional duty of calling to account the Government in office, with a view to ousting it from power and then replacing it.

There will be no difficulty experienced in overturning the present Government, for the majority of the members of the new House have been returned to condemn the administration in all its ways. But what next? Labor and Liberal may agree to reprobate the Tory Government. But can they unite in support of any other? If they cannot, then how is an administration to be formed which would command that majority in the House of Commons upon which its continued existence depends? The Conservatives are pledged to protection. Neither Liberals nor Socialists can therefore keep them in power, for even if they drop protection they have made such a mess of affairs that the nation would not tolerate any deal which would perpetuate their rule. A Conservative administration is therefore out of the question in this Parliament.

The Socialists are pledged to a capital levy and nationalization. To both these proposals Liberals and Conservatives alike are opposed. The Liberals are committed, among other measures, to a drastic reform of the land laws, which the Conservatives certainly cannot support. They are also pledged to the preservation of private enterprise as the principal driving force in industry. This is radically opposed to the principles of the Socialist party. What party therefore is there that can hope to secure the majority which is essential to form a government? No party has a majority of its own. That is the quandary in which the new House of Commons will find itself on Jan. 15.

Flight of Capital to West

There seems to be no doubt in the mind of any political observer that the present Government is doomed. Mr. Asquith's recent speech at the National Liberal Club settled their fate. There is as little doubt that Mr. Ramsay Macdonald will be called on to form an administration and that he will succeed in doing so. Hence the signals of distress that are hurtling through the air in many quarters. At the prospect of a Labor Government, panic reigns in Mayfair, and is assiduously spread in the city and suburbia by missionaries of terror in and around Fleet street. The western skies are already black with the flight of capital seeking safety beyond the Atlantic. The fright is real. There has been nothing like it since the horror that filled the streets of Rome at the approach of Attila.

There is a loud wail for coalition once more. Mr. Asquith is implored to save the nation by coalescing with Mr. Baldwin to protect our threatened riches from the hands of the pillager. But the very men who are screeching for coalition today have made it impossible by their action of yesterday. It was only a year ago that they taught the nation to believe that united action by two parties of different principles for the good of the nation was insincere and dishonest and, therefore, in the interests of national morality, ought to be discontinued. Any Government based on compromise could not be an honest Government. The nation accepted the view so insistently urged upon it and it is not going to change in a hurry.

> ### "Let Macdonald Take His Chance Without Hesitancy"
> "IT is therefore his (Macdonald's) chance. Let him take it manfully and without hesitancy or delay and then alone will he make good. If he does, I earnestly believe that the Liberals in the House of Commons will see him through."
> "To the extent that the Labor leader defers to the counsels of various apostles of insipidity will he fail in his task. He has a chance such as no statesman has yet been given in Britian to straighen out the social tangle which chokes the well-being, happiness and lives of millions, but he will never rise to the heights of that opportunity by emulating the statesmanship of barren correctitude which has driven millions of the working classes, already in despair, into the arms of Socialism."
> "Labor and Liberal may agree to reprobate the Tory government. But can they unite in support of any other? . . . The Conservatives are pledged to protection. Neither Liberals nor Socialists can therefore keep them in power, for even if they drop protection they have made such a mess of affairs that the nation would not tolerate any deal which would perpetuate their rule."
> "The Socialists are pledged to a capital levy and nationalization—to both these. proposals Liberals and Conservatives alike are opposed. The Liberals are committed, among other measures, to a drastic reform of the land laws, which the Conservatives certainly cannot support. They are also pledged to the preservation of private enterprise as the principal driving force in industry. This is radically opposed to the principles of the Socialist party."
> "There is a loud wail for coalition once more. Mr. Asquith is implored to save the nation by coalescing with Mr. Baldwin to protect our threatened riches from the hands of the pillager. But the very men who are screeching for coalition today have made it impossible by their action of yesterday."
> "There may be three parties, but there is one purpose. . . . The electors gave an overwhelming mandate for thorough reform and reconstruction in every department of activity where the Government can legitimately interfere. Above the divisions and the discord one dominant note can be heard, 'Get a move on.'"
> "There has been a rising and swelling insurrection in the minds and hearts of the people against social conditions which seem to concentrate the colored lights of joy on a small section of the community, whilst it condemns multitudes to the dingy gloom which is behind and beneath."

As will happen when people lose their heads, all kinds of ridiculous proposals are forthcoming.

Discussions as to limitations of the King's prerogative of dissolution are all beside the mark. The new Labor Government is not likely to be so stupid as to ask for dissolution the moment it is formed. It will surely not make the mistake of putting its most contentious proposals in the forefront of its program. They have nothing to do with the immediate and urgent problems of government—settling the peace of Europe and finding work for the unemployed. At best the methods of a capital levy will take a long time to work out and could not be undertaken this year.

Agreement Between Parties

On all pressing questions—the foreign situation, housing, utilization of credit to provide useful work for the workless—there is substantial agreement between the parties. On all the questions, Liberalism would go just as far as Labor. And so will many of the more go-ahead Conservatives. I cannot imagine, therefore, any measure being introduced this year which will raise the direct issue between the existing economic system and national ownership. When it is raised, why should it be shirked? Is it in the interest of champions of private enterprise to appeal to the prerogative to prevent a decision being taken? If a Labor Cabinet is rushed by its fanatical members into madcap schemes that neither Liberals nor Conservatives can support and if it then wishes to have the opinion of the nation on those schemes, by all means let them have it. The people are quite capable of taking care of themselves without seeking shelter behind debatable applications of the royal prerogative.

For sheer naivette there is nothing to beat the resolution passed by the City of London Conservatives. Mr. Baldwin is to be asked to approach Mr. Asquith with the following proposition: Either Mr. Baldwin is to go on governing with Mr. Asquith's support, on the distinct understanding that no contentious legislation is to be introduced, or Mr. Asquith is to form a Government with the support of Mr. Baldwin on the same terms. The Liberals are to agree that there shall be no Liberal legislation for four years—or until such time as it suited the Conservatives to turn them out. Even the coalition Government carried home rule and many other measures not in the Tory repertoire. This is perhaps the coolest of all the suggestions put forward.

A worthy dean had an inspiration and communicated it to the press in the form of a Christmas message. He would meet the situation by arranging a little tea party consisting of Mr. Baldwin, Lord Grey and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, to run the empire on dainty, blue-china principles. There can be nothing in such festivity to frighten or offend the most timid spinster in his congregation. The presence of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald requires some soothing explanation. Here comes the wise audacity of the dean. With the constant example of two such well-behaved men as Lord Grey and Mr. Stanley Baldwin always before his eyes, the Labor leader would surely not steal the spoons. He might be taught not to spill tea on the tablecloth or even pour it into his saucer.

School Principal's Proposal

Mr. Jacks, the principal of Manchester University, also has his thought for the season. His suggestion is simple. He only asks for an assurance that the Labor party attach no more importance to their principles than do certain ecclesiastics in church to the Thirty-nine Articles. What could be more reasonable? Why has it been left to a man of such academic distinction to make such an obvious and practical proposal, consecrated as it is by such exalted usage?

To the extent that the Labor leader defers to the counsel of the apostles of insipidity will he fail in his task. He has a chance such as no statesman has yet been given in Britain to straighten out the social tangle which chokes the well-being, happiness and lives of millions; but he will never rise to the heights of that opportunity by emulating the statesmanship of barren correctitude which has driven millions of the working classes, already in despair, into the arms of socialism.

Most of the advice tendered is based on a misconception of the needs and of the temper of the nation. The electoral success of Mr. Bonar Law's appeal for a period of tranquillity and inaction was purely fortuitous. It is true that the tranquillizers were given a majority of 80 in the House of Commons as the result of the general election in 1922, but it was entirely due to the fact that the Conservatives captured 94 seats by means of a minority vote. If the means had been fairly distributed in proportion to votes the Conservative party would have been in a minority of at least 80 in the late House. At the polling booths the Conservative Government and its policy were voted down by over 3,000,000 of the voters. The nation emphatically did not approve the policy of lying down to rest. It intended to give a clear verdict in

A Reed-McAdoo Rumor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A VAGRANT rumor is abroad that Senator Reed will tell the world that he is for McAdoo for President. Naturally, he would head the delegation to the national convention. Whether he saw any handwriting on the wall during his recent excursion, instead of the Federal soldiers he was looking for, is not disclosed. But there is ample time between his attack on Gov. Gardner, and, seeing Gov. Gardner still alive, his apology for the attack, to realize that it is easier to get a Reed delegation ostensibly for McAdoo, than a Reed delegation for Reed.

It is an unobliging rumor that does not state how many ballots this Reed-McAdoo delegation will actually cast for McAdoo, but everybody would be guessing. And you could find Missourians who are sure, if a deadlock should develop in the convention, Senator Reed would rise to the emergency. Of course, there must be someone around to make it happen, as well as someone for it to happen to. What a coincidence if these two essential persons should be one and the same man! John Sherman had his Garfield, not to hint that Champ Clark had his Bryan. It is conceivable that Mr. McAdoo would trust Reed as implicitly as Sherman trusted Garfield, or as far as Clark trusted Bryan, which, indeed, was not far, Mr. Clark being from Missouri? Mr. McAdoo cannot be censured because he does not enjoy this distinction. But thousands of us do enjoy it. We are incredulously from Missouri. The trouble seems to be that it is chronologically impossible for Mr. Reed to show us before the event how many ballots he would go for McAdoo in a convention to be held later on. And we have got to be shown.

Of course, as Senator Reed would say, there is nothing personal in this. It is merely intended to convey the thought that if Reed were on the delegation, and said he was for McAdoo, none of his enemies, and precious few of his friends, would believe a word of it.

Cruelties in Trapping Animals.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

GRATEFUL thanks for the article on cruelties in trapping which you published in the Magazine Section of last Sunday's paper. I am sure if women generally knew or realized the suffering of animals in traps they would cease to wear furs.

Your article, "The Price of a Skin," will go far toward educating the public. People are not naturally unkind, but they are not awake to the cruelties around them. Most gratefully yours,

The American Spirit.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I READ with interest in today's Post-Dispatch (Dec. 30) the article written by David Lloyd George, former British Prime Minister, regarding observations of his recent tour through the Middle West and the South. It is true, as he observes, that the Middle West typifies the spirit and energy of the North. St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago—these are the young giants of the North struggling and striving to be the mighty industrial centers of the nation. The spirit of Abraham Lincoln still lives. Lincoln, man of the plain people, who typified the highest and noblest ideals of the modern industrial system, based upon free labor—now the mightiest industrial civilization the world has ever known.

The South, as Lloyd George observes, still lingers in the noble and heroic traditions of her past. In the heart of the South the spirit of Robert E. Lee still lives—Lee, gentleman and soldier, flower of the Southern aristocracy, typified all that was highest and noblest in a bygone civilization. In many ways the South still dreams of her heroic past. Southern life is more quiet. The North strives toward the future. Within her cities there is an atmosphere of strife.

However, the rising generation of young Southerners, while still clinging to the noble traditions of their heroic sires, realize that the highest ideals and aspirations of the present are found in the enterprise of modern industrialism—the American spirit.

Religion Interprets Nature.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN reply to C. R. Sheldon's question regarding the definition of religion, I have the following to say:

Religion is nothing more than the interpretation of nature's forces. Each religion represents a different view by a different set of people from a different angle. No two individuals from each set of people are mutual as to the meaning of religion, but each interprets it according to his education, broadness of mind and ancestral influence. It is made a pretext for good and for evil, according to the individual who embraces it.

WHY COOLIDGE IS STRONGER.

Mr. Coolidge's nomination seems as certain now as anything in the political future can be. The transformation in his fortune from the darkest of dark horses to a romping favorite may baffle the politicians, but it is easily accounted for, just the same. It was explained lucidly yesterday by the Post-Dispatch's chief Washington correspondent. The President, as our correspondent showed, has inspired public confidence by candor and courage. He has had the nerve to take an unequivocal position on issues which he might have evaded or straddled. By several acts, and notably in his message, he has made it clear he was not a trimmer. Public sentiment has reacted warmly.

There ought to be an object lesson for the Democrats in Congress in the Coolidge ascension. By exhibiting the same qualities they would evoke the same response. And the opportunity for such a demonstration is theirs. They have been given a rare chance to prove their capacity for public service. Let them join whole-heartedly in passing a revenue act which will substantially relieve the great mass of the people from the present crushing burdens and liberate business, and public favor will swing to them as surely as it has swung to Mr. Coolidge.

The magic of party labels has departed. Nobody who is not willfully blind fails to see that. There has not been a partisan victory in a national contest since 1908. Indeed, it is a question whether Mr. Taft's election can strictly be construed as a partisan triumph. Certainly the glamor of Roosevelt and the legendary distrust of Bryan were important factors in that battle. The subsequent campaigns have all been conducted under extraordinary circumstances in which party orthodoxy was a minor note.

In this year's campaign the old-fashioned appeals to party regularity will fall on deaf or derisive ears. Hymns of hate will also be obsolete. The specter of imperiled sovereignty will not be summoned from the spirit world. The war is over. The people believe it is high time that the country be operated on a peace basis. By peace basis they mean a peace budget. Taxes have got to come down, and the profiteering practices engendered by the war have got to be abolished.

The party that comes before the country with a convincing record of having tried to reduce taxes and with a straightforward plan for making profiteering a crime and for writing and enforcing adequate laws for punishing such criminals will command public support.

It is by no means certain that the Republican party, even under Mr. Coolidge's leadership, will meet this test. It is reasonably certain that, if the Republican party leaders had had their way, the Mellon plan of tax reduction would not have been proposed. But it has been submitted and in that fact lies the opportunity of the Democrats provided they have the courage, common sense and political acumen which Calvin Coolidge possesses in an uncommon degree.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Probably you are not familiar with the names of J. C. Coolidge, T. W. Wilson, S. G. Cleveland and H. U. Grant. Their surnames do sound a bit familiar, but their initials don't. Yet they are a quartet of American historical characters.

About 30 years ago John Calvin Coolidge won a medal awarded for the best essay written by a college senior on the principles underlying the American Revolution. This fact has come to light only recently, J. C. Coolidge appearing never to have mentioned it to anybody. Not long after he won that medal he changed his name by lopping off the John.

Mr. Coolidge is not the only President of the United States who has seen fit to alter his name; he has several illustrious exemplars. One of these was the late Hiram U. Grant. He used to live in St. Louis, as some of you oldsters may recall. But even in that early day he was known as U. S. Grant. Another person's error in his matriculation at West Point had made him Ulysses Simpson Grant for all time. H. U. Grant, like J. C. Coolidge, was a taciturn person, and when he found his name entered erroneously he just accepted the change in silence.

S. G. Cleveland was another of the Coolidge predecessors who didn't like his baptismal name as a whole. He was named for the Rev. Stephen Grover. He didn't fancy being called "Steve," so he dropped the Stephen; and his intimates in Buffalo called him "Grove."

Thomas W. Wilson, who, happily, still lives, though he has taken his secure place amongst the immortals, is known more widely as Woodrow Wilson. Champ Clark of Missouri, who came near being President in Mr. Wilson's stead, was James Beauchamp Clark originally. It appears that he didn't like the prospect of being called "Jim." Jim Reed, of course, is different.

DO WE WANT PISTOL BOOTLEGGING?

Representative Roach has introduced in Congress a so-called gun-toting bill, prohibiting the sale of small arms to private individuals and the advertisement of revolvers or pistols in newspapers and magazines. This is not a new movement, and if the proposed law would really stop promiscuous gun-toting by the criminal element, it would have merit. The demand for such a Federal law is based on the fact that state laws have not prevented lawbreakers from obtaining and carrying pistols. They have to a degree prevented law-abiding citizens from carrying such weapons for the purpose of self-defense.

The pistol-carrying habit, once almost universal, is now almost obsolete among law-abiding persons. But, with the increase in crimes of violence, especially hold-ups, robberies and automobile banditry, the need of the law-abiding citizen for some effective weapon is becoming more urgent. To deprive him of opportunity to possess and if necessary carry a pistol in self-defense, would be simply playing further into the hands of the hold-up and bandit class.

Through pistol bootlegging, the thug and bandit would surely obtain weapons. And a general prohibition on pistols and revolvers, such as this proposed law would bring about, would as surely drive the law-abiding citizen into looking to the bootlegger and smuggler for arms with which to defend himself. Also, this law is a further invasion of states rights and a further step in the centralization of all power at Washington.

As the Post-Dispatch has repeatedly suggested, the problem can be solved effectively by state laws and city ordinances prohibiting the carrying of pistols without permits, such permits to be granted only to citizens of good character. This would guarantee every man his constitutional right. And the possession of a pistol by anyone not having such a permit would be prima facie evidence of lawless intent in the use of it, to be punished accordingly.

HUMAN NATURE WEST OF THE RHINE.

Discussing the fall of the franc, the Temps discovers that French exporters are adopting the habit of leaving abroad a large part of the proceeds of their sales. The Temps calls this no less than treason. Whatever it may be called by the Temps the desire of people in a country where the currency is unstable to put their wealth outside the frontier in solid form is extraordinarily human and natural.

Germans who could export their wealth and put it in dollars and pounds instead of paper marks, did so. Frenchmen will do the same if the fall of the franc is not arrested. Economic motives are not very different on one side of the Rhine than on the other.

NO DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.

Nicholas Murray Butler, head of Columbia University, is against a Secretary of Education in the Cabinet. He says, "standardization, government made uniformity, bureaucratic regulations are not the allies of education, but its mortal enemies." He might have added that a Department of Education would add an army of tax eaters to the Federal service and further weaken the constitutional reservations of self-government for the states. Even the grant of Federal aid to state or private schools would be a dangerous innovation, discouraging the states in the work of maintaining their own educational institutions and encouraging them to look to Washington for educational guidance.

And in thus depending upon Washington for advice and aid for the schools, we should be in danger of falling into the condition of Germany before the war, when the central government held the schools and educators in the hollow of its hands, dictated what was to be taught, and made the schools a political branch of the Potsdam bureaucracy. In the interest of such freedom as we have left, let us defeat the attempt to centralize and bureaucratize education.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: I suppose you young men are interested in the efforts of Greece to have a republic?

Glaucon: Naturally.

Socrates: I assumed as much. Everybody pretty much wants a republic these days; but the case of the Greeks is particularly interesting, I think, because they have been trying to have a republic for anyway 2500 years.

Polemarchus: I should think they would know by this time whether they can have one or not.

Socrates: You would think so; but republics are among those ideals of which men somehow never despair.

Thrasymachus: Have the Greeks really been trying to have a republic as long as that?

Socrates: Certainly they have. They did have one 500 years before Christ; or at least they boasted of having one.

Polemarchus: What became of it?

Socrates: It collapsed, as all republics do sooner or later. A republic assumes what is probably not true at all.

Polemarchus: What is that?

Socrates: It assumes that men are capable of republicanism and prize freedom, whereas nothing proves better than the history of Greece that these are both illusions.

Glaucon: Why can't the Greeks see this?

Socrates: Because men persist in flattering themselves. They believe they are capable of thise fine things and go on trying to achieve them despite failure.

Thrasymachus: It does man great credit, don't you think?

Socrates: In one way it does. It is not to his credit that he is incapable of a republic, or would you say so?

Thrasymachus: It is not, of course.

Socrates: But it is to his credit that he believes himself better than he really is and constantly sets for himself marks he cannot make?

Polemarchus: Assuredly, Socrates. Will the Greeks model their new republic upon our own?

Socrates: I doubt it. They will probably build on the wreck of the republic they used to have in Greece.

Glaucon: At any rate, if your own republic is not all we have hoped for it, we have little to complain of having tried to have one only 150 years?

Socrates: That is true. The example of the Greeks, undismayed after 2500 years of failure, ought to be a great inspiration to us.

Glaucon: By Jove, yes!

Socrates: Very well. Now let us match pennies to see who buys a ton of coal.

Chile: What do you think of our Mexican arms policy?

Con Carne: I am afraid we have put an unpardonable slight upon Gen. Obregon, who could have won without us.

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, the anthropologist, whose own origin was in Belleville, thinks man originated in Europe. It has been customary to regard Asia as the cradle of the race, but after observing the conduct of man for the past 10 years we incline to the European theory ourselves. Only Europe, with its warlike tendencies and love of conquest, could have produced that predatory and incorrigible king of beasts which we know as man. Asia is entirely too peace-loving to have that indictment rest against her. Upon the contrary, she has given us all of our religions, every one of which exhorts us to peace. There remain only Africa and America. Dr. Hrdlicka does not think much of the monkey theory, which presumably originates man in Africa. He thinks man might have been related to the ape, but will not make the relationship more than cousins; which even Mr. Bryan may find tolerable. Nobody thinks man originated in America. He only came here after becoming such a damned crank that they would not let him live anywhere else in the world.

Someone who doubts the value of Rhodes scholarships points out that the greatest eminence to which any recipient of one of them has risen in the United States is to the chairmanship of the Rhode Island Democratic State Committee. We don't know just how this sort of thing is measured, but if we know anything about the kind of politics they have in Rhode Island getting to be chairman of one of the state committees would not have been a mean achievement for Cecil Rhodes himself.

THE NAME.

WHEN I am dead, who loved you so,
And quiet lie, at last, below,
Let not them plant upon that spot
The immortelle, forget-me-not,
Nor rose, nor any other bloom
For which the common grave has room.
Nay, leave me, till I hear again
The haunting music of the rain,
Till I can feel the footsteps pass
Of Springtime shadows in the grass,
Or guess that in a sunset sky
The wheeling swallows circle high.
I do not reckon Death so strong,
That he can wholly silence song,
And surely he has not the might,
To put all loveliness to flight.
Though Death a crafty thief may be,
He shall not take your name from me.
And if I must consent to go
With him, and lie so still below,
That much of beauty I'll retain,
And wind, and stars, and sun and rain
Shall creep around their prisoned kin,
And, suddenly, the seed within
Shall leap into a flower of flame.
Beloved one! Call it by your name.

OPPOSITION GOOD FOR GOVERNMENT, MACDONALD ASSERTS

The accuracy and the fullness of legislation depend as much on a critical opposition as upon the responsible government. Nor is that a complete statement of the case. It is the opposition which makes the business of the House of Commons. The Government produces the chief bills of a session and casts them on certain lines, but it is the opposition that examines them, that puts the flail of criticism on them; it is the opposition that has to keep an eye upon supply votes and, as a watchdog, to be as responsible for what is being done as the Government itself, though its responsibilities is limited to that of criticism and inquiry.

But, above all, it is the opposition that guards the liberty of Parliament against its natural enemy, the executive. It is in the nature of the executive to become a directory and to reduce the authority of Parliament; it is in the nature of the opposition to maintain the supremacy of the House of Commons.

An ill service was done to Parliament by Irish obstruction, but equally ill was the service done when leaders accepted the dictum that "the duty of the opposition is to oppose." That is not its duty, and so long as that is its conception of its function the precious time of Parliament will be wasted and the lives of working members shortened by sheer obstruction, generally silly though occasionally smart, and the Government will be less and less inclined to ride with a loose rein if partisan advantage is taken of the liberty given to private members.

The duty of the opposition is to examine and criticise, and, in relation to both commissions and omissions of the Government, to uphold the policy and the outlook of an alternative Government. I do not regard an opposition as a section acting with partisan implacability and using parliamentary opportunities to keep as empty as possible the cup of Government achievement and as fruitless as possible the hours spent at Westminster, and so scramble into office to be in turn thwarted by thickets of thorns thrown in its way; rather, I regard it as an essential part of the parliamentary machine whose function is not at all so negative as its name would seem to imply, but which is part of the composite dynamic from which legislation issues.

Thus, in addition to the other functions of an opposition, it provides a training in the work of Government, because it can only do its duty when its members are masters of parliamentary procedure and are familiar with all the processes of legislation and administration. In a sentence, neither the conditions under which representative and constitutional democracy can exist nor those under which parliamentary institutions work is a recognized official opposition as well as a responsible Government.

LIBERALS ARE READY TO HELP MACDONALD, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

favor of progressive measures of more or less advanced character.

That verdict it reaffirmed at the last election in more unmistakable terms. Both Liberal and Labor programs contained a reform more thorough than any embodied in the timerous political pronouncements of pre-war days. This is in accordance with the spirit of the times. In organization of industry, in improvement of machinery, in fact, in every department of activity the call is more than ever for new ideas and new developments to meet new conditions or new hopes created or revealed by the war. Why, then, should politics alone become a stagnant pool, filled with the dead and rotten leaves of past controversies?

The real desire of the nation is that its government also should be brought into the sweeping, quickening current. In 1922 the people failed to make their voice heard. They were defeated by the crudities of our electoral system. In 1923 they succeeded in making known their will. There may be three parties, but there is one purpose. There is a mandate against the imposition of tariffs; there is a mandate against the capital levy and of nationalization. The nation is resolutely opposed to the overthrow of the fiscal system or of the system of private enterprise upon which its prosperity is based.

Mandate of the Electors.

But do not imagine from this that the decision at the polls was a negative one. Let there be no mistake. The electors gave an overwhelming mandate for thorough reform and reconstruction in every department of activity where the Government can legitimately interfere. Above the divisions and the discord, one dominant note can be heard: "Get a move on." There has been a rising and swelling insurrection in the minds and hearts of the people against social conditions which seem to concentrate the colored lights ofk joy on a small section of the community, whilst it condemns multitudes to the dingy gloom which is behind and beneath.

It has been a constant source of surprise to me that they have stood these conditions so long. Why have they tolerated this state of things?

Shelley, in a song over a century ago, urged upon them the truth, "Ye are many—they are few." But the ingrained habit of countless ages of submission and servitude has held the masses down—at least the majority of them. And then there has always been another potent factor which has delayed and frustrated the designs and efforts of the reformers. Every time they have succeeded in stirring the people up to the point of demanding redress and amelioration, they have found such a dense jungle of vested interests in the way that their zeal has always cooled off and the effort invariably slacked before a yard of it was cleared. Then weariness and disappointment ensued and the people fell back into the old tracks, cursing the leaders who failed to fulfill the promise of better things beyond the jungle.

Up to the present the owners of vested interests have been so powerful in both the old parties that those who are engaged in clearing the road have never been given sufficient elbow room to wield the ax or the ax itself has been so blunted it failed to cut through the toughest and sturdiest obstacles. I shall never forget my own experience with the land taxes of 1909 and how the ax was blunted and notched by interests inside and outside. Some progress was made after prodigious effort. It took longer to get that bill through than any measure that was ever presented to the House of Commons. The first "Doomsday Book" on the land of this country since the days of William the Conqueror was organized and completed, but the taxes that were to be founded on it were completely mutilated and destroyed before they ever appeared on the floor of the House of Commons. The real taxation of urban land was defeated and 14 years after the great struggle which rocked the country from end to end, great land owners are not yet making contribution towards the costly improvements which built up their wealth. That is but one illustration of many which may be cited, especially when you come to a question like thatf of land, where interests are so deeply rooted in influence and prestige.

Mr. Ramsey Macdonald has vested interests of a formidable character in his own camp, but they are of a different kind to those I have indicated. They will ultimately, and perhaps soon, present obstacles just as refractory and stubborn as those which the privileges of a different class have opposed to progress. Sooner or later they will clog his footsteps and weight him down and tire out his strength, but in so far as interests which have hitherto blocked progress are concerned, he is more than the older parties. It is therefore his chance—let him take it manfully and without hesitancy or delay and then alone will he make good. If he does, I earnestly believe that the Liberals in the House of Commons will see him through.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

COLLEGE STUDENTS TO STUDY "PITTSBURG PLUS" PLAN

Washington University Among Those That Have Requested Copies of Treatise on Subject.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Fifty-seven colleges and universities will include the "Pittsburg Plus" practice in their courses of economics, W. E. McCullum, assistant secretary of the 32 organizations opposing the steel trade practice, said last night.

A short treatise on the subject had been prepared and submitted to professors of economics in 200 colleges and universities. Among the schools requesting copies of the treatise are Princeton, Yale, Cornell, Columbia, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Washington University, University of Oklahoma and University of Michigan.

No Such Thing As Leap Year

The calendar says 1924 is leap year, but no matter how pleasing it may be to the vanity of those born on the 29th of February to reckon their birthdays in terms of four year intervals, they can't dodge the inevitable alteration in vision caused by advancing years.

Those reaching middle life or young people compelled to use their eyes a great deal in office, shop, factory or school should have their eyes tested from time to time whether or not their sight seems perfectly normal.

Sight imperfections in vision that scarcely cause you any annoyance whatever at present may later develop into serious eye complications with all the attendant evils of eyestrain headaches and other painful symptoms of defective vision.

Dr. F. J. Guilbault

Form the habit of having me test your eyes at regular intervals. I have specialized for over twenty years in the correction of defective vision by properly ground lenses. No drops or drugs employed. No pain or annoyance of any description. My clients number thousands from every business and profession, but my charges are so reasonable that the humblest can easily afford them.

"That Man Owns His Own Home"

Imagine the thrill of pride which would fill your being if you overheard that remark and knew it was said about you.

Wouldn't you feel that you were a better citizen, a better neighbor, a better husband and a better father if you owned your own home and the land on which it stood? Wouldn't the future look brighter? Wouldn't you feel more secure in either sickness or unemployment if you knew that rent worries were a thing of the past?

Think of the advantage of living in a neighborhood where every man owns his home and feels a proud responsibility in overseeing the care of it. Imagine the pleasure of knowing you have established a home for your children, that you are a man of property and that the benefits of the wise investment you have made will be reaped by you and yours.

You can do all this by taking advantage of the great values offered you in St. Louis and suburban real estate. In the Post-Dispatch's Real Estate columns, today and every day, are splendid opportunities for a man of modest income to secure his choice of property with a deposit and pay for it while he earns it.

The greatness of St. Louis is beyond the realms of chance. The city must grow and the people who buy land now at the right price must profit.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to make a trip of investigation in and around St. Louis and see the splendid values which await you.

Don't put this off. Well-bought Real Estate is an investment with an increasing value. Take the Real Estate columns of the Post-Dispatch to guide you today and every day and go home-seeking for a place of your own. It will prove a profitable trip.

Calcium Wafers Bring Beauty

How Stuart's Calcium Wafers Transform a Pimpled, Muddy Skin to Pinkish Loveliness.

It was certainly a most fortunate discovery when it was found that one of the necessary constituents of skin health is calcium sulphide.

About twenty-five years ago this important substance was incorporated in Stuart's Calcium Wafers and since then thousands of girls have enjoyed beautiful complexions.

This wonderful substance removes from the system the waste products that often get into the skin to cause pimples, blackheads, blotches and such complexion disfigurements. Then the calcium is a natural aid to skin repair and health.

You cannot get this wonderful result from cosmetics or drugs nor can you have a clear, beautiful complexion without this wonderful calcium. So when you are near a drug store ask for a 60-cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers or send name and address to F. A. Stuart Co., 634 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., for a free trial package.

POLICE OVERLOOK ANOTHER STOLEN AUTO

Car Stood Three Days and Nights Without Lights—Third Recent Case of Kind.

For the third time within five weeks, citizens have come to the aid of the Police Department by directing the attention of patrolmen to stolen automobiles that remained unattended for days where thieves had abandoned them.

The latest instance of this kind was the recovery yesterday in the 6100 block of Etzel avenue of the automobile of Charles W. Brown, 4110 Turner avenue, from whom it was stolen Dec. 11. The car was abandoned where it was found last Monday and one policeman after another passed it day after day and night after night as it stood without lights, until a resident of the neighborhood directed an officer's attention to it. Chief O'Brien is making an investigation to determine why his men did not notice this car.

Similar Case Week Ago.

Just one week ago residents of the 4200 block of Enright avenue informed a policeman on the beat that he, his Sergeant and his walking partners on the different shifts had been passing an abandoned car in front of 4275 Enright that had stood there for three and a half days. An investigation disclosed that this car was the one used by robbers who held up Miss Georgie Belle Ray of the Brown Taxicab Co. and escaped with $4900 cash and some checks a week before. The checks and empty cashbox were found in the tonneau. Chief O'Brien is also inquiring into the lack of police perception in this case.

The two foregoing instances of lack of curiosity in patrolmen recalls the disciplinary transfer to other districts of four patrolmen early in December for letting a Packard sedan, belonging to Robert Lee Hedges, former owner of the St. Louis American League Baseball Club, that had been stolen and abandoned, remain parked seven days and nights in front of 5186 Pershing avenue.

Janitor Took Initiative.

Although the Police Department had been given a detailed description of this car within 10 minutes after the theft, not one of the four officers who walked that beat had the curiosity to notice it as they passed that way many times each day and night. It was a janitor who took the initiative in this instance and his deductions prompted the police to act and hand the car over to its owner.

CONTRACT FOR MISSOURI U. MEMORIAL TOWER AWARDED

Bid of Columbia Company for Work on First Unit Is Accepted.

The Board of Curators of the University of Missouri, which met in St. Louis yesterday, awarded the contract for the first unit of the University Memorial Tower to the Simon Construction Co. of Columbia on their bid of $112,980.

The bids were opened here by an Executive Committee of the board composed of President Stratton D. Brooks of the university, E. E Brown, business manager, and Leslie Cowan, secretary. Other bids considered by them were those of the St. Louis Contracting Co. and the Pickel Stone Co., bidding $120,802 and $122,735, respectively.

The calculated cost of the completed tower is $230,590. It is to be the center of the union, a $500,000 building for the use of alumni and for student activities.

Work on the tower is to begin at once, the foundation having already been built, and, according to B. L. Simon of the construction company, it is to be completed by March 1, 1925. It is at the west entrance to the university's east campus, and forms an archway into this division of the State institution's grounds.

The letting of this contract marks the first actual progress in the way of work beginning on the proposed memorial union, after more than two years of consideration. The drive for funds to build a memorial began with the tower as its first conception. It is to be a memorial to the 103 sons of the university who died in the World War.

Cold Wave Here Enhances Lure of Southern Resorts and Many St. Louisans Are Departing Early

Interest Divided Between the Riviera, Florida and Southern California—Some to Brave Rigors of the Adirondacks for Lake Placid Winter Sports.

EXTREME cold weather is hastening the annual migration of St. Louisans to the various winter resorts. With the short gay season scarcely over, many persons in the social world have already booked passage for early ocean voyages to the Riviera, or engaged suites in many of our own resort hotels. Interest seems well divided. Some prefer the palms and orange groves of Palm Beach and Miami, while others respond to the lure of the surf bathing and the sunshine of Southern California.

Many of the debutantes, those feted young women whose names have become so familiar to St. Louisans are planning trips to recover from the effects of a strenuous season. Mrs. [illegible] Blaksley Collins and her daughter, Miss Frances, will go to the Lake Placid Club in the Adirondacks in February. While not a winter resort, the winter sports on the lake will be quite a change from the continuous routine of bridges and dinners and dances which have filled the program here. Miss [illegible] Shepley, daughter of Mrs. Arthur B. Shepley, will accompany Miss Katherine Steedman and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fox Steedman, on their winter trip. The objective has not been decided upon as yet. Miss Frances Compton and her mother, Mrs. William Randolph Compton, will probably go East. Miss Evelyn Brown and her mother, Mrs. John Young Brown, will sail Jan. 2 on the Majestic, to spend a year abroad. Mrs. Brown's elder daughter, Mrs Brown-[illegible]allon, plans to join them in Paris next summer. Miss Josephine Moffitt, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel L. Moffitt, and her sister, Miss Olive, will sail on the Baltic Jan. 2 for a Mediterranean cruise. Mrs. Moffitt and her daughters will spend some time in Paris and London after the cruise. Other buds to winter in Europe are Misses Josephine Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Garrett, who will join friends in Italy in February and remain abroad until June; Miss Trimble Hoblitzelle, who will take the world cruise with her mother, Mrs. George K. Hoblitzelle; Miss Celeste Terry, who will sail for Europe with her father, Dr. Robert Terry, next month; Misses Judith Dana and Frances Fristoe, who are to accompany the latter's father, John Wallace Fristoe, across the Atlantic, sailing Jan. 14.

The winter travel is by no means confined, however, to the debutante. Mrs. Gustavo di Rosa, with her small son, Rene, will sail Jan. 16 for Paris, where Mr. di Rosa will meet them in February. They plan to spend the late winter on the Riviera and in Rome, returning to Southern France where they will lease a home for the summer, and where Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCree plan to join them. Mrs. Samuel B. McPheeters and Mrs. Guy W. Oliver will sail Jan. 9 on the Rochambeau for a trip to Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Lake and their daughter, Miss Louise, will sail on the 26th of this month on the Samaria for a four months' world tour. California, always a popular winter resort, will have its share of St. Louisans. Mr. and Mrs. William C. Stribling of the St. Regis apartments will be in Pasadena for the winter. They plan to leave St. Louis Jan. 29. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Overall and their small son departed Thursday for the West. Mr. and Mrs. John Fowler will join the California travelers in February. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Nugent of Hotel Chase, have gone to Miami for their annual winter visit, and Mrs. Joseph Dickson

Tennessee Society Banquet Tuesday

THE Tennessee Society of St. Louis will have its annual banquet at the St. Louis Woman's Club Tuesday night, Jan. 8, the date being the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, when Andrew Jackson defeated General Pakenham. Gov. Austin Peay of Tennessee, with Mrs. Peay, are to be guests of honor, and the Governor will speak. There are to be talks also by John Wallace Fristoe, president of the organization, and Frank P. Glass. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt will deliver the invocation.

The clubhouse is to be lighted by candles, and the glow from wood fires burning in open grates. Flowers will adorn the dining tables where 150 guests will assemble, and a photograph of Andrew Jackson has been hung on the wall. The women's committee comprises Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe, chairman; Mrs. C. A. Moreno, Mrs. J. W. Fristoe, Mrs. Frank Mayfield, and Mrs. John Calvin Roberts. Mr. Moreno is chairman of the arrangements committee.

Other activities at the Woman's Club this week include a luncheon to be given tomorrow by Mrs. Franklin Pierce of Bartmer avenue; a luncheon for Misses Josephine Garrett, Josephine Moffitt, Frances Fristoe and Frances Compton, to be given Wednesday by Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee; the table d'hote luncheon and card party by the club, Thursday, and the monthly dance by the Assembly Dancing Club, Friday.

A few debutante parties are still in anticipation. Friday night there will be Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman's dinner at the St. Louis Country Club for their niece, Miss Katherine Steedman; the following Friday, Dec. 18, an unusually large number of debutantes will make their first appearance at the Imperial ball at the St. Louis Club; Friday, Jan. 25, Miss Marie Christy Tiffany will be honor guest at a dinner dance at the Log Cabin Club given by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, and Saturday evening, Jan. 26, Mrs. Sidney Walker will have a table at the St. Louis Country Club for some of the buds and their escorts.

Miss Ann Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas J. Walsh, whose engagement to Walter Boehmer was announced yesterday

—Strauss

Miss Tallulah Cudd of South Carolina, who is being much entertained as the guest of Miss Marion Lane.

---

Formal announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Ann Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas John Walsh of 4372 Laclede avenue, and Walter Boehmer. The news was told at a bridge luncheon given by Miss Eleanor Walsh, sister of the prospective bride, at their home.

Miss Walsh attended Washington University, and later studied vocal music in New York under the direction of the late M. Coletti and Jerome Hayes.

Mr. Boehmer is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Boehmer of 4054 Lindell boulevard. He attended Culver Military Academy and during the war served overseas for two years as a lieutenant in the army. Later he became a captain in the reserves. He is a member of the St. Louis, Glen Echo Country, Sunset Hill Country and City Clubs.

The wedding will probably take place in the early spring.

News of the whereabouts of a number of St. Louisans traveling abroad reached here last week. Misses Mary and Laura Layman, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo A. Layman, and elder sisters of the debutantes, are at Nice, on the Riviera during the inclement weather, and in about six weeks will go into Italy for the spring. They are to remain abroad a year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tansey of North Newstead avenue, who have been in China for several weeks, spent Christmas in Singapore, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Meriwether and their son, Lee Jr., are in Egypt. Letters from Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benoist and their daughters say that they plan to go to Switzerland for the winter sports. They have been abroad a year and a half, much of which has been spent in Rome. They are expected home in the fall.

Mrs. L. Magruder Passano of New Brighton, Staten Island, is visiting her father, H. Chouteau Dyer, of 29 Lenox place.

Weddings Set for the Mid-Winter Interest Society

One of Most Important Will Be That of Miss Julia Hunt Lee and Stanley Moon—Scullin-Green Ceremony Wednesday.

MIDWINTER weddings, while not so numerous as in former years, are an interesting factor in the season's activities. One of the most important will be that of Miss Julia Hunt Lee, daughter of Mrs. Henry Turner Lee, and Stanley Moon. While the date has not been set, Miss Lee is to announce it soon, and the ceremony will be performed within the next few weeks.

Miss Lillian Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Walsh, is to marry David Carlander of Calcutta, India, before spring. Mr. Carlander is expected here in February, and the wedding probably will take place in March, when her sister, Miss Grace Walsh, can be home from her school in Boston to be maid of honor. Mrs. Peter Frank Smith Jr. of Chicago, formerly Miss Virginia Reller, will give a bridge luncheon for the bride-elect Jan. 12 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Reller, 24 Gast place, where Mrs. Smith is visiting.

The January ceremonies will begin Wednesday, with that of Miss May Scullin and Henry Prenatt Green, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, in SS. Mary and Joseph's Church, with a reception following at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scullin, 5218 South Broadway. Mrs. A. H. Sullivan is to be her sister's matron of honor, and William H. Bixby, best man. Mr. Green is the son of Mrs. Charles Green of 1917 Longfellow boulevard.

On the same day Miss Mary Wendler, daughter of F. L. Wendler of 14 Claytonia terrace, will wed Marvin W. Hemp, at an 8:30 morning ceremony in Our Lady of Lourdes Church, the Rev. Father O'Connor officiating. There will be a wedding breakfast at the Wendler home. Miss Barbara Wendler will be maid of honor for her sister, and Charles Hemp is to be his brother's best man.

Also on Jan. 9, Miss Genevra Sturdevant of the Buckingham Hotel, will become the bride of Craig Lathian Overholser of East Liverpool, O.

WEDDINGS SET FOR THE MID-WINTER INTEREST SOCIETY

Mrs. James J. Butler will be matron of honor, and Mary Alice Bailey, a niece of the bride, flower girl. Mr. Thorn's uncle, B. Thorn of Chicago, will be best man.

Miss Alice Busch, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Busch of Grant's Farm, has advanced the date of her wedding to Louis Hager, originally set for Feb. 2, to Jan. 19. Plans for the ceremony, which will take place in the evening at the Busch home, and the personnel of the bridal party, will remain as previously announced.

Mr. Hager will take his bride to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for a fortnight's honeymoon trip, before sailing on a cruise of the Mediterranean.

Miss Irene Goddard, daughter of Mr. and and Mrs. Warren Goddard of Brentmoor, and Edwin S. Elder, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Elder of Keokuk, Ia., will be an event of Jan. 26.

The wedding of Miss Madeline Lucy Lasar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Lasar of 5092 Raymond avenue, and Frederick Eaton Zeuch of Davenport, Ia., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Zeuch of Davenport, will take place by candle light Feb. 2 at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. Henry Forsyth of the King's Highway Presbyterian Church will officiate at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Katherine Zeuch, sister of the bridegroom, who recently visited here, will be maid of honor, and Mrs. Erwin C. Harms, matron of honor. Warren Zeuch will be best man. About 25 out-of-town guests will come by special car from Chicago and Davenport for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin N. Gould, who formerly resided here, and who have been at Hotel Chase for the holiday season, have departed for Atlanta, Ga., to visit Mr. Gould's sister. Later they will go to Miami, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns of 30 Lenox place, gave a dinner party for them Wednesday night.

COLD WAVE HERE ENHANCES LURE OF SOUTHERN RESORTS

Sr. and her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Stoner, will spend the season in Winter Park, Fla. Other Florida sojourners will be Mrs. H. H. Culver of Washington terrace and her sister, Mrs. Ward, who will be her guest. They will depart the latter part of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. eBnjamin F. Bush and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hawkins have gone to Jamaica.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flad of 17 Lenox place and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Lambert of Arcadia, Mo., plan to leave the latter part of the month for a trip to Panama. Mr. and Mrs. Flad's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Tower Dean of Chicago, and their small daughter, have recently come to St. Louis to make their home, and are guests at the Flad home.

Mrs. Alfred Carr Sr. of the Buckingham Hotel has gone to Mobile, Ala., aan dthence to Florida for several weeks.

Miss Virginia Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Welch Simmons of Hanley road, will return tomorrow to resume her studies at the Westover School in Connecticut, where she will be graduated in June. Miss Simmons and her mother are planning a trip abroad next year and she will be a debutante the following season.

Other St. Louisans returning to Westover will be Misses Elizabeth Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Douglas of 16 Vandeventer place; Miss Elizabeth Cuendet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Cuendet of 4 Hortense place; Miss Jessie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr of 62 Vandeventer place; Miss Katherine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herndon Smith of Ellenwood avenue, and Miss Katherine McCluney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. McCluney of Kingsbury place.

Benjamin Gratz of 5155 Lindell boulevard, and his sister, Mrs. John Johnstone, will depart Jan. 10 for the East. Mrs. Johnstone will go to Pittsburg to visit her daughter, Mrs. Hanson Thomas, while Mr. Gratz will visit his daughters, Mrs. Russell Carr in New York and Mrs. Godfrey Rockefeller in Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Charles E. L. Thomas and her daughter, Miss Mary Thomas of Kobe, Japan, will depart soon for the East after a visit to Mrs. Thomas' aunt, Miss Fannie Booth of Pershing avenue. Mrs. Thomas will enter her daughter at Eden Hall in Torresdale, Pa.

Mrs. Adolphus Busch of Busch place, her grandson, Leicester Faust, and his family, with relatives of Mrs. Busch from Germany who have spent the holidays here, will depart today for Pasadena, Cal., to spend the winter at the Busch winter home.

Miss Alma Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Vernon Clark of Westminster place, has gone to Cincinnati to be a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Helen Kaiper Jan. 10. She will return home in a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Grove of Hampton Park, and their three children, have returned from a visit to Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Alexander Ramsay Thompson of New York has announced the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. H. Wilfred DuPuy, formerly Miss Lily Heleker of Washington, D. C., to Capt. George W. Steele, U. S. N., Monday, Dec. 3, at the American Church of the Holy Trinity, Paris, France. Capt. Frank B. Upham, naval attache, and Mrs. Upham, were the witnesses. A breakfast for 60 guests, including Ambassador Herrick, followed the ceremony. Capt. Steele is in Paris to inspect the dirigible Z-R 3. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the Riviera, and will make their home in Washington. Mrs. Thompson is well-known in St. Louis, and has frequently visited her cousins, the Misses Harris, both here and in Barnhart, Mo.

SHIPLEY TO HEAD SUMMER SCHOOL OF WASHINGTON U.

Opening Date Scheduled for June 16—Courses to Be Six to Eight Weeks.

Frederick W. Shipley, professor of Latin and director of the division of university extension at Washington University, yesterday was appointed administrative head of the new summer school by Chancellor Hadley. The school will open June 16 and continue from six to eight weeks, according to courses taken.

Other appointments to the administrative board were announced as follows: Prof. Otto Heller, chairman of the board of graduate studies; Dean Walter McCourt; Dean William McKim Marriott, Prof. Tyrell Williams, Prof. Isaac Lippincott, Profs. George R. Throop, T. M. Marshal, R. F. Jones, George C. Kyte and Philo Stevenson and George W. Lamke.

Advertises for Minister.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LOUGHBOROUGH, England, Dec. 18.—Canon Briggs of this town is much concerned at the lack of curates, which he thinks will make the filling of high offices in the church 20 years hence difficult. The canon says he has advertised for a curate in the church papers for several weeks and has not yet received a single inquiry.

WOMAN LEARNS CHRISTMAS GIFTS WERE SENT C. O. D.

Makes Inquiry of Postal Department When She Begins to Receive, Money Orders From Friends.

A young woman whose name is withheld by the postal authorities learned yesterday that owing to an odd mistake all the persons to whom she mailed Christmas presents were required to pay cash for the presents.

She visited the Postoffice Inspector's office Friday and exhibited a sheaf of money orders for various amounts which had been sent to her.

"I can't understand," she said. "These money orders have been coming to me in almost every mail. I don't know why, but I want it investigated."

An investigation was made and it was found that a few days before Christmas the young woman entered the St. Louis Postoffice with an armful of bundles, all Christmas presents for friends, and went to the registry division to have them insured. She was not accustomed to the procedure and in answering the questions put by the clerk she put a valuation on each package and ordered the packages sent C. O. D.

The young woman was advised that the only way to straighten out the tangle would be to refund the money to the recipients of her "cash-on-delivery" Christmas presents.

THRIFT WEEK TO BEGIN JAN. 17

Plans for local observance of National Thrift week, Jan. 17 to 23, inclusive, have been completed by the St. Louis Thrift Week Committee, of which Byron W. Moser is general chairman.

Each day has been set apart for consideration of a special subject, as follows: "Thrift Day," "Budget Day," "Pay Bills Promptly Day," "Share With Others Day," "Life Insurance Day," "Own Your Own Home Day," and "Make a Will Day." Five-minute talks will be given during the week at many business and industrial establishments.

PARTIES MARK CLOSE OF HOLIDAY PERIOD.

The annual tea dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club yesterday was almost the last holiday party which inclued the younger set, for most of them have resumed their studies and the last contingent of young women who attend out-of-town schools and colleges will depart early this week. Among the hostesses yesterday were Mmes. Horace M. Rumsey, John Duncan, Charles A. Cox, Henry C. Whiteside, J. R. Eakin, Guy H. Wright, William G. Yantis, F. R. Cornwall, John O. Ockerson, Mary B. Pollard and E. A. Hadley.

The guests at Miss Marion Lane's party Friday at the St. Louis Woman's Club were Misses Helen and Mildred Petring and the latter's guest, Miss Marion Norton of California; Dorothy Bolin, Margaret Eakin, Jane Whiteside, Louise Keeshan, Marion Laessig, Jessamine Rugg, May Cabanne, Frances Bradshaw, Margaret Herman, Rose Cronk, Virginia Price, Gertrude Heil, Louise Cramer, Esther Troy, Virginia Lynn, Katherine McTague, Lorraine McClay, Eleanor Atkins, Marie Martin, Mary Elizabeth Lynn, June Curran, Dorothy Wray, Katherine Engle, Dorothy Monroe, Mrs. Mildred Conner and Mrs. Sidney Busch. The honor guest was Miss Tallulah Cudd of South Carolina, Miss Lane's guest.

Mrs. John Trigg Moss gave a tea to the St. Louis Chapter of the United States Daughters of 1812 and their friends on Friday afternoon, Dec. 28, at the Trigg home, 6017 Enright aenue. Assisting Mrs. Moss were Mrs. L. C. Reilly, regent of the St. Louis Chapter, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, Mrs. A. T. Halet, Mrs. H. P. Williams, Mrs. Harry Wagoner and Mrs. L. Hawk, members of the board. Mrs. Gavin Thompson was an honor guest. Presiding at the tea table were Misses Janet and Adele Stine, Helen and Berenice Todd, Monta Oftofy and Essie Maltock.

Mrs. T. O. Moloney entertained a group of friends at a bridge luncheon Wednesday afternoon at her home, 6309 Pershing avenue. There were five tables for cards, and the guests included Mmes. John Carleton, E. J. Castigan, F. P. Furlong, Chris O'Brien, M. Scanlon, Blanche McMenamy, L. E. Dorr, J. J. Mullen, D. J. Halloran, Ed. Mannion, J. J. Fitzgerald, Charles M. Hunt, J. J. Ryan, Thos. The 1923 class of Hosmer Hall had a reunion luncheon last Wednesday at the College Club, and among those attending were a number of girls home from colleges, including Misses Katherine Butts, Dorothy Dick and Elizabeth Wearen, who are attending Wellesley College, Miss Elizabeth Logan, Stephens' College and Miss Adelaide Schroeder, Bonner College.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Hopkins of 4838 Cote Brilliante avenue will entertain about 20 young persons tomorrow evening in honor of their niece, Miss Betsy Sherwood, who is home from Stephens College for the holidays.

Mrs. W. N. Hayes of 1221 Clara avenue will give a buffet supper tonight at her home in honor of her niece, Miss May Meary of Chicago, and Mrs. D. O. Macfarland of Little Rock, Ark., who are visiting her. There will be 15 guests.

A polo ball at Jefferson Barracks was given the evening of Dec. 28. The headquarters building, overlooking the river, was festooned with blue and gold, and banners and insignia of the various organizations of the Sixth Infantry. Clusters of polo mallets decorated the tall pillars, while pyramids of polo balls were grouped about. The Sixth Infantry Band played the dance music. Showers of confetti added to the gayety of the scene. Supper was served at midnight. The committee in charge comprised Capt. and Mrs. Allen W. Jones; Lieut. and Mrs. William H. Dean and Lieut. George Boyle. The ball was preceded by a number of supper parties, at which a number of officers entertained guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Levy of 5736 Westminster place will be at home informally Sunday evening, Jan. 13, to celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Miss Marjorie Haliburton gave a recital and tea for the mothers of her pupils, Dec. 29, at her home, 3861 Lafayette avenue. A program of readings and songs was given.

Mrs. Shirley Remington of Washington boulevard was hostess at a bridge luncheon Saturday, Dec. 29, complimentary to Miss Anne Fincher, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Fincher of McPherson avenue. The guests were classmates of Miss Fincher at Washington University and included Misses Hertha Gull, Ruth Hausman, Dorothy Withrow, Elizabeth Bond, Dorothy Dyer, Sallie Griffiths, Royce Rooks and Mrs. Henry Waters.

Mrs. John Prentis of Fairview avenue gave a bridge luncheon Friday afternoon for eight guests.

Dr. A. J. Sparks of South Bend, Ind., spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sparks of 5965 Wells avenue. He was a guest Christmas night at a party given by his sisters, Mrs. J. A. Burack and Mrs. David Burack of 733 Heman avenue, in honor of their younger sister. Miss Ann

Clearing Sales on Fifth Floor

THE details of the Clearing Sale news from the many popular departments on the Fifth Floor would require several pages for adequate presentation. In this announcement it is possible only to list the various departments that are participating in these sales, with a mere suggestion of the important values that will be offered:

China Pottery Glassware
Lamps Fixtures Artwares
Housewares Toys Etc.

Many Dinner Sets and odd lots of Fancy China are offered at ½ off.

In the Pottery offerings are imported jardinieres, umbrella stands, teapots, etc., at great reductions.

Glassware provides all heavy Cut Glass and a large assortment of colored Glassware at ½ off.

Lamps, Shades and Fixtures offer very unusual savings.

The Oriental Bazaar features marble and alabaster pieces, metal-trimmed fancy china, pottery, trays, art objects, etc., in groups specially priced, with ½, ⅓ or ¼ off.

Housewares provide enamelware, electric percolators, carving sets, baskets, casseroles, etc., all greatly reduced.

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS

The engagement of Miss Janet Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harrison of 3228 Copelin place, and Jack P. Baird of Evansville, Ind., was announced Thursday at a bridge luncheon at her home. Mr. Baird is a graduate of Illinois University and a member of the Sigma Epsilon Fraternity. Among the guests were Misses Anna Louise Fuller, Frances Fuller, Justine Ottofy, Frances Ottofy, Aimee Juede, Lucille Kahn, Wanita Doyle, Ruth Reun, Miriam Garver, Elizabeth Russell, Francina Palmer, Virginia Fisher and Mmes. Baker and Kaiser.

The marriage of Miss Georgine Culling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace R. Culling of 6829 Waterman avenue, and Frank Stafford Hager took place quietly Dec. 1 in Clayton, and was announced to their respective families a week ago, when they departed for their wedding trip. A large church wedding had been planned for February. The couple will visit Miami and Palm Beach, Fla., and will make their home at 7043 Westmoreland drive, a bridal gift from Mr. and Mrs. Culling.

Miss Helen Eckert was married to James McCann on New Year's eve at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William H. Eckert of 5936 McPherson avenue. She was gowned in white satin and chiffon, made with a court train with a lace panel. She carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Martha Healey, as bridesmaid, wore a quaint gown of flowered pink silk and velvet and carried pink roses. Mr. Viterbo attended Mr. McCann. The Rev. Dr. Skilling of Webster Groves performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few close friends. The ribbon bearers were Warner Healey and Joseph Ward of Decatur, Ill. The house was decorated with smilax, white roses and candles. Mr. and Mrs. McCann departed for a short trip, after which they will be at home at the Huntington apartments.

Miss Lydia Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Mueller, was married the evening of Dec. 27 at the Evangelical Lutheran Church to J. J. Maddock, son of Lawrence Maddock of 1818 Oregon avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Behnken. The couple remained here for New Year's eve, and will make their home in Corsicana, Tex.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Antoinette Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Miller of 3450 Halliday avenue, and Marion S. Flegle, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Flegle of 3127 Gurney place. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Young of 5095 Raymond avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Aubrey Young, to Joseph Heiman of Iola, Kan., son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Heiman of Westgate avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kessler of 6008 Bartmer avenue announced the engaement of their daughter, Miss Flora Kessler, to Robert Verschleiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Verschleiser of the Albany Hotel, at a reception given at their home on Christmas day.

Mrs. Hannah Auer of 4904 McPherson avenue announces the engagement of her son, Eugene Auer, to Miss Anita Lesser, daughter of Mrs. Jennie Lesser of Denver, Colo. There will be an informal reception at the Auer home this evening from 8 to 11 o'clock.

Miss Florine Hamer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zirkle of Maplewood, was married on Dec. 23 to Carlisle L. Strauss of Fort Sumter, S. C. They will make their home there.

A holiday wedding was that of Miss Margaret Sheahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheahan of 917 North Newstead avenue, and George R. Hoffman, son of Mrs. Marie Hoffman and the late Capt. George Hoffman, which took place Wednesday. The Rev. Father Brinkman performed the ceremony at the New Cathedral Church in the chapel of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The couple will live with the bride's parents.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Dillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dillman of 3438 Wyoming street, to Louis E. Favez of St. Louis, was an event of Saturday, Dec. 29. The Rev. Ferguson, pastor of the Gibson Heights Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony at 11 a. m., after which the young couple departed on their honeymoon south.

Mrs. Hannah Lang of 1426 Mallinckrodt street announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marie, to Theodore Jockenhoefer, at a party given by Mrs. Lang in honor of her daughter, on Dec. 25, at which 20 guests were present.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Alys Bramble to Mr. John Bernard Renne, on Dec. 22. Mr. and Mrs. Renne will reside at 3405 Pestalozzi street.

Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Stuart of Chesterfield, Mo., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jessie A. Stuart, and Charles W. Schnaider of Manchester, Mo., at a luncheon given at the home of Mrs. Mary Craft, 1233 Goodfellow avenue, Saturday, Dec. 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kelman of 2806 Dickson street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marie Kelman, to Mr. Oscar Morganstern, son of Mr. A. Morganstern of 1152 Bayard avenue.

If Hair is Turning Gray, use Sage Tea

YOU can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Beauty Unsurpassed

The wonderful, refined, entrancing complexion rendered, brings back the appearance of youth. Results are instant. Highly antiseptic. Exerts a soft and soothing action. 80 years in use. White Flesh-Rachel. 2

WOMEN'S LITERARY AND SOCIAL CLUBS ACTIVE

the business was attended to, the program of the afternoon was enjoyed. Mrs. Paul Treuman prepared a paper on the "Influence of Shakspeare on Goethe," which was read by Mrs. Norman Wolff. "The Theater in Germany at the Time of Goethe" was described by Mrs. Edmund J. Marx Jr., whose paper was read by Mrs. Oscar Marx. Discussion of "Goethe as Critic" was led by Mrs. A. P. Greensfelder.

The St. Louis Chapter, National Society, Daughters of 1812, will meet at the Gatesworth Hotel Jan. 8 at 2 o'clock. The hostesses will be Mrs. P. A. Crowe and Mrs. L. C. Reilly.

The Margaret A. E. McLure Chapter, U. D. C., will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. Griswold, 5245 Washington boulevard. Mrs. A. Daues and Miss Laura Philippi will assist the hostess.

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood, M. F. W. C. was held Jan. 3 at the home of Mrs. Robert Warner of North Kirkwood road. Mrs. Warner also had the paper of the day, entitled "The Influence of Music in Community Life." Mrs. Harry McKelvey will be hostess for the club on Jan. 17, and Mrs. R. N. Stubbs will take as her subject "Miles Standish," with musical selections.

The Cornelia Greene Chapter, D. A. R., met Jan. 2 at the home of Mrs. Wheaton C. Ferris, 6995 Washington boulevard. Miss Jean Witt of Little Rock, Ark., a member of the chapter and the guest of Mrs. Ferris during the holidays, assisted her.

Reports were given by Mrs. John Trigg Moss and Miss Essie Matlack of the parties given annually at the City Infirmary and the Card Mission. The following members will represent the chapter at the National Conference at Washington in April: Mrs. John Trigg Moss, vice president-general; Mrs. Eugene Fusz, regent; Mrs. L. C. Reilly, delegate; Mmes. O. L. Furbringer, John Zahorsky, F. W. Green, C. A. Jackson, W. C. Ferris, R. A. Burns, Justus Pfaff, J. E. Weber, T. F. Browne, and Miss Mary V. Sherer, alternates.

At the last meeting of the year, held at Jefferson Memorial Dec. 28, the following officers were installed: Regent, Mrs. Shelby H. Curlee; first vice regent, Mrs. Edward G. Tutt; second vice regent, Mrs. Milton C. Marshall; recording secretary, Mrs. Frederick H. Starr; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James C. Crowdus; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur M. Wilson; registrar, Mrs. William D. Simmons; historian, Mrs. Frank L. Scott; chaplain, Mrs. Lewis W. English; directors, Mrs. Joseph T. McAdoo, Mrs. W. M. Weatherford and Mrs. Charles P. Williams; regent, Children of American Revolution, Mrs. Walter Fabricius; parliamentarian, Mrs. Wallace Delafield.

Retiring members of the board were Mrs. William G. Boyd, Mrs. A E. Whitaker, Mrs. James H. McCabe and Miss Hallie Baker.

Immediately after adjournment a reception was given to the new officers and out-of-town guests, Mrs. Joseph T. McAdoo and her committee presiding at the tea tables.

The Gamma Delphian Chapter will resume its regular bimonthly meetings on Jan. 14 at 2 p. m., with the study of "Egypt of Bible Times." The general theme, "Egyptian Civilization Modified by the Asiatic," will be discussed by Mmes. Custer, Demko, Fleming, Gale, Penell, Schacht, Wycoff and Sutter.

Three illustrated lectures are to be given by Mrs. Francis G. Eaton, diocesan treasurer of the United Thank Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary, Episcopal Church, to explain the work of women missionaries supported by the offering. The United Thank Offering is a system of giving in the Episcopal Church whereby women put money in a "little blue box" as an occasion for thanks arises. The offering is presented at every triennial convention of the Episcopal Church, and in 1922 amounted to $681,145.09. Mrs. Eaton's lectures will be open to all who wish to attend, and will be as follows: Jan. 8, 2:30 p. m., Church of the Holy Communion; Jan. 11, 2:30 p. m., Emmanuel Church, Webster Groves; Jan. 15, 2:30 p. m., St. Michael and All Angels' Episcopal Church.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis Girl Scout Council will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the new headquarters of the Girl Scouts, 3858 Westminster place.

The annual luncheon and election of officers of the Lloyd R. Boutwell Auxiliary of the American Legion will be held Jan. 8 at 1 at the University Club. Reservations should be made to Mrs. W. H. Luedde, Forest 5067, not later than Jan. 7.

Mrs. W. McCurgo was hostess for the annual Christmas party of the Book Club at her home, 5413 Bartmer avenue, the afternoon of Dec. 27. The club was divided into groups, each, under its own chairman, to form the program by giving an act of its own. Mrs. J. N. Brannock's group gave a guessing contest; Miss Huette's a most surprising modern drama, "The Gathering of the Nuts;" Miss Baker's, "The Dancing Midgets;" Mrs. J. M. Lashly's, "A Shakspearean Tragedy;" Mrs. O. J. Krummenacher's was a quartet of "Merrie Singers;" the last and crowning event was given by Miss A. M. Scott's group, "An Auction;" Mrs. W. B. Knight was auctioneer and Mrs. G. W. Hendrick a collector. The arrival of Santa Claus with two crimson stockings overflowing with gifts brought the afternoon to a close.

The regular monthly meeting of the George Dewey Mothers' Circle will be held Thursday at 3 p. m. in the kindergarten, when the annual election of officers will take place. Dr. Harriet Cory will speak on "Social Hygiene."

The Ensee Study Circle will meet at Hotel Jefferson with Miss Mabel Johnson as hostess on Jan. 14 at 1 p. m. Mrs. A. W. Willcuts will speak on the "American National Monuments," and Mrs. D. A. Nylander will discuss Michael An-

The One Instrument that Everyone Can Play

YOU can learn the scale in an hour's practice, play popular music in a few weeks, and take your place in orchestra or band within 90 days, if you so desire.

BUESCHER

True-Tone Saxophone

It is the one instrument that everyone can play—and it wholly satisfies that craving everybody has to personally produce music. It is so perfected and simplified that it is the easiest of all musical instruments to master. Nothing can take the place of the Saxophone for home entertainment, church, lodge, school. It increases the pleasure you get out of life, increases your popularity and your opportunities.

Easy Payments

You may purchase any Buescher Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet, Trombone or any other Band or Orchestra Instrument and pay for it on terms to suit your convenience. Let us show you our Buescher line.

75% of all popular phonograph records are played with Buescher instruments. Hear them on your phonograph.

Free Saxophone Book

The Buescher Saxophone Book tells which Saxophone takes violin, cello and bass parts, and many other things you would like to know. Ask for a free copy.

290,000 Bottles Sold In St. Louis

Science Says Greatest Medical Success in 2000 Years.

MENTHO-LAXENE

For Coughs and Colds.

"Night Coughs" Ended Quickly!

Mentho-Laxene Acts Quick—Costs Little—Never Sickens

Science wins over guess work—

Every bottle absolutely guaranteed to break up any cold, relieve cough quick, end stuffy misery in few hours. "Tight" Coughs and "Night" Coughs go quickly with first few doses. Congestion and Inflammation quickly routed—permits sound, restful sleep.

Six times stronger than others. Take it straight or dilute with syrup or honey. Delicious flavor either way. Free from opiates—never upsets stomach.

Thousands here use it instead of sickening tar, chloroform, etc.

Praise From Everywhere Proves It Best.
Quick Relief—Final Results—Delights Sufferers
The One Cough Medicine that Induces Double Action

Mentho-Laxene Contains No Opiates or Chloroform. It is not a "fooling" treatment—it is a curative treatment. Mentho-Laxene possesses the mighty power of quick relief—without opiates.

Daddy: "Mother, you did'nt cough once last night"!
Mother: "Not once! Mentho-Laxene stopped my coughing. It's a wonderful remedy".

Mentho-Laxene Helps After Others Failed

Dear Sirs: I had taken cold and the cough which followed became so bad I could not get any rest at night. I tried Doctors and patent medicines until I grew discouraged and "disgusted." Seeing an advertisement of Mentho-Laxene Cough Syrup, I decided to try again and one bottle wholly relieved that tight, hacking cough which had almost worn me out. I keep a bottle for family use and take a few doses whenever I begin to cough, as I am a coal miner and getting so hot and clothing wet with sweat and then cooling off and breathing so much dust, makes it easy for one to catch cold. I am,

Very respectfully,
(Signed) GEO. PACK.
831 Hight St., Eldorado, Ill.

Mighty Healing Power Proven to You. Read This Unusual Guarantee!

To anyone who has a non-tubercular cough due to Colds, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Whooping Cough or Spasmodic Croup: Stop suffering!

Obtain a bottle of Mentho-Laxene from your druggist—use it regularly as directed for 24 hours and if in any manner you think it unworthy, send us the empty bottle (which cost you not over 75c) and we will send you by return mail one dollar—(25c more than you paid). We ask no questions—we only want the empty bottle and your address. Could any offer be more fair? (Our annual business of half million dollars warrants this.)

$1000 Reward! If every letter published is not the genuine unsolicited, unpaid-for expression of the users of Mentho-Laxene.

The Blackburn Products Company,
Dayton, Ohio

Blackburn's Mentho-Laxene is a highly concentrated essence. Has a delicious flavor and many use it full strength, while others prefer to dilute it with sugar syrup or honey—thus making a full pint. It is six times stronger than ordinary cough syrups. Full directions with each bottle. Obtain Blackburn's Mentho-Laxene at any Drug Store.

St. Louis People State MENTHO-LAXENE STOPS COUGH QUICKEST

"COULDN'T DO WITHOUT IT"

From Mrs. L. E. Woodson, 2136 Chestnut st., came this letter, like thousands of others, relating the typical "Power of Mentho-Laxene" to stop obstinate coughs and colds. Mrs. Woodson writes: "I have taken one bottle of essence Mentho-Laxene and am starting on another. It has helped me so much that I cannot say too much for it. I have suffered from (bronchial) asthma for several years and shortness of breath whenever the weather changes. At such times I have sneezing, coughing and also have awful attacks of asthma. A friend advised me to try your medicine and I did, and it has helped me so much that I could not do without it. My coughing is almost gone and I don't suffer with the asthma now. I think it is gone or on the way of going. I have not been so well in years."

NOTE: We do not claim that Mentho-Laxene can cure asthma, but the benefit of relief alone is worth much to those who are so afflicted. Should it fail to help anyone, purchase price cheerfully refunded.

MRS. PROBST PRAISES MENTHO-LAXENE

Dear Sirs: Am writing a few lines in regard to your Mentho-Laxene cough medicine. Am now using my second bottle and I think it the best medicine on the market. My baby had such a cough, we thought she had whooping cough. I read so much of your medicine, and I had tried almost every medicine but yours. We didn't have any rest at night for three weeks. Since I've been giving her Mentho-Laxene she sleeps fine. The first couple of nights I got up and gave her a dose in the night, but after a few days her cough was gone. Now I have a bottle for my older girl and sure wouldn't have any other. Sincerely yours, Mrs. R. Probst, 913 Buchanan st., St. Louis, Mo.

St. Louis Family Have Used Mentho-Laxene For Past Three Years.

Mrs. E. Snedmeyer, 4307 N. 20th st., St. Louis, Missouri, writes: "I am writing in regard to your wonderful medicine, Mentho-Laxene. I must say it has proven its worth in our family for the past three years, as we are all subject to colds in the winter months, and especially my husband always had a bronchial cough all winter, but since taking Mentho-Laxene, he is never troubled any more. We have bought six bottles since we began its use and many thanks to you for the good medicine, and The St. Louis Star for the advertisement, which called it to our attention."

Gray Hair Is Quickly Darkened

Makes One Look Twenty Years Younger.

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair with a simple home mixture.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, ¼ oz. of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

A SUGGESTION for MOTHER: USE a POST-DISPATCH HELP WANT AD to SECURE HELP NEEDED for HOME CLEANING.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES OF MISSOURIANS AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Among the group of societies and State organizations which marched in a body to greet the President and Mrs. Coolidge on New Year's Day were 100 members of the Missouri State Society, headed by Representative Cleveland A. Newton, its president.

The President's sons, John and Calvin Coolidge Jr., returned the compliment bestowed on them by Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the Senator of Missouri, when she entertained them at an informal dinner party over which her granddaughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson, presided, by giving a box party at a theater for a group of their young friends, including Miss Henderson and several Senatorial sub-debs. The White House boys returned to school at Mercersburg, Pa., Thursday. One of them confided to a friend that he would like it at the White House except for the fact that every time he walked out of the front door somebody took his picture.

President and Mrs. Coolidge attended the charity ball for the Children's Hospital Wednesday, the first public social function they have graced since going to the White House to live. It has been the custom of the chief executives for some years to attend these gatherings. The President nor Mrs. Coolidge indulged in the dancing but greeted the other guests cordially from their box in the center of the ball room.

Senator and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer have returned to Washington after a brief visit in New York, New Year's Day. It is said that Mrs. Spencer plans to resume her Bible classes for society women in the ballroom of the New Willard during Lent. Sometimes the attendance at these classes is more than a thousand women.

Among the interesting group of Missouri women at the Congressional Club "at home" New Years day, were Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Cleveland Newton and Mrs. John B. Henderson, whose generosity and foresight made possible this unique club, with a membership of wives and daughters of those who figure and have figured in national politics.

Mrs. Henderson since the death of her son last spring goes out every little while, but she never fails to attend the Congressional Club events.

Miss Bertha Coontz was one of the merrymakers at the ball given for the Children's Hospital the night after New Year's and looked very pretty in a flame-colored taffeta gown, trimmed with gold lace.

Mrs. Edwin Puller presided over the tables at one of the prettiest of the debutante teas of last week, given in honor of Miss Katherine Wrenn. Mrs. Puller entertained at dinner New Year's eve and again on Jan. 2, taking her guests to the Children's Hospital Charity Ball. Mrs. Puller, always extremely well dressed, wore at one of the afternoon parties a gown of black silk velvet made in flounced coat effect and trimmed with handsome fur. Her hat was one of the new shapes with flaring cuff brim in the front.

Mrs. James Carson Breckenridge presided at the tea table at the regular Monday, at the home of Mrs. John A. Lejeune, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps. Mrs. Breckenridge entertained a group of officers' wives at luncheon recently.

Mrs. Coontz, wife of Admiral Coontz, wore a lovely gown of purple velvet at the diplomatic breakfast, given in honor of the diplomatic corps by Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, New Year's day.

Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis will be in Washington next week for the general board meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and to attend the Illiteracy Conference, called by a number of organizations to formulate some plan to wipe out the rate of illiteracy in this country.

Mrs. Moore is very busy, even at this early date in preparing for the annual convention of the International Council of Women, which will meet in Washington in 1925. Mrs. Moore as head of the National Council of Women and Vice President of the International Council, will be one of the most important figures of this convention which will be composed of women leaders in many different activities from all over the world.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

CREAM CLEARS A STUFFED-UP HEAD

Instantly Opens Every Air Passage—Clears Throat, Too.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffling. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.

30% Drop in Prices!

CARROLL'S
1116 OLIVE ST.

No! We emphatically say this is NOT a clearing sale, we are not trying to dispose of shopworn samples or old merchandise, but we are offering the latest designs and styles in quality Furniture at prices that are 30% and less than the same merchandise sold for three to four weeks ago. Wholesale prices have broken and we were in position to take advantage.

Scores of manufacturers throughout the country have suffered a slump in business and decided to close out all stocks on hand and made new designs in order to stimulate business. They sold us large quantities of the most desirable, dependable quality Furniture at 30% off, and we are in turn giving you this saving. We urge you to come and see for yourself. A deposit will hold your purchase for future delivery.

SULPHUR Heals Itching Scalp

Any breaking out of the skin, even itching eczema of the scalp, can be quickly healed by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist.

For any unsightly skin eruption, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ-destroying properties nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation, which soothes and heals the skin and leaves it clear and smooth.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

WRITES FOR CLOTHES, FUGITIVE CAUGHT HERE

Convicted Slayer, Who Fled Illinois Asylum, Arrested at Poolroom.

Nicholas Gaurilovitch, a convicted murderer, escaped from the State Hospital for the Insane at Chester, Ill., Jan. 2. Two days later Dr. Frank Stubblefield of the hospital received a letter from Gaurilovitch, in which he requested that his clothes and other belongings be sent to 3606 North Broadway, St. Louis.

Dr. Stubblefield notified St. Louis police and Capt. Nally and a squad of policemen went to the Broadway address yesterday. On their arrival they failed to find the fugitive, either in the poolroom on the ground floor or in the rooming house above. They had been warned to take no chances, as Gaurilovitch was a dangerous man.

At 2 p. m. a man wearing a pair of khaki trousers about three sizes too large, a black coat, a cap, and smoking a cigarette, walked in the poolroom and was seized immediately. He admitted he was the escaped convict and offered no resistance. He will be returned to Chester.

Gaurilovitch, who is 52 years old, said he killed his wife at Madison, Ill., in 1910 and served 10 years for it, after which he was committed to the hospital as insane. Asked how he escaped, he replied:

"Oh, I worked outside, and when nobody was looking hopped on a freight train. Why did I write for my clothes? Because I needed them. It's cold here."

MORE WOMEN SEEK DIVORCES

They Outnumber Men 160 to 91 in Year at Clayton.

Almost twice as many divorce petitions were filed at Clayton last year by wives against husbands as there were by husbands against wives. In all, 160 wives sought judgment, while only 91 husbands sued.

Desertion is the most common ground.

The average duration of married life was five years, in spite of the fact that several couples took the step after more than 25 years. One woman had enough after two weeks. About one-fourth of the women asked that their maiden names be restored, and of these the majority were without children.

Appeal for Clothing and Shoes.

An appeal for cast-off clothing, shoes, underclothes and overcoats was made yesterday by Edward Card, superintendent of Sunshine Mission, 1526 Market street. He states that the mission feeds an average of 200 homeless men each night, but has no clothing for them.

Chief O'Brien's Son Gets License.

A marriage license was issued Friday to Martin O'Brien Jr. and Mrs. Ellen Speed, widow of Lester W. Speed, formerly a motor cycle policeman, who accidentally shot and killed himself last May. O'Brien is a son of Chief of Police Martin O'Brien, and is a policeman in the Mounted District.

SUPPORT PALESTINE ORPHANS

Members of the Junior Hadassah of St. Louis are supporting seven Jewish orphans in Palestine and plan to adopt three more this year. Miss Fanny Raskas of St. Louis, now in Jerusalem, writes that the children are kept in private homes and are extremely grateful to their St. Louis benefactors.

The Junior Hadassah was organized here four years ago by Mrs. Oscar Leonard, and is a chapter of the National Hadassah. Funds for the support of the orphans are raised at an annual dance and entertainment.

Company's Salesmen at Banquet.

About 50 men, officials and salesmen of the A. H. Lewis Medicine Co., attended a dinner Friday night at the Missouri Athletic Association, concluding the annual convention of the salesmen. W. A. Rucker was elected president of the "Fifty Per Cent Increase Club," organized at the dinner Members of the staff of the Nelson Chesman Advertising Co. were guests. Afterward there was a theater party at the Orpheum.

SHELTER FOR ANIMALS OPENED IN ST. LOUIS

Humane Society Has Hospital, Clinic and Place for Executing Sick and Hurt.

A combination hospital, clinic, and place of execution for sick, injured, and stray animals has been opened by the Humane Society of Missouri at 1618 Carr street.

"The Shelter," as the institution is known, will not be in full operation until later in the month, due to necessary repairs. When completed, it will provide facilities for the care of six horses and 40 small animals and will have a specially constructed "execution chamber" for the shooting of hopelessly disabled horses and mules.

Every Tuesday and Friday afternoon a free clinic will be operated under the direction of Dr. J. E. Klem, a veterinarian. All persons unable to pay for the treatment of sick and disabled animals are urged to bring them to the clinic.

Stray animals turned over to the society will be examined for disease or serious injury and an effort made to find good homes for all in good condition. Those in poor condition will be humanely destroyed.

Goat One of First Occupants.

The first occupants of the "Shelter" are two stray horses and a goat. One of the horses is still useful and will be given to a worthy person who can use it. It was turned over to the society by the father of one of a group of small boys in Webster Groves who found the horse astray and used it to emulate movie cowboys. The boys housed the horse in a chicken house of such scant proportions that it required more than an hour for Robert F. Sellar, executive secretary of the society, to extricate it.

The Humane Society plans to raise $75,000 in the next two years for maintenance of the "Shelter." A membership campaign is to be launched and the assessment of the 800 members will be increased. "St. Louis is far behind in Humane Society work," Sellar said.

Need for Horse Ambulance.

"I came here recently from Buffalo, a much smaller city, and there is no comparison between the society's work there and here. This can be remedied," Sellar said, "for the people will respond if they but realize the necessity of their cooperation."

In addition, the Humane Society will seek the aid of the Boy Scouts in reporting cruelty to animals, Sellar said. "Scouts are on the alert and make good 'reporters.' We also shall attempt the introduction of 'humane education' in all schools. Children often injure animals through ignorance." Seller stressed the need of a horse ambulance. "I had to shoot a horse on the street today that could have been saved if we could have gotten him to the Shelter," he said.

Archbishop to Preach Today.

Archbishop Glennon will preach a New Year sermon at 11 a. m. today at the Cathedral, Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue. There will be a program of music in celebration of the Feast of the Epiphany.

"Charming Conscience," by Orrick Johns, at Jefferson This Week

Margaret Anglin Stars in Comedy by Former St. Louisan — Irving Berlin's Lavish "Music Box Revue" at American.

TOMORROW night will witness two attractive theatrical openings. One is a radiant and whimsical new comedy. "A Charming Conscience," by Orrick Johns, a former St. Louisan, in whose first full-length work for the stage Miss Margaret Anglin will star at the Shubert-Jefferson. The other, at the American, is the second anncal edition of Irving Berlin's supersumptuous "Music Box-Revue." The engagement of each production is for a single week only.

The Woodward Players, at the Empress, will offer "The Outcast," a melodrama, in which Elsie Ferguson once acted. The Orpheum's captioned number is a playlet, "Picking Peaches," in which Bessie Barriscale, screen and stage actress, appears with a company and impersonates in turn a Southern belle of the Civil War days, a y telephone operator, a Span- coquette and a modern flap-

"A Charming Conscience" had premiere in San Francisco five ths ago, and has since been d by Miss Anglin in various s and towns, not including New k, for a total of about 10 . San Francisco reviewers d the piece with enthusiasm, ribing the spirit as fantastic delightful, the dialogue as bril- and coruscating, and the ture sufficiently expert to even the "crazy quilt" of the seem plausible.

Outline of the Fable.

E story is said to concern a orce, Jacqueline Fellows, played by Miss Anglin, who is in love with her former husband and still beloved by him, though neither suspects the other's state of mind. Mrs. Fellows befriends a young woman on the verge of suicide, and helps her become the toast of her circle. The ex-husband becomes infatuated with Mrs. Fellows' protege; and the divorcee adopts the heroic measure of locking him in her bedroom while she sails away with the girl on what was to have been the latter's honeymoon. Circumstances come to the aid of the divorcee in the form of a still living husband of the girl, and matters end happily. The scenes occur in New York.

Much comment has been made concerning the scenic background designed by Lucine Lebaudt, with its toppling buildings and incendiary colors thoroughly in the impish spirit of the comedy. Miss Anglin's supporting company includes Harriet Sterling, Harry Barfoot, Henry Mowbray, Janet Cameron, Wheeler Dryden, Agnes Grant, Charles Tazewell and Dorothy Johnson.

Orrick Johns was born in St. Louis, a son of George S. Johns, editor of the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch. He attended Missouri and Washington Universities, and began his literary career as drama and book reviewer for Reedy's "Mirror." In 1912 he won the Lyric Year Prize of $500 for the best poem by an American, and has since published two volumes of verse. Last Spring he brought out his first novel, "Blindfold," which was favorably received. A second novel, "Pantaloon," is to be published in the fall. He learned much concerning the practical side of the theater through his connection with the Players' Club of this city. He was one of the founders of that organization, and for one year served as its president.

What They Are Doing In the Movie Studios

"The Agony of the Eagles" is to be shown in this country. The story is adapted from the novel, "The Old Guard," by Georges d'Esparbes, and depicts the period after the fall of Waterloo, when Napoleon was on the island of St. Helena.

Edwin Carewe is to film the interiors of "A Son of the Sahara" in the Eclair studio in Paris, which means that the Carewe company will be in Paris for a month after they arrive there from Biskra, Algeria.

Owing to the illness of Marion Harlan, Buster Keaton, to save time on his production, "The Misfit," has been forced to engage Kathryn McGuire as his leading woman.

For the first time in her career, Alice Calhoun will appear in a production other than for Vitagraph. She has contracted to play the part of Barbara Parker, the flapper oil broker, in Richard Walton Tully's forthcoming production of Rex Beach's "Flowing Gold," a First National picture.

A group of best selling novels will serve as material for the next five Preferred Pictures. They are "Poisoned Paradise," by Robert W. Service, "The Breath of Scandal" by Edwin Balmer, "The Triflers" by Frederick Orin Bartlett, "White Man" by George Agnew Chamberlain and "Faint Perfume" by Zona Gale.

Earl Sande, America's popular jockey who rode Zev as a winner in the great international race against Papyrus, appears in "The Great White Way" as one of the characters in the racetrack scene at Belmont Park.

Caesare Gravina, who plays the role of Charlot in "The Humming Bird," Gloria Swanson's next Paramount picture, toured Europe and South America for thirty-five years with his own opera company before coming to this country nine years ago. His first picture work was done for Sidney Olcott, who happens to be directing "The Humming Bird." It was "Poor Little Peppina," with Mary Pickford in the featured role.

Blanche Sweet is reversing the usual procedure and, instead of fleeing to California, the land of winter sunshine and flowers to escape the snow, she is spending a few weeks' vacation with skates and snowshoes in the High Sierras.

Pat O'Malley has been selected by Laurette Taylor as the leading man for "Happiness," the picturrization of J. Hartley Manners' celebrated stage success, to be produced at the Metro Studios.

Lon Chaney, in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—Pershing.

Barbara LaMarr, in "The Eternal City"—Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol.

"The Hunchback" And "Eternal City" On Local Screens

"West of the Water Tower," "Pleasure Mad," "Thru the Dark" and "The Truth About Wives" also Showing.

VICTOR HUGO'S immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," as filmed by Universal, is the attraction at the Pershing Theater this week. It is said that certain liberties have been taken with the original script, but these are justified on the ground that a picture designed to appeal to all classes should not discriminate against the followers of any particular religious denomination.

The cast includes Lon Chaney, famous character actor, as Quasimodo, the bell-ringer of Notre Dame; Patsy Ruth Miller, St. Louis girl, as Esmeralda; Norman Kerry as Phoebus; Tully Marshall as Louis XI; Raymond Hatton as Gringoire; Nigel de Brulier as Don Claude, and Gladys Brockwell as Godule. For the exterior eight square blocks of Parisian streets of the period of Louis XI were designed. Another massive setting is the replica of the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

The picture is presented at the Pershing with the same prologue and musical score used in New York. Matinees will be given today and Wednesday with the same prices prevailing that were in effect for "Little Old New York," and "Ashes of Vengeance."

The week's feature at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol is the George Fitzmaurice film version of Hall Caine's novel, "The Eternal City," introducing Barbara La Marr as a First National star. Bert Lytell, Lionel Barrymore and Richard Bennett, stage star, are in the supporting cast.

The producer of "The Eternal City" had Hall Caine modernize the story to conform with the recent political developments in Italy.

The story is one of two sweethearts who have grown up together and are separated for the first time by the war. The hero's death is reported and a short time afterwards another great loss comes to the girl when her guardian dies. Left alone she goes to Rome to study art at the invitation of a powerful war profiteer who seeks control of the government. The hero is not killed, however, and returns to become one of the leaders of the new movement formed by the World War veterans, the Fascisti, and to win the girl.

"West of the Water Tower," one of the great novels of 1923, has been made into a Paramount picture and is shown at the Missouri Theater this week with Glenn Hunter in the leading role. Other featured players are Ernest Torrence, May McAvoy and George Fawcett. Homer Croy, the author, a former St. Louisan, takes for the locale of the story Junction City, Mo., where Glenn Hunter as Guy Plummer, son of a rigidly orthodox minister, portrayed by Ernest Torrence, meets and loves Bee Chew, played by May McAvoy. She is the daughter of a wealthy modernist, played by George Fawcett. In the film version the young couple are secretly wed and this provokes a near tragedy which has its influence on many lives.

C Sharp-Minor starts on his third week and plays an entire new program of his own compositions. Eileen Van Biene, lyric soprano, from London, England, gives a concert of popular and classic songs.

The Delmonte picture attraction for the week is "Pleasure Mad." The Graves' Brothers musical comedy organization presents a new play called "Margie."

In "Pleasure Mad" Mary Alden again appears in her favorite role of a mother, Huntly Gordon plays opposite her. The cast includes William Collier Jr., Norma Shearer, Winifred Bryson and Frederick Truesdell.

The picture was adapted from Blanche Upright's novel, "The Valley of Content." It deals with the

"The Miracle" to Open Thursday Evening

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.

AT last a date has been set for the opening of Max Reinhardt's stupendous spectacle play, "The Miracle," at the transformed Century Theater. The American premiere will occur next Thursday night, it is announced. After much bickering, or perhaps clever publicity, it is Lady Diana Manners who will play the Madonna role at the first performance. There will be a cast of more than 600. The book is by Karl Vollmoeller, and the musical score by Engelbert Humperdinck.

Another important opening, set for Monday night at the Ritz, is "Outward Bound," by Sutton Vane, English actor-playwright. This fantasy is one of the current successes of the London stage. It shows a company on shipboard, who gradually discover they are all dead and voyaging to the hereafter in a modern equivalent of Charon's ferry. In the cast will be Algred Lunt, Beryl Mercer, Leslie Howard, Margolo Gillmore, Dudley Digges and others. Andre Charlot's London Revue will be presented Wednesday night at the Times Square Theater, with Beatrice Lillie and James Buchanan as stars.

A New Cohan Play.

AMONG the interesting premieres of the week were George M. Cohan's "The Song and Dance Man," Monday evening at the Hudson; and the new Ziegfeld musical comedy, "Kid Boots," starring Eddie Cantor and Mary Eaton, on New Year's Eve, at the Earl Carroll Theater. Cohan himself appeared in the title role of his play, which is the best entertainment he has written for the theater since "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

His playing of the role is perfect. At the very beginning, as John Farrell, he must talk himself out of arrest as a hold-up man by telling the circumstances that moved him to have a try at crime. He must convince two people, pictured as hardboiled, that his fantastic hard-luck story is true. Cohan goes through this recital with a sincerity of voice, gesture and expression which carries the ring of utter truthfulness. Indeed, one grows a little impatient with the people of the play who insist on checking up the facts.

Fortunately, the star is seldom absent from the stage, and in the third act there is neat handling of an excellent dramatic situation. This is laid in a manager's office, and concerns the emotions of a man who finds that the young girl to whom he is devoted is a star of the first magnitude, while he himself has no talent whatever.

As a curtain speech, Cohan gave the act which was submitted by the Song and Dance man in his off-stage trial. Perhaps the most illuminating thing to be said about his performance is that he by no means plays merely himself. He is cast as a bad actor and he does it so beautifully that you believe him.

"Kid Boots" Lavishly Produced.

BEFORE a rather gorgeous New Year's Eve audience "Kid Boots" played its first performance. It is a production of many delights. It is remarkable principally because it has a brilliant outlay of costumes, a plot, Eddie Cantor and at least two extremely accomplished persons in the supporting cast.

Mary Eaton, the fair young woman who dances and sings the principal numbers, is a very adept dancing lady, but no Marilyn Miller. Beth Beri and Ethelind Terry are the loveliest and most expertly equipped of the feminine lot. Eddie Cantor, who appears to tear himself to shreds in a vigorous and bulging comedy role, is funny most of the time, and lapses into second-rate mirth-making only at those moments when he says and does things which you would not exactly call new.

Tragedy of Negro Life.

A PLAY which, by all signs, will soon be seen in the Broadway district, is "Roseanne," by Nan Bagby Stephens of Atlanta, which was put on a week ago at the Greenwich Village Theater. It is a first-hand study of negro character in Georgia, and every person in the play belongs to what Charlie Ward, once a tenor in vaudeville, used to call "the grand old colored race." But every part is carried by a white player, the title role being in the hands of Chrystal Herne.

Roseanne is a laundress, simple, generous, industrious and devoutly religious. She is filled with idolatry for her younger sister, Leola, and with faith in her pastor, the Rev. Cicero Brown. But this worthy, upset by a new suit of clothes presented to him by the Ladies' Society, needs money to live up to his wardrobe. He works terror upon Leola, forcing her to steal Roseanne's savings and flee to Atlanta. The frantic Roseanne takes up the trail and finds Leola barely in time to hear the girl's dying story of the preacher's perfidy. Back to the little home town hurries Roseanne to face down Cicero Brown as he stands in his own pulpit, and to arouse her friends to a mob spirit of vengeance.

The scene of this climax is the interior of Mount Zion Church, and a revival running to extremes of negro emotionalism is in progress. The congregation sings spirituals. With characteristic fervor, and without a trace of levity or burlesque, this act rises to the entrance of the denunciatory Roseanne.

Talk of Plays and Players.

THE new play starring Emily Stevens—"Love in a Cottage," by Henry Kitchell Webster—opens Friday night in Stamford. . . . Walter Huston, a veteran vaudeville actor, has been chosen for the title role of "Mister Pitt," by Zona Gale. . . . David Belasco is preparing a new production in which Frances Starr will be featured.

The latest effort by Owen Davis, entitled "Peacocks," is in rehearsal. . . . The fourth "Greenwich Village Follies," now on the road, will be presented in London this summer. . . Mme. Irene Triesch, German actress, will repeat her performance of Strindberg's "Dance of Death" tomorrow afternoon at the Princess, and is planning a series of European masterpieces. She will take up a permanent residence in this country, as her husband, Felix Lamond, Scotch pianist, has been appointed to a professorship in the Rochester Conservatory of Music.

A new operetta by Leo Fall, entitled "Madame Pompadour," has been acquired for American production next season. . . . Frederick Lonsdale is writing a play for Billie Burke. . . . When Charles K. Hackett returns from Europe Tuesday, there will be ceremonies at the city hall and a dinner in his honor at the Waldorf-Astoria. . . . Pauline Lord, who is playing "Anna Christie," in San Francisco, will give a tryout there to a drama called "Foam," by Forrest Halsey and Benjamin Glaser.

Touring Guild Troupe to End.

THE company traveling under the name of the Theater Guild is ending its tour. The public proved little interested in "He Who Gets Slapped," "Peer Gynt" and "The Devil's Disciple." . . . Irene Franklin is to follow the example of Elsie Janis and give her specialties in recital form. . . . The title of "Zander the Great" was cut to "Zander" in San Francisco because the public thought it was the name of a magician.

Luigi Pirandello's drama, "Henry IV," will be presented on a large scale at the Manhattan Opera House on Jan. 14, with settings by Robert Edmond Jones. . . . Fritz Leiber has begun rehearsals in Eugene O'Neill's "The Fountain." . . . Report has it that Maclyn Arbuckle will star in Louis Evan Shipman's play, "Poor Richard," which is based on episodes in the life of Benjamin Franklin.

Jane Cowl's production of "Pelleas and Melisande" having proved a financial failure, she is hastening preparations for her revival of "Antony and Cleopatra." . . . "Changelings" brought its engagement to a close tonight at Henry Miller's theater and will take to the road with the company intact, save for Laura Hope Crewes.

the missing. It ran for 45 weeks at the Music Box Theater in New York, and comes here from an engagement of two months at the Colonial Theater in Chicago.

There are two acts of 23 scenes, and the most dazzling of these is the so-called "Diamond Horseshoe." The prima donna wears a gown covered with rhinestones, and at the end of a song starts to walk up-stage. An enormous train, attached to her shoulders, gradually unwinds itself through a trap in the stage 45 feet wide, until its borders disappear in the wings and the entire stage is draped with the resplendent fabric.

In the cast are Charlotte Greenwood, Clark and McCullough, William Gaxton, Sam Ash, Helen Rich, Ruth Page, Amelia Allen, Hal Sherman, Leila Ricard, the McCarthy sisters, Eva Sobel, Jackie Hurlbert, Will Archie, Ada Boshell and others, to the number of about 100.

At Work Since Tuesday.

A CREW of electricians and stage mechanics has been at work since Tuesday night transforming the American's stage for the giant production, which is said to require two miles of rope rigging and five miles of electric cable.

The American announces for next Sunday night Julian Eltinge and Tom Brown in the "Black and White Revue of 1924," and, in the ensuing week, John Galsworthy's famous play, "Loyalties," with its original English cast. To the Shubert-Jefferson next Sunday comes a musical comedy, "I'll Say She Is," with the four Marx brothers; it is to be followed by Louis Mann and George Sidney in Aaron Hoffman's comedy, "Give and Take."

"The Outcast," at the Empress, deals with a disappointed lover, an heiress, a wealthy nobleman and a castaway girl who saves the betrayed lover from the proverbial dogs and wins a romantic reward. Alexis Luce and Hazel Whitmore have the leading parts.

Bill at the Orpheum.

MISS BARRISCALE'S act, at the Orpheum, was written by her husband, Howard Hickman, who appears in the cast. The Avon Comedy Four—Joe Smith, Charles Dale, Arthur Fields and Harry Goodwin—offer a "Hungarian Rhapsody." Other turns are those of Jack Rose and his flock of trained straw hats; Inez Courtney, singer and dancer, in "A Personal Appearance," with Sid Kayes and Starke Patterson; Pepita Granados and a company, in a program of Spanish and Oriental dances; Ned Norworth, song writer and comedian; Freda and Anthony, Italian cut-ups, and the Stanley Brothers, acrobats.

Harry Houdini is doing his spectacular feats of escape this week as headliner at the Rialto. The bill includes the Four Fayre Sisters, in songs and dances; Ben Beyer, cyclist; Thompson and Covan, ebony steppers; Kranz and White, comedians, and others.

Columbia and Grand Opera House.

THE chief turn at the Columbia is "The Fantastic Revue," starring Bebe Moffic in a series of dances. On the supporting bill are Lew Hawkins, blackface comedian; Johnny Coulan, former bantamweight champion, who challenges anyone to lift him; Fred Swift and Kitty Daly, funmakers; Dollie and Babe Thornton, with Logan Sizemore, in a musical act, and Joe St. Ange Trio of acrobats. The feature film is "The Truth About Wives," starring Betty Blythe.

The schedule at the Grand Opera House comprises Benny Barton, violinist, in a musical revue, assisted by Elsie Barton, Al Garbelle and the Dyer Sisters; George and Paul Hickman, in "Darkness and Dawn;" Jewell's mannikins in "Circus Day in Toyland;" Emil R. Demarest, J. C. Lewis Jr., the Avalons, the two Raveys, Mae Follis and Nat Leroy, and Sigsbee's troop of fox terriers.

Siegfried Wagner At Coliseum, Feb. 6

ONE of the most interesting announcements in the musical field is that Siegfried Wagner, son of Richard Wagner and grandson of Franz Liszt, will conduct several orchestral numbers at a concert to be given by the St. Louis Massenchor at the Coliseum, on the evening of Feb. 6. This will be his only appearance in this city during his American tour.

The son of the creator of the music drama and of Cosima Liszt was named for Siegfried, hero of the Nibelungen Ring series of operas. When he was an infant, his father wrote and named for him the popular number known as "The Siegfried Idyl." He himself is a prolific composer of operas.

The Symphony Orchestra has been engaged for this concert, which will also include choral works directed by Hugo Anschuetz and sung by the Massenchor of several hundred voices. The proceeds will be devoted to the poor in Central Europe and to the restoration of the Festival Theater which Wagner founded at Bayreuth.

Pageant Choral Program.

THE Pageant Choral Society, directed by Frederick Fischer and assisted by the Symphony Orchestra, will sing, for the first time in this city, Wolf-Ferrari's oratorio, "New Life," at the Odeon on the evening of Jan. 15. The work is based on Dante's poems in honor of Beatrice Portinari, and is in a Prologue and two parts, connected by an Intermezzo.

Two dance attractions listed for the Odeon are those of the Duncan Dancers, Anna, Lisa and Margo, on Jan. 19; and Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn, on Jan. 25 and 26. The latter will give different programs on each evening.

A musical program will be given Tuesday afternoon at Vandervoort Hall by the St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society. A. Rosenthal will lecture on "Timon of Athens" and "King Lear." Dan Coppin, boy soprano, will be soloist at William Theodore Diebels' free organ recital this afternoon at the New Cathedral.

Dohnanyi to Play Here.

HANDEL'S oratorio, "The Messiah," will be sung tonight at the Christ Church Cathedral by a choir of men and boys, under the direction of Arthur Davis. A program of vocal and instrumental music will be presented by the Morning Etude Club Wednesday afternoon at Vandervoort Hall. One of the numbers will be Clifford Demarest's Fantasia for piano and organ.

Ernst von Dohnanyi, celebrated Hungarian composer and pianist, will give a recital at Sheldon Memorial Auditorium on the evening of Jan. 25, under the auspices of the St. Louis Piano Teachers' Association. His Suite for Orchestra in Four Parts will be played at this week's regular Symphony concerts.

Georges Enesco, distinguished Rumanian composer and violinist, will be soloist at a concert to be given by the Morning Choral Club at the Odeon on Jan. 29. One of the ensemble numbers will be "The Highwayman," a dramatic cantata by Deems Taylor, with Raymond Koch singing a solo baritone part. Another novelty will be a chorus by Percy Grainger.

fortunes and misfortunes of a happy family of moderate means which is split up by the affections and indulgences which follow sudden acquisitions of wealth.

"Thru the Dark," featuring Colleen Moore, is having its first presentation at the Kings this week. It is a screen version of "The Daughter of Mother McGinn;" a "Boston Blackie" story by Jack Boyle. "Boston Blackie," known throughout the underworld as the slickest of crooks, makes a thrilling escape from San Quentin Prison. In his dash for liberty he is assisted by a pretty student at a fashionable and exclusive school for girls. Her part in the escape leads to the revelation by the police that she is the daughter of Mother McGinn, a character in San Francisco's crookdom, and that her father was a convict and died behind prison bars. How the girl fights against the evil environment in which she is thrust and proves to "Blackie" that the only way is the straight way, makes the story. In the supporting cast are Forrest Stanley, Hobart Bosworth, Margaret Seddon, Eddie Phillips and George Cooper. Sherry Louis Marshall, coloratura soprano, has been held over for a second week.

The photoplay feature at the Columbia is Betty Blythe in "The Truth About Wives."

Option for Lincoln University.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 5.—Furthering their efforts toward the establishment of the Abraham Lincoln University, officers of the university association have obtained an option on a 250-acre farm near here, owned by Jerome Leland. The local traction company has promised that the company's lines will be extended to serve the institution, should it be established.

Daughter of Mark Twain Is "Pop" Soloist

A DAUGHTER of Mark Twain, Miss Clara Clemens, mezzo-soprano, will be soloist at the Symphony Orchestra's popular concert this afternoon at the Odeon. In private life she is Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, wife of the director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, who was soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the Thursday and Friday concerts of last week.

Miss Clemens is making a concert tour for the benefit of the Mark Twain Memorial Park Association. When it was learned that she would accompany her husband to St. Louis, she was engaged for an appearance with the orchestra. She will sing the aria, "Oh, Just God," from Wagner's "Rienzi," and a group of songs, with Michael Raucheisen at the piano. The program will be as follows:

Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ........ Glinka
Second movement, Andante Cantabile, from Symphony No. 5, in E Minor ........ Tschaikowsky
Aria, "Oh Just God," from "Rienzi" Wagner
Romance, from the Suite, "Conte d'Avril" ........ Widor

Songs with piano:
(a) Ballad from "Rogneda"— Seroff
(b) "On the Steppes"— Gretchaninoff
(c) "Near to Thee"— Gabrilowitsch
Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg" ........ Wagner

Gusikoff as Soloist.

THE soloist at the regular concerts on Thursday night and Friday afternoon will be Michel Gusikoff, concertmaster of the orchestra. He will play Mendelssohn's popular and grateful violin concerto in E Minor. The complete program follows:

Anniversary Overture ....Chadwick
Concerto for violin, in E Minor, Op. 64 ........ Mendelssohn
(1) Allegro molto appassionato.
(2) Andante.
(3) Allegro non troppo; Alleg molto vivace.
Symphonic Poem No. 4, "Orpheus"

MENS' HATS

:-: :-: (COPYRIGHT) :-: :-:

Drawn by W. E. Hill for the Sunday Post-Dispatch

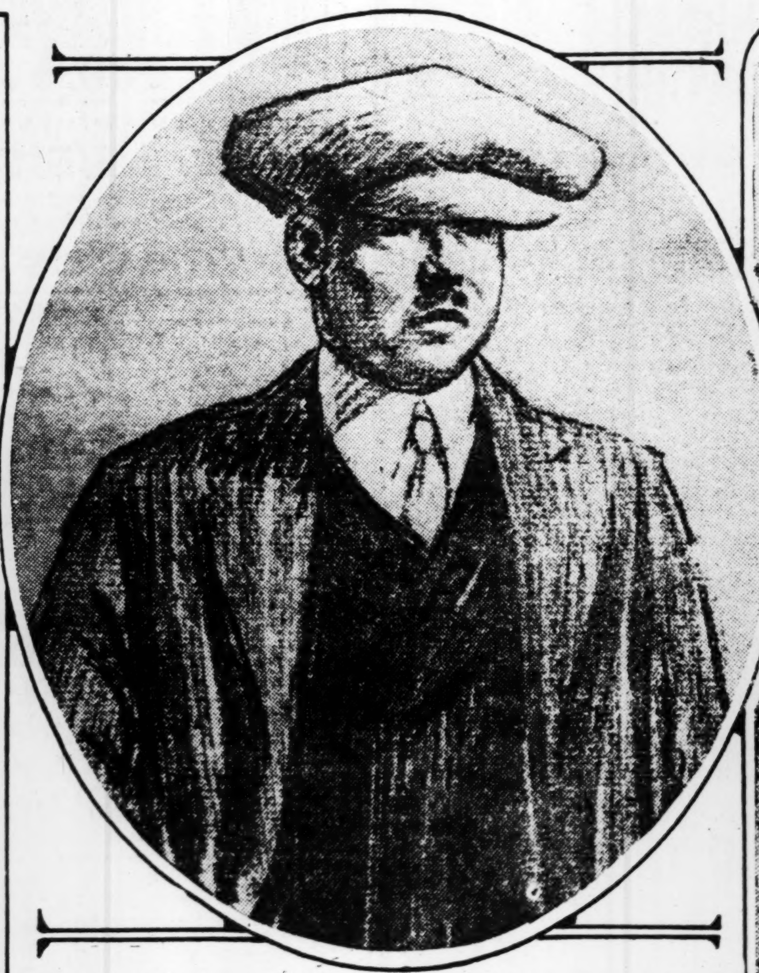
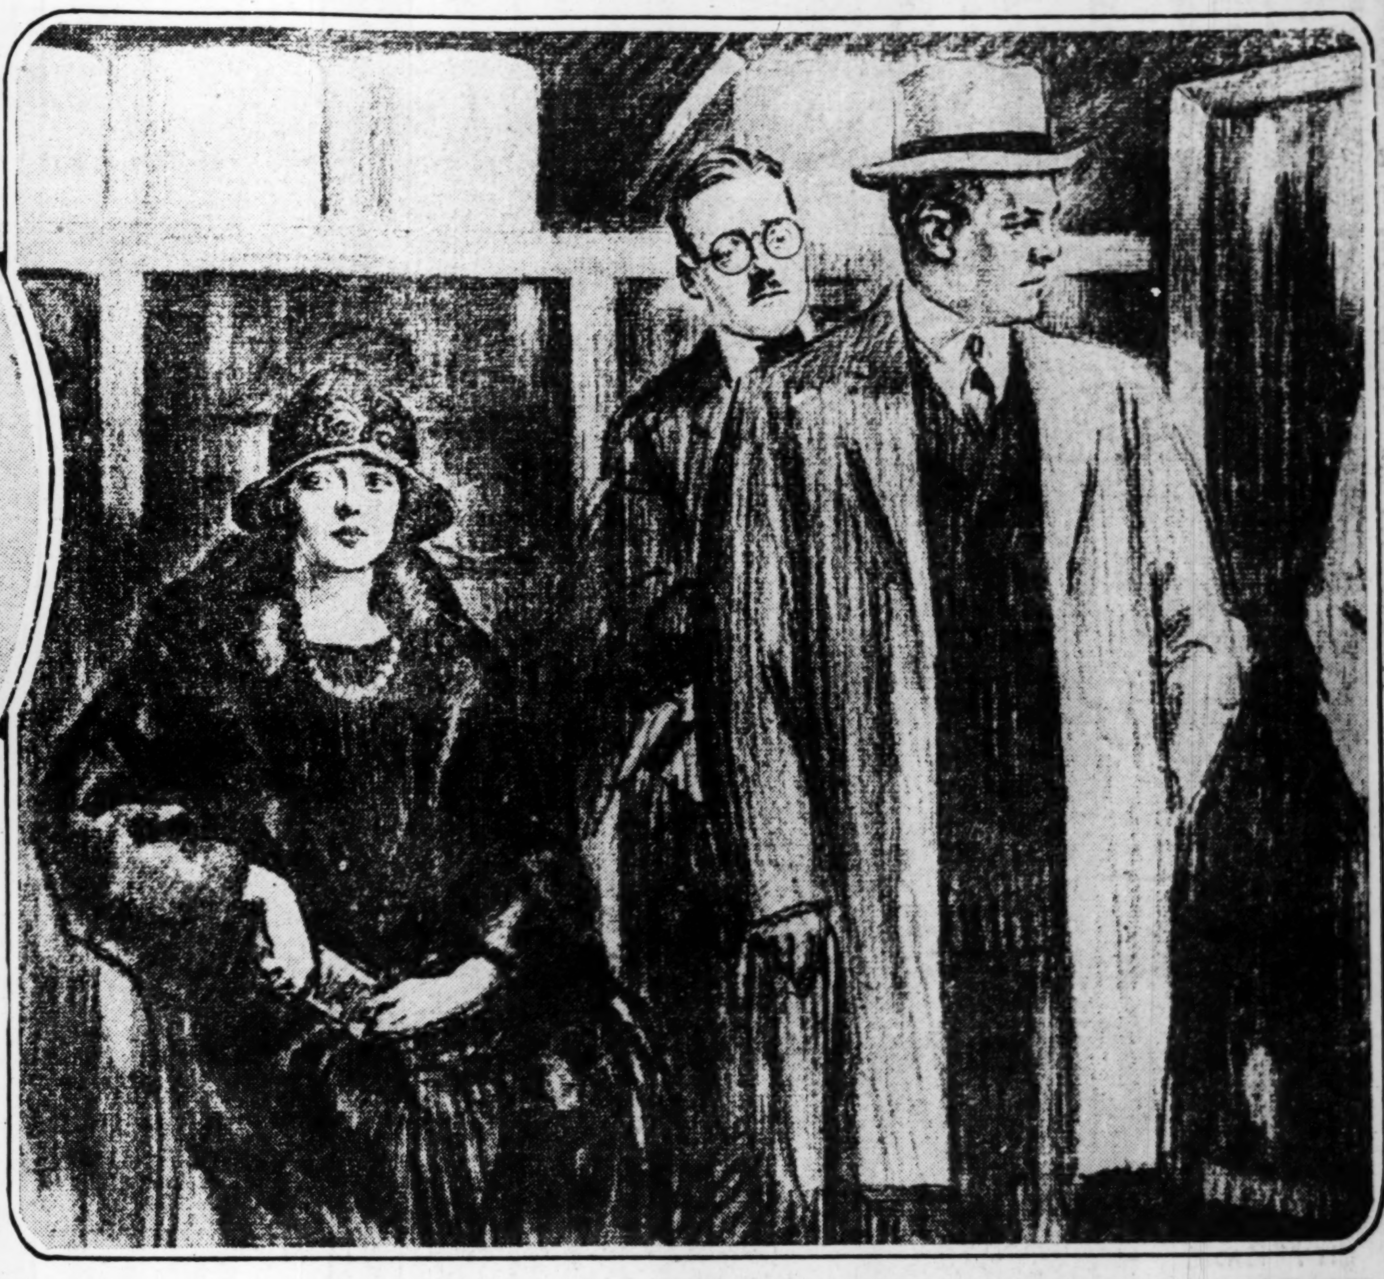
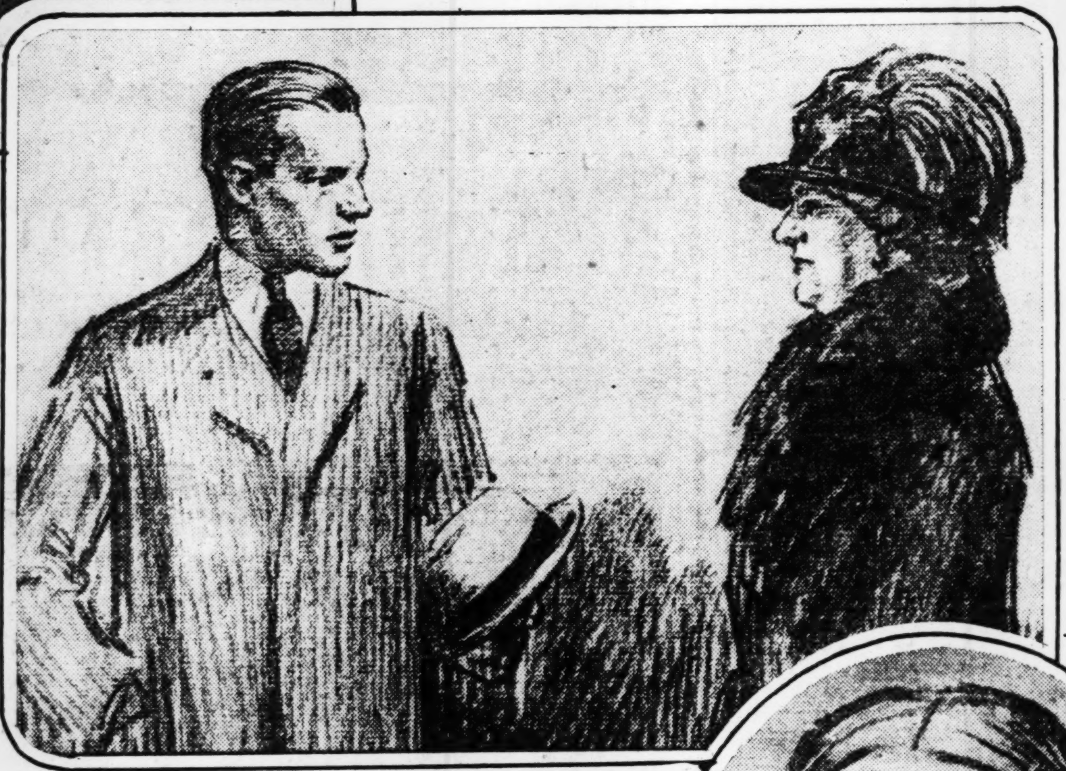
The man who looks, to quote his wife, "like Time in a derby" is hoping that this particular derby will look all right He is doomed to bitter disappointment



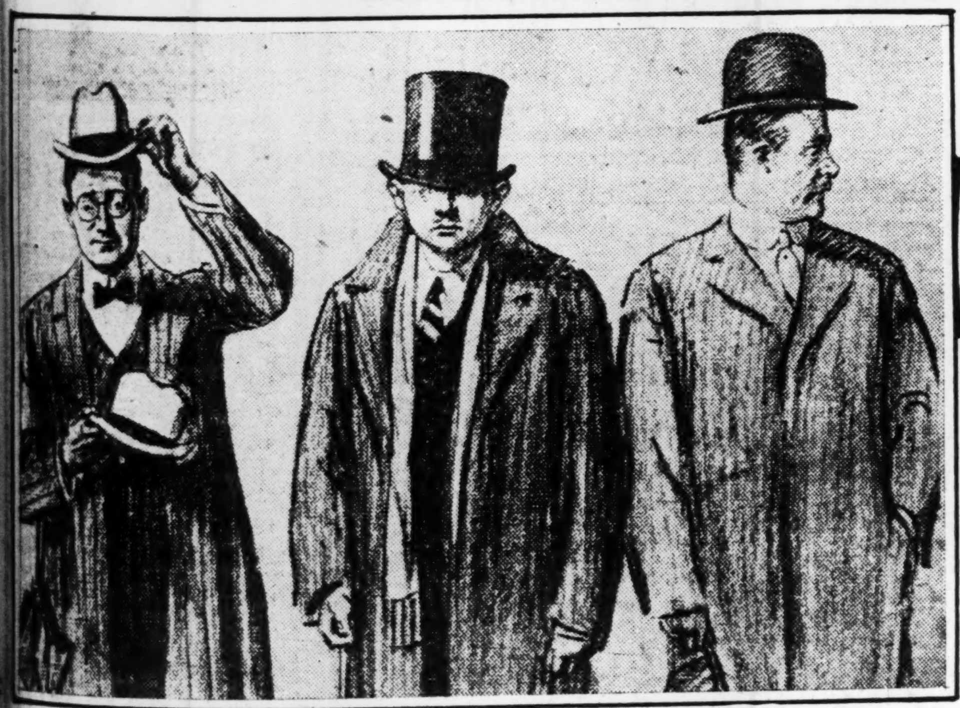
The big English sport cap that looked so doggy in the case. It's not nearly so doggy on Burton. The salesman thinks it just because Burton is used to a derby. Burton doesn't know what he thinks.



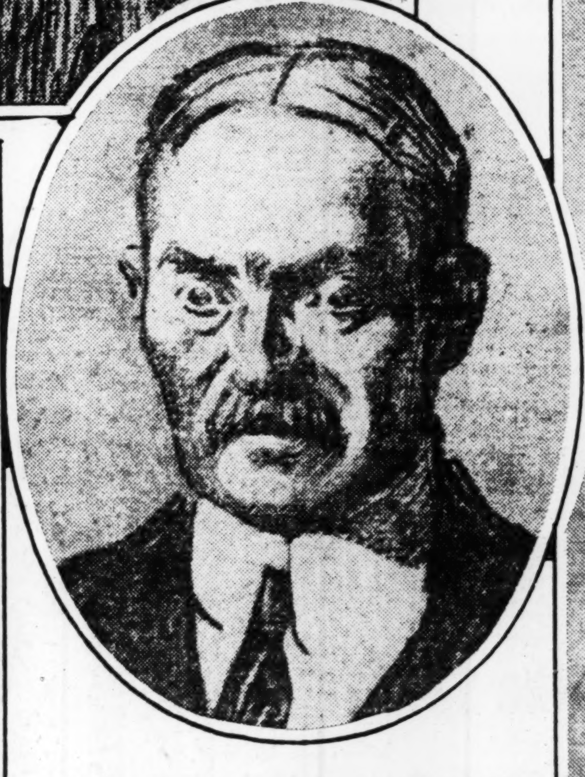
"Yes, dear, that's lovely on you. Why don't you take it?" The little wife is in a hurry to go on. She wants to shop for a hat on her own account.



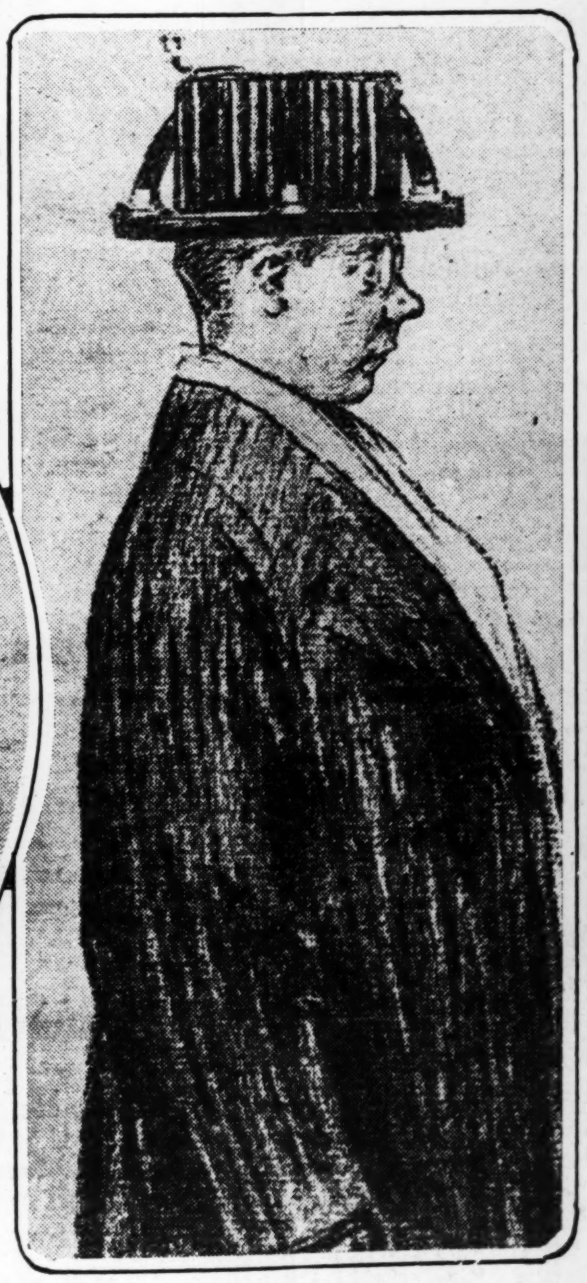
The boarding school boy and the careful mamma with the charge account in her own right are having trouble over hats "Oh. Harold, mamma is objecting, "that hat makes you look like a little old man! It's too old for you Which, of course, is just the last argument to use on a boy of seventeen



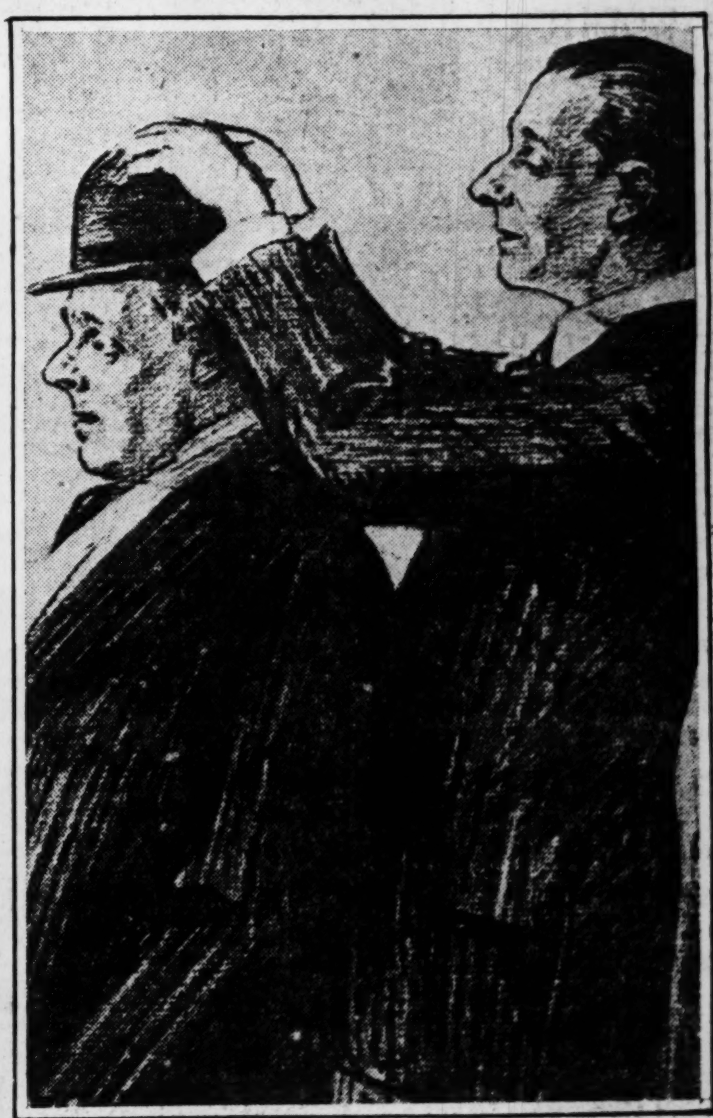
This is what the long mirror in a men's hat department has to stand for, showing the man with the peanut shaped head the man who has the wrong face for the top hat and the bullet headed man, all waiting for a stray salesman to show



The conservative customer wants something he's used to Something that's a cross between what was in vogue during Grant administration and the present day



The self-conscious man whom some slipshod salesman has left all alone in a big hat store with the conform machine on his head



"Now this is just the right hat for you—it will ease up a bit after you've worn it" And with deft and busy fingers he is easing it down on Mr Wattles head. The bones in Mr W.'s cranium are feeling the impact

In Studio and Gallery

NANCY BARNHARDT, after two years' journey through Algiers, Italy, Spain and Southern France, has returned to St. Louis for a time before going to New York, where she intends opening a permanent studio.

At the present time, 60 of her pictures are being exhibited at the [illegible] Gallery where they form a delightful and unusual co[illegible]

Miss Barnhardt's abil[illegible] change mediums permits a free handling of whatever subject is at hand. From black and white to water color, and from chalk crayon and pastel to oil she shifts in order to find the medium best suited to the mood and attitude to be portrayed.

For the most part, Miss Barnhardt's works now shown are of architectural subjects. This would suggest something stif and uninteresting, perhaps, but the exact reverse is the case. Seldom are we permitted in architectural drawings, to see more than the actual [illegible] and effect, but here, through the fresh eyes of a trayeler having escaped Cook's guides, receptive to the charm of obscure bits of loveliness found in old archways, crumbling walls and ancient gardens, we glimpse the romantic beauty of fine foreign architecture vaguely suggesting the similar beauty which is expresed in Hawthorne's "Marble Faun."

Miss Barnhardt has a delightful way of suggesting a spot without minutely describing it. This particular subtlety constitutes one of the nicest points of her artistry. How weary we would become of mere pictures of places. But instead of being a geographical bore, her little pictures are vehicles for the imagination. A dim archway, white flagstone pavement and distant river . . . a perfect setting for a "walking and talking."

I na sketch for a mantel decoration, Miss Barnhardt has given us a glance at her ability to do figure drawing. Although it is but a rapid note, the gentle, sinuous handling bespeaks a strong power of anatomical delineation.

Miss Barnhardt is known, also, for her illustrations of Kenneth Grahame's "The Wind in the Willows." Admiring the book but not the frontispiece, the only illustration in the early editions, Miss Barnhardt made a series of her own, with no definite object in view. Through a coincidental acquaintance made on shipboard with a friend of the author's, an opportunity to meet Grahame and show him her illustrations was afforded her, and the outcome was the use of her drawings for the following editions of the book.

A COLLECTION of drawings and water colors by Howard Giles is now on display at the City Art Museum. Especially to the student of art will these pictures appeal, by reason of their unusual and superior technique. His successful manipulation of water color is a delight to those who understand the hazards of the medium. The delicate finesse of tone and transparency that is the aim of the water colorist is nicely achieved.

The drawings, beautiful in themselves with their strong, good lines, are primarily technical accomplishments. Almost a working basis is shown in each drawing, the original blocking being still apparent. This shows not only how proportion is reckoned, but how the continuity of lines is definitely planned in advance to be worked out like a mathematical equation. "Stealth," the drawing of a lithe, sinuous panther, might best illustrate how the artist contrived to make one line carry and force the next along, propelling it forward in designed grace.

During the week, the Howard Giles drawings and water colors will be moved to Gallery 31, while the "Fifty Books of 1923" will be changed into Gallery 30, the selection of paintings and Japanese lacquers from the aPrsons Collection having been transformed to Galeries 25, 26 and 27.

OSCAR BROUSSE JACBOSON, director of the Fine Art department of the University of Oklahoma, has loaned 40 of his recent paintings which comprise a traveling show, to the Art Department of the Public Library where they are now being exhibited.

To the St. Louisans who heard Mr. Jacobsen's address during the convention of the American Federation of Arts here last spring, no further invitation to his present exhibit need be extended. At that time those unfamoliar with his work were aroused to curiosity concerning it, upon hearing his enthusiastic defense of "modernism" in art.

Whatever one's expectations of Jacobsen's paintings, no disappointment will be felt. The very thing for which the artist verbally argued, the flexible standard, is a vital necessity in considering his works. They are definite proofs of the sincerity of his plea for untamed original interpretations, containing the same zest, fearlessness and conviction.

That such a forceful advocate of "modernism" occupies the position of director of the art department of one of our large State educational institutions, is a significant fact. Not only does it indicate the progressive spirit of the university, but illustrates the importance that modernism in art is being accorded by educators.

Mr. Jacobsen will be in St. Louis for several days during the exhibit of his works at the Library. He comes here for the purpose of delivering a lecture to the Sisterhood of Temple Israel on Jan. 10, and will address the Town Club the following night, having for his subject, "Art and Nationality."

BARRED FROM COLLEGE POST, TEACHER SUES FOR $11,800

Nine Nebraska Farmers Defendants in Action Based Indirectly on W. J. Bryan's Fight on Evolution.

LINCOLN, Neb.—W. J. Bryan and his opposition to the theory of evolution are indirectly responsible for a damage suit filed in the local courts by David S. Domer against W. A. Klink and [illegible] well-to-do farmers of Butler County, including a woman, for $11,[illegible] thousand dollars of the amount is asked for defamation of character, and the remainder for the loss of salary for a year as teacher of English in Midland College, Freemont.

Prior to September, 1922, Domer had been for two years a teacher in the high school at Rising City, Butler County. While Bryan was in the state making speeches against evolution and deriding the notion that men descended from apes, Domer was asked by the editor of the local paper to write a series of articles telling his readers what evolution is. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and his articles were regarded by a number of German Lutherans in that section to be in support of evolution. This caused great indignation among them, and when they heard that Domer had been employed to teach in Midland College, which is a German Lutheran institution, they protested in vigorous terms. They filed a petition with the governing board asking that Domer be not allowed to teach in the college, declaring that they knew him as a teacher in Rising City and that he was not qualified "from an intellectual or moral standpoint." As a result of the protests, Domer's contract with Midland College was canceled.

VOCATION TEACHERS TO MEET

Annual Conference to Be Held Here From Jan. 16 to 19.

The tenth annual convention of the Vocational Education Association of the Middle West and the annual conference of the United States Bureau of Education will be at Hotel Chase Jan. 16 to 19, inclusive. Approximately 1000 delegates are expected. W. A. Layman, president of the Wagner Electric Mfg. Co., and Superintendent of Schools J. J. Maddox, are in charge of arrangements.

Among the speakers scheduled are: Charles A. Prosser, Minneapolis, president of the National Society for Vocational Education; Edwin A. Lee, director of vocational education, University of California; Willis W. Grant, supervisor of rehabilitation in Iowa; and John J. Tigert, Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.

JUNIOR PLAYERS IN OPERETTA

Will Give "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" Jan. 18 and 19.

An operetta by J. Astor Broad, "Goldilocks and the Three Bears," based on a familiar fairy story, will be the third production of the Junior Players this season. It will be presented at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild on the evening of Jan. 18 and the afternoon of Jan. 19.

The story is told in five scenes, three in the woods and two in the cottage of the bears. This is the first vocal work undertaken by the organization of child actors since "Pinafore," more than a year ago. The direction is in charge of Miss Alice Martin.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair by Washing It

When you wash children's hair be careful what you use. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh-looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage. Besides it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last for months.

SHIP INTERFERENCE TO BE CONSIDERED

Government Calls Conference of Broadcasters and Shipping Interests.

A conference of commercial radio station owners and ship operating companies in New York has been called by the direction of the Government for Jan. 11, to discuss ways and means of eliminating or minimizing interference from ships. The Supervisor of the Second Radio District has sent out the call at the suggestion of the Bureau of Navigation and under the urge of broadcasters and listeners in and around New York, who claim the ship messages spoil their local programs.

The interference complained of is chiefly on 450 meters, between 7 and 11 p. m., when broadcasting is at its height, which is also the time when commercial ships make position reports, usually on either 300 or 450 meters.

Officials of the Department of Commerce handling radio matters are very anxious to decrease the ship interference around New York and other ports, and are taking every means possible to aid. It must be realized, however, that when a wave length assignment is taken away from the ships, another must be provided, and that it is a difficult and serious matter to shift approximately 2700 American ships to a new wave length.

Efforts will be made at the forthcoming conference in New York to find out what can be done, but the department will probably present the suggestion that ships stay off the 300 and 450 meter waves between 7 and 11 p. m., recommending other wave lengths for ship communication. The new channels suggested will probably include waves between 600 and 800 meters used by the Government for marine and aircraft work, and in which there is one commercial ship "channel" on 706 meters. Another assignment between 800 and 1000 meters, now used for marine radiophone communication, might be reallocated, it was pointed out. The ships will of course keep to 600 meters for calling and distress signals, but it is hoped changes beneficial to both broadcasters and shipping interests can be agreed upon.

RADIO POPULAR IN BRAZIL

About 8800 Receiving Sets in Federal District of Rio de Janeiro.

There are about 8800 radio telephone receiving sets operating in the Federal district of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, according to Trade Commissioner Remer.

Broadcasting of music and entertainment is taking place regularly from the Government station at Praia Vermelha and the Radio Sociedade do Rio de Janeiro. A line is being put up to connect the former station with the Instituto de Musica to permit the broadcasting of concerts.

Few licenses have been issued outside the Federal district. The first radio receiving set to be installed in the interior of Brazil was set up recently by employes of the Araraquara Railway. It is located at Araraquara, in the State of Sao Paulo, but picks up broadcasting from Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

The latest freshman fixed mica condensers are equipped with a different type of connecting lug which is claimed to be an improvement over other types of condensers. This lug is provided with three grooves and is riveted, by means of an eyelet, to each terminal of the condenser. It makes possible a temporary, yet perfect electrical connection by simply bending the edges of the grooves over the leads, while in soldering the grooves help to hold the wires in place until the solder has cooled. It is an improvement in condenser construction which will be welcomed.

Frost bakelite spider dials are designed to facillitate close tuning without vernier attachment. The calibrated beveled edge is of the conventional type, but the spider or yoke center and the fluted knob make it easy to grip; numbers and divisions are filled with white enamel. The dials are fitted with 3-16 or ¼-inch brass bushing with set screw. They are made in two sizes, 2½ and 3 inches in diameter.

A new type of variable transformer adapted for either radio or audio frequency amplification is the "Transinductor," manufactured by the Signal Electric Co. The makers claim that this new device gives very selective tuning and high amplification. To all outward appearances, it looks like a variometer with the stator coil wound on a tube. The knob and dial are provided to control the magnetic inductance and iron flux. It is reasonably priced.

The new type of Kilbourne and Clark variable condensers are mounted on two pure bakelite molded end plates which prevent the leakage so common with cheap molded substitutes often used for this purpose. The shaft of the rotor plates revolves in bronze bushings which are molded in. These bushings give a wearproof permanent bearing that obviates enlarged shaft holes and the resulting short circuits and explosive noises in head phones. Flexible Belden braid pigtail connections insure perfect contact with the rotating plates, while a tension adjustment makes a weighted balance unnecessary.

The flexible leads from the plugs on a honeycomb coil mounting will often break after a set has been used for several months. Watch these wires carefully, and make sure they do not kink.

PROCESS EMPLOYED TO EXHAUST VACUUM TUBE

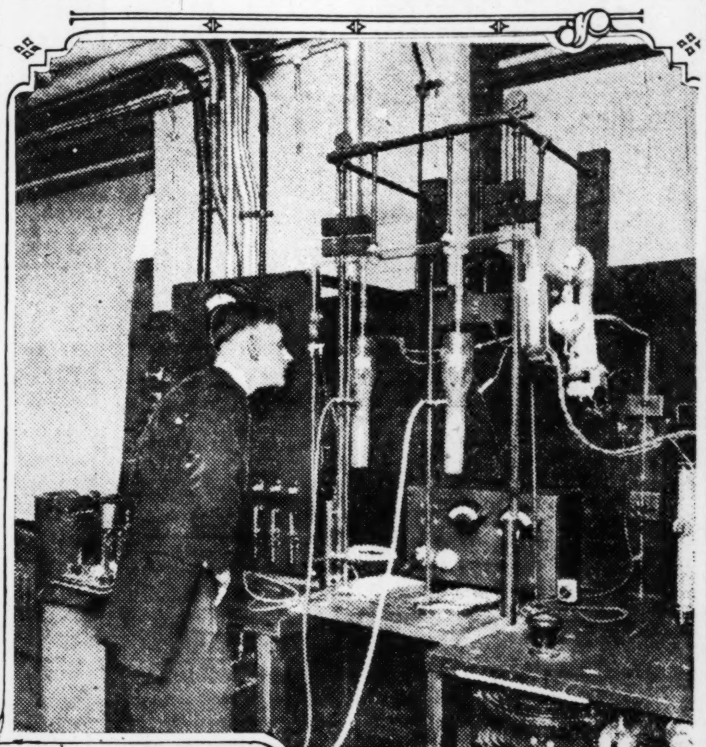
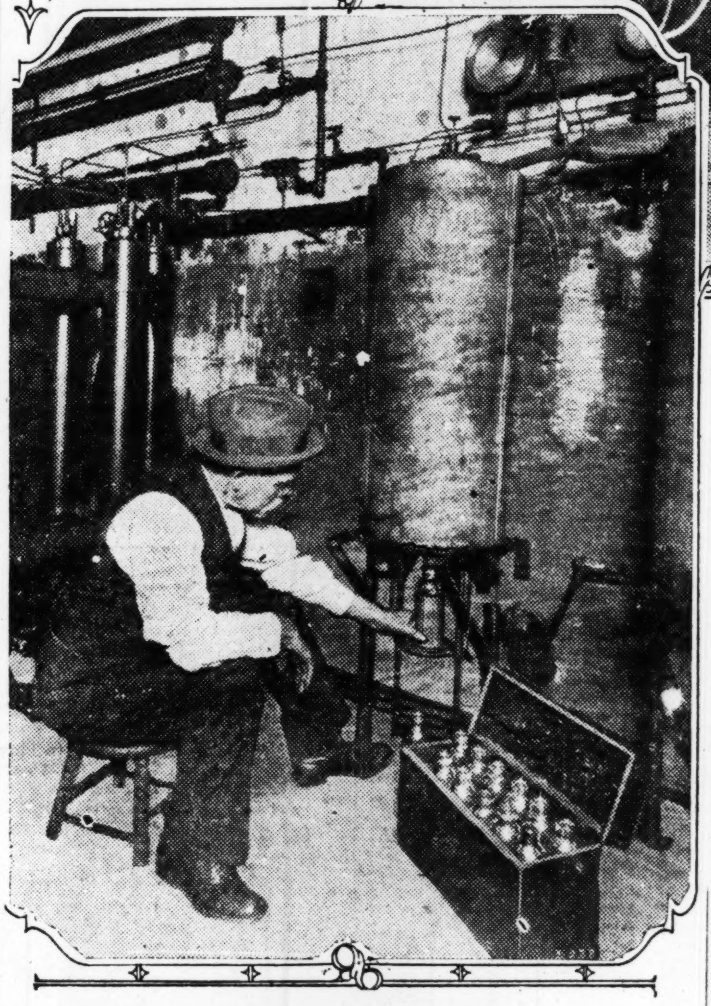
Coldest Chemical Agent Known Is Utilized in Making Detectors and Amplifiers.

Radio and liquid air at first glance would seem to bear no relation one to the other. Very few, if any, of those who sit so placidly before their radio receiving sets realize what an important part liquid air plays in radio. In its manufacture of vacuum tubes, the Bell System Laboratories of the Western Electric Co. use 150 quarts of liquid air daily which makes necessary the largest liquefying plant in New York City.

To make a good vacuum tube it is necessary to draw out as much of the gas as possible—the more that is pumped out the better the tube for amplifiers. Removing all but a very small amount of the gas prevents the electrons released from the filament from coming in contact with particles of gas thereby upsetting the neat calculations of the radio engineers and wrecking the disposition of the user.

Liquid Air Plays Important Part in Manufacture of Vacuum Tubes





Upper pumping out air to make vacuum tubes. Lower, Filling bottles with liquid air.

The pumping of a vacuum tube is a very delicate process and employs what might seem to the untutored observer a labyrinth of glass tubing. But every inch and every crook has its purpose. A part of this system is composed of a type of glass pump using mercury vapor as a pumping agent. It is also provided with a mercury trap inserted in the system between the mercury pump and the tubes being exhausted. This trap is surrounded by liquid air which condenses the mercury vapor, freezing it to the walls of the trap as moisture is frozen on our window panes in winter time.

Liquid air is one of the coldest things known. It never gets warmer than—312 degrees Fahrenheit below zero. If you put a beaker full on a cake of ice, the liquid air would boil briskly because the ice, being at say 32 degrees, is quite hot as compared with the liquid air at 312 degrees. On the other hand, a piece of steel wool, saturated with liquid air, will burn briskly if lighted with a match. A piece of carbon if heated to a red heat and placed in a vessel containing liquid air will become white hot, about 5000 degrees Fahrenheit, while the outside of the vessel will be too cold to hold in the hand. If wool were to be saturated with liquid air and confined it would prove a more powerful explosive than dynamite.

In the liquid air plant the air is first compressed to 3000 pounds pressure per square inch by four-stage air compressors. The pressure of the successive stages is 50, 175, 910 and 3000 pounds per square inch. As the temperature of the air is increased considerably in compression it is then passed through two cooling tanks in which the air passes through small copper coils which are water-cooled. The air must be purified before it passes through the liquifier as impurities would congeal in that process at much higher temperatures than the liquid air, thereby stopping up the passages. The air is accordingly passed through a series of purifying bottles. The first contains a filter which removes any oil or other foreign matter which may be suspended in the air. It then flows through two bottles containing caustic soda which eliminates carbin dioxide. The next bottle contains water-free granular calcium chloride and this removes moisture from the air. Having reached the proper state of purification it then passes into the liquifier which is contained in a tank packed with sheeps-wool as an insulator to keep the heat of the room. The air then passes through a number of coils of copper tubing and finally is let out into the tank where it is directed against the coils through which it has just come. This reduces the temperature of the incoming air until it finally gets down to liquefying temperature.

CAUSE OF FADING SIGNALS

Frequently an antenna supported by trees or other movable objects will sway in the wind. This will cause changes in its capacity and give the effect of fading signals in the receivers.

An aerial that is permitted to swing will produce jerky and uncertain reception. The tighter the wire is stretched, the better it is for receiving clear signals.

Common Sense About Panels.

When purchasing a composition panel of any kind, be sure to clean it well before assembling the parts. These panels sometimes have a deposit on the outside that acts as a conductor, and unless cleaned off thoroughly there will be more or less electrical leakage over the surface.

BROADCASTING IN IRELA

Early in 1924 it is expected th radio broadcasting will start in th Irish Free States. A £30,000 broad- casting company and the Radi Association of Ireland, have recent- ly been organized in Dublin, ac- cording to Consul Hathaway, wh also reports that the Governme prohibition against the importati and use of foreign built wirele apparatus will probably be r moved on Jan. 1.

Arrangements betwen the Iri postal authorities and the broad- casters were said to be near completion a month ago, awaiti the approval of the Dail. T broadcasting company, compo of flour co-operating groups, how- ever, will handle sales independe ly. Part of the expense of esta lishing a broadcasting station w be met out of sales privileges, l cense fees and import taxes. Po ular interest, first established l summer through the broadcasti of charitable fetes in Dublin.

British radio manufacturers a said to be showing considerable i terest in the radio developme the Free State, where German e porters are also active. Amer exporters can soon enter the fi it is believed, but should offer t cheaper grades of goods at first.

The Stein Special has the advantages of simplicity, compactness, low price. Results are marvelous. Always on the job, clear clean-cut tuning, highly selective. Wonderful tone and power. Body capacity eliminated. Almost foolproof. A child can operate. Highest authorities declare it a new radio marvel.

Brings the World to Your Home

Now you can have superior and inexpensive home entertainment and instruction. Voice and music come in loud and clear from stations anywhere in the U. S., Canada or Cuba. Political speeches over the Stein Special give you the message first hand with the voice and personality of the candidate. Grand opera, jazz orchestras, ballad singing, stories, speeches, market reports, sports—all brought right into your living room. Joy for every member of the family. This is the crowning achievement of F. W. Stein, the Radio wizard who gave the world Steinite. Licensed under Armstrong Patent No. 1,113,149, and sold under Legal-Binding Guarantee of Absolute Satisfaction or your Money Back.

Requires No Expensive Accessories

The Stein Special works on any ordinary aerial, uses any ordinary headphones. If you have these, all you need is inexpensive WD-12 tube, obtainable anywhere, one 22½-volt B battery, one ordinary 40c 1½-volt dry cell A battery. Requires no expensive storage battery or any other usual costly accessories. If you have a storage battery you wish to use, get U V-200 Tube instead of WD-12. We ship you Set only, without accessories as tubes are often injured in shipping. You can get what you need at the nearest dealers. Gentlemen:

My Stein Special set came yesterday, and really, I was surprised and delighted at its handsome appearance. It is the most beautiful set I have ever seen, regardless of price.

My son and I could hardly wait until the aerial was ready, and following your simple instructions, we connected the tube and dry cells and started to "listen in." At first we didn't hear a thing. Then; moving the dials, we caught music, clear but faint. Adjusting a little more, it came in loud and clear. We could hardly believe our ears when the announcer said we were listening to Chicago.

We picked up San Antonio, Ft. Worth, Kansas City, and Atlanta the first evening, and this is the first time any of our family had ever attempted to operate a set, let alone install one.

Our neighbors are all excited, and you will soon receive a great many orders from people who have listened to our set, and unless you made a mistake and sent us a fifty dollar set, you need not worry about any of them being returned.

Yours very truly,

Just one of the many startling letters we are receiving.

2XB IS SPECIAL STATION

Many Listeners Report Having Heard New York City Station Transmitting.

Many phone and mail inquiries have been received at KSD as to what and where broadcasting station 2XB is located. This call is used by the experimental laboratory of the Western Electric Co., in New York City, and the programs which have recently been put on the air by this station were, in all probability, transmitted for the purpose of testing some new apparatus.

The figure 2 indicates that the station is located in the Second Radio District, and the first letter "X" shows that it is operating under a special licensefi for experimental purposes.

For the Notebook.

It is more efficient to have a larger aerial and a fewer number of tuning instruments, than it is to have a smaller aerial and a large number of tuning instruments.

Many cases of fading of signals can be traced to a joint right in the receiving aerial, which is swaying a little in the breeze, making good contact and then a bad contact.

The filaments on either amplifiers or detector tube should never be turned any higher than is absolutely necessary. The increase in signal strength will be small, and the life of the tube will be shortened considerably.

INTERFERENCE CAUSED BY BATTERY CHARGER

What One St. Louisan Found Out When He Tracked "That Awful Roar" to Its Source.

Many users of radio in St. Louis and the surrounding territory have complained of interference from time to time in the shape of a continuous roar which sometimes lasts no longer than half an hour and sometimes persists throughout the evening, making the reception of broadcasting impossible. In most cases those who have suffered from this interference have been at a loss for an explanation of its nature and origin.

W. H. Percival, a St. Louis radio enthusiast, has told the Post-Dispatch of an experience which may throw some light on the "mystery of the roar."

Percival had been noting this sort of interference almost nightly for some time and after eliminating other possible causes he decided to experiment with a view to finding out if the roar could be caused by a battery charger. He has a charger of the vibrating type which he uses for his radio and automobile batteries. It draws its current from the electric lighting circuit. He took this charger to his garage, 150 feet from the house, and turned it on. Going back to his radio set he heard the roar. When he disconnected the charger the roar disappeared, but a few minutes later it came on again.

This meant that, if his theory was right, someone else in the neighborhood was using a charger. He scouted around and found a neighbor using a vibrating type charger on an automobile battery. At Percival's request the neighbor disconnected the charger and Percival then found that the roar was gone from his radio set. They compared notes and found that at various times each had been interfering with the other's radio reception. They experimented with the chargers in diffferent locations in the neighborhood and, Percival says, they found that a charger of that type in action will cause a roar in all radio receivers within a radius of a block and a half.

Percival and his neighbor came to the conclusion that much of the roaring interference complained of by radio users must come from the use of battery chargers and they promised each other that they would not again charge batteries during broadcasting hours. Percival suggests that it would be a good plan for all persons with chargers of the vibrating type to use them only in the daytime, or at such hours when they would be least likely to cause interference with radio reception.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All queries must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

Q. (1) Is it necessary to have the wire leading from the lightning switch to the outside "ground" insulated? (2) Is slate a good insulator for radio work? My lightning switch has a slate base one inch thick and is of the single pole, double throw type, having a capacity of 600 amperes. It was used in an electric light plant. (3) Please let me know if the enclosed diagram is regenerative, and if not, how I can make it regenerative. Will the addition of a variometer make it regenerative? (4) I have trouble tuning out local stations. Please suggest how local stations may be turned out and DX stations brought in with greater intensity. C. P.

A. (1) No, not with a covering, but it should be supported on insulators to prevent its touching any part of the building. (2) Slate is not considered a good insulator, although it serves satisfactorily as a base for switches when protected from rain. Your lightning switch should be housed in a box to protect it from rain, sleet and snow. The blade and contact clips should be cleaned regularly to keep them bright, as corrosion is an excellent insulator. (3) The circuit inclosed with your letter is not regenerative. It is simply a two-circuit hook-up. However, it can be made regenerative by using the secondary or rotor as a "tickler" feedback (connect it in series with the plate of the vacuum tube and phones). It will then be a single-circuit regenerative. When this change is made, a 23 or 43 plate variable condenser should be connected in series with the aerial. The addition of a variometer in the plate circuit in the hookup as you now have it connected will also make it regenerative. If this method is tried and the set does not oscillate, connect a .002 mfd. fixed condenser across the "B" battery and phones. (4) Your aerial may be too long. Try shortening it. The addition of a variable condenser across or in series with the primary of your vario-coupled might help somewhat. A series-parallel switch is recommender for making this change quickly and effectively.

Q. (1) What type of vario-coupler gives the best results in a Flewelling circuit? (2) What sized wire would be best for wiring a set? (3) Please advise where I could obtain a vario-coupler for a Flewelling set. R. H.

A. (1) Constructional details of vario-coupler for Flewelling circuit follow: The Stator consists of 130 turns of wire on a tube four inches in diameter tapped at the 50th, 85th, 100th, 115th and 130th turn, giving five taps in all. No attempt should be made to tap single turns. The rotor is a ball 3¾ inches in diameter and mounted within the tube so that it will rotate freely. It is wound with 100 to 125 turns. Both the rotor and stator are wound with No. 22 wire, double covered, either cotton or silk. Neither single covered wire nor enameled wire should be used. Do not shellac the winding, but depend upon tightness to hold it in place. If a binder is necessary, use nothing but collodion. (2) Either square copper wire tinned, or No. 18 flexible lamp cord will serve for wiring a set. (3) We do not know of a vario-coupler especially made for use in the Flewelling circuit. Why not use honeycomb coils? They give very satisfactory results in this circuit.

Care of Crystals.

It is a good thing to have a small pair of pliers handy with which to pick up detector crystals, because the oil o nthe hands will cause a coating of insulating material to form, thus destroying part of the sensitivity. Never allow hot solder to come in contact with a mineral of this kind, because it will surely ruin its sensitive properties.

HALF THE RADIO FANS WANT POPULAR MUSIC

Three Chicago Broadcasting Stations Compile Data From Reports of Listeners.

"Soundings" recently made by three Chicago broadcasting stations reveal the fact that half of the listeners want popular music and a little over a quarter desire more classical composition, a report from the supervisor of the Ninth Radio District advises the Department of Commerce. Very few fans seem to care for speeches or addresses of any sort, and male quartettes appear to be less popular than any other form of musical offerings, according to an analysis of 122,974 replies out of 263,410 received.

The vote polled by KYW, WDAP and WJAZ included no duplicates as far as could be ascertained. While less than half the votes have been classified, the results are thought to show the general desires of those who listen in, while, it is pointed out, every state in the Union, as well as Canada, Alaska, Mexico, Cuba, Central America Bermuda and Hawaii, was represented by communications received within 10 days' time.

Popular music stood first on the list, with a vote of 29 per cent of the replies analyzed. Classical music was second, with 24.7 per cent, jazz third, with 18.4 per cent, and old-time songs fourth, polling 5.7 per cent of the votes. Other forms of entertainment received the following percentage of the votes: Dance music, 2.9; band music, 2.7; sacred music and vocal music, 2.1; grand opera, 1.7, and Hawaiian music, 1. Orchestral music, mixed quartets, saxophones, symphony, religious, organ, Mexico, male solos, dramatic, quartets, instrumental and male quartets followed in popularity, with fractions of 1 per cent of the total vote analyzed. Reclassifying into three general groups, gives popular selections 50.3 per cent and classical music 27.3 per cent, the balance being miscellaneous.

Fans Number 25,000,000.

As a basis of estimating total listeners-in, this vote is said to indicate that there are today over 25,000,000 fans instead of only 2,000,000, as was believed two years ago. The new estimate is derived as follows: Not more than one person who hears a broadcast program writes to the station, regardless of the inducements, conservative advertising men say. This indicates a total audience in the 10 days of 13,170,500 for all three stations. WJAZ alone received 170,699 replies, which indicates on the 1-to-50 basis an audience of 8,534,950. The returns in one day to this station numbered 20,152 pieces of mail, representing an audience of over a million during one night.

If only three stations have a radio audience of over 13,000,000 fans, an ultra conservative estimate for the country would be 25,000,000 radio fans, but some statisticians think that this is 50 per cent low, believing that there are 50,000,000 who listen to broadcast programs.

Few Write Letters.

That radio audiences are becoming frightfully blase, is pretty generally agreed; many do not take the trouble to send in either commendations or even criticisms of the programs heard, no matter how good or bad they believe them to be. When the Department of Commerce made an effort to learn the total number of receiving sets in the District of Columbia, only 1351 fans took the trouble to reply up to Dec. 1, out of a population of over 400,000, fully 20,000 of whom are believed to own sets. One element which may have tended to prevent a large number of replies was the fear that the Government planned to levy a tax on receiving sets, as is done in many countries, but this was not the case. The effort was made solely to get an idea of the number of local receiving set owners, with a view of extending the census to cover the entire country. The results were so discouraging, however, that the project was abandoned.

RANGE OF RECEPTION

The range of transmitting and receiving radio messages depends upon the nature of the territory lying between the transmitting and the receiving stations, the greatest range for a given power being obtained over water. Any metal, particularly iron or steel, lying between the stations, will cause loss of signal strength. Such metal may either be in the form of artificial structure, such as building framework or tin roofs, or may be in the form of ore deposits. Some regions of the country are noted for their poor location for radio reception. In many places it is possible to receive effectively from all directions but one, and it is usually found that in this direction a steel building or a metallic ore deposit is responsible for the lack of reception.

According to Goevrnment officials, there are more than 200,000 unlicensed radio outfits being used in England.

RADIO "PRESS" TRANSMITTED TO MACMILLIAN EXPEDITION

Roodhouse, Ill., Amateur Transmits Latest News to MacMillan Each Week.

Having been designated by the American Radio Relay League as one of the six amateur stations in the United States to transmit "press" to the MacMillan North Pole expedition, A. H. Cain of Roodhouse, Ill., has, since Nov. 19, been transmitting a summary of the day's events regularly every Friday night for the benefit of the Northern explorers.

He selects the most interesting news from the newspapers of the day and at midnight, telegraphs it by radio to the explorers who are beyond the reach of ordinary means of communication, but through radio are enabled to keep in touch with the latest news of world events.

Mr. Cain's copy schedule consumes about one hour during which he sends from 1200 to 1500 words. The other six stations chosen for this task, take care respectively of the remaining days of the week, completing the cycle of daily service to the frozen North.

The transmitter on the "Bowdoin" is not powerful enough to answer directly, but through relay stations Cain has had numerous acknowledgments that his service is being received successfully on the "Bowdoin," and many thanks for his co-operation.

Radiograms.

Newark, N. J., is reported to be the biggest source of "bootleg" vacuum tubes in the country, but it is said that fewer "bootleg" tubes are sold in that city than in any other center of its size and importance in the United States.

A Study of Texas' Arch Heresy Hunter and His War on Modernism

Known as a "Bear Cat" at the Job and, Though a Baptist, He Hits the Liberal Wherever He Finds Him

Not Only Supported Move to Try the Rev. Lee Heaton, Fort Worth Episcopal Rector, for Saying Belief in Virgin Birth Is Not Essential to Profession of Christianity, but Backed Fight That Resulted in State University Rule That "Only Teachers Who Believe in God Shall Be Employed."

By F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 5.

By suddenly dropping the proposed trial of the Rev. Lee W. Heaton, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, on the charge of violating his ordination vows by teaching that belief in the Virgin birth is nonessential for professed Christians, Bishop Harry T. Moore of Dallas has given the Texas fundamentalists and their leader, the Rev. J. Frank Norris, an awful disappointment.

They were in the saddle, booted and spurred, with spears leveled for a glorious heretic hunt, with Norris, sometimes called the Texas Bear Cat, at their head, ready for hard riding and straight stabbing, when along came Bishop Moore of the Diocese of Texas and called off the hunt on the ostensible ground that there are more prominent rectors proudly teaching the same doctrine and that the authorities should see that the big and more conspicuous expounders of liberalism are disciplined and punished before a comparatively obscure rector is arraigned at the church bar. Undoubtedly, the good Bishop referred to the Rev. Leighton Parks, rector of fashionable St. Bartholomew's, and others just as prominent in New York who have taken up Heaton's case and sought to shame the church for citing him for heresy on that ground. Parks even repeated Heaton's teaching on the Virgin birth with approval and challenged his superior, Bishop Manning, to try him on a charge of "heresy." He would not dare to do it, Dr. Parks declared, because heresy trials are "out of date." Heaton retains his rectory meanwhile, but he is not at all pleased with the outcome of the agitation. He believes that he should be given a clean spiritual bill by his Bishop or brought to trial so that he can have a verdict of his peers on the important point whether he is heretical in his teaching or not.

Norris is a Baptist and so are most of the fighting fundamentalists of Texas, and the Heaton case was an Episcopal affair, but all heretics look alike to them and they were ready to throw all of their influence on the side of the Virgin birth and the infallibility and inerrancy of the Bible, flying to the help of the Episcopalians in the holy war against the "infidels."

Rector Heaton knew what he was up against. He made that plain in New York last week. "The issue," he said, "is between the fundamentalists and the modernists. In Fort Worth I am standing out alone as a modernist. The other ministers are all fundamentalists and they are all under the sway of the Rev. Dr. Frank Norris, pastor of our leading Baptist Church, who is perhaps the leading Baptist fundamentalist in America."

So, it may be supposed, Dr. Leighton Parks, was probably not far off in his calculations when he predicted that Heaton, if he came to trial, would have about as much chance "as a snowball in hell."

Norris the Fundamentalist 'Bear Cat'

Wherefore, it is worth while to get acquainted with this J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist bear cat.

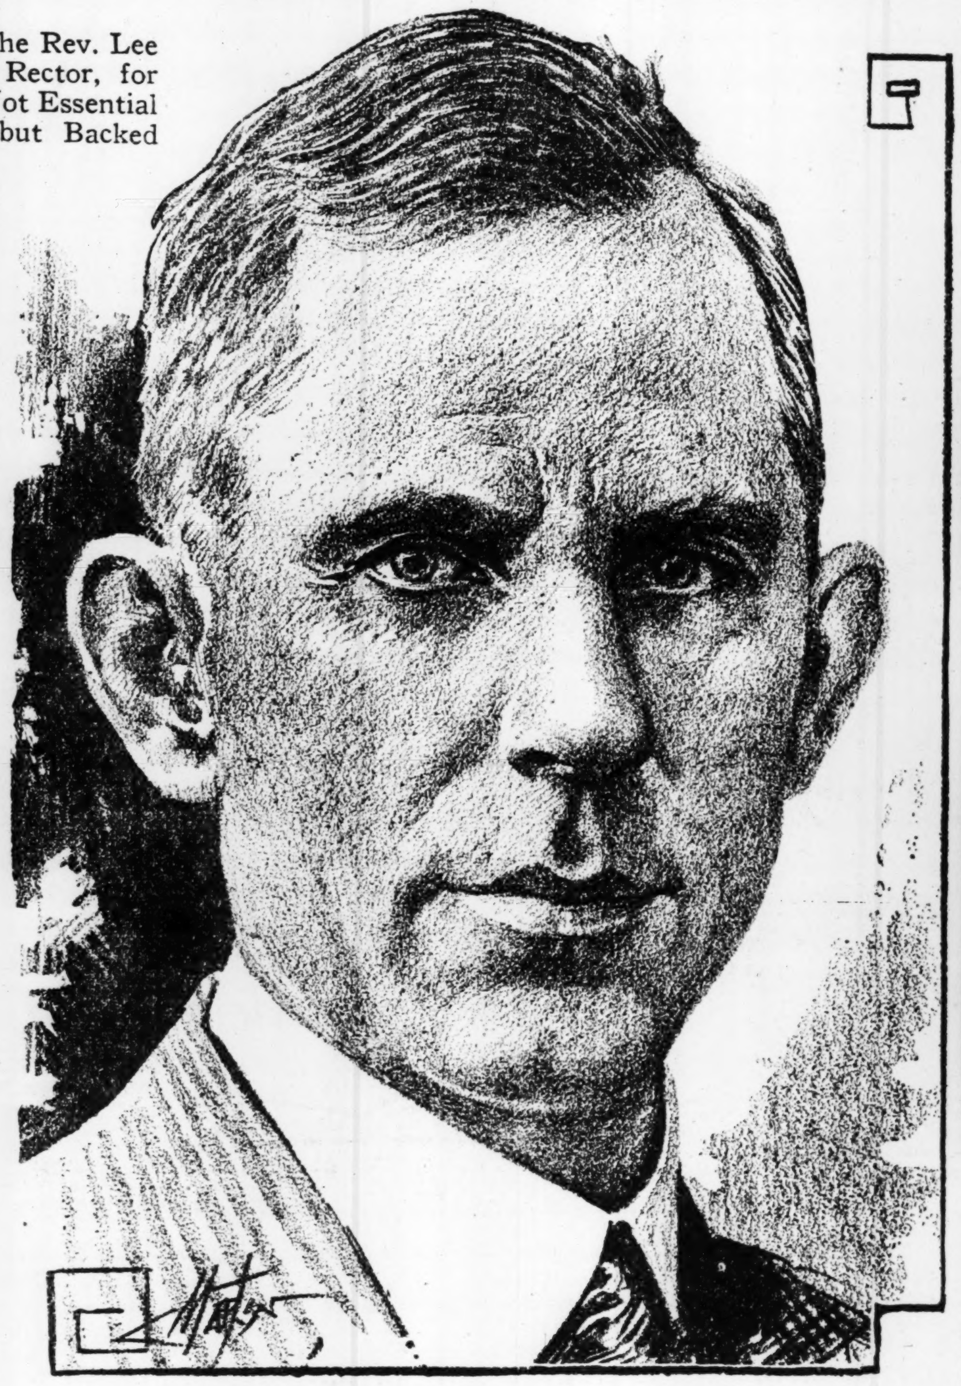
A first-class fighting man is Norris. He is always fighting somebody. Saloonkeepers or college professors, bootleggers or Baptist brethren, it's all the same. He calls it fighting the devil.

He explained it over at Waco last October when he hired a hall to make war on evolution in Baylor University. "I'm a country Baptist preacher who lives in a cow town up here," he said, "and I fight the devil for a living. I have been a sort of natural insurgent. I don't know what it is to wear a brass collar, or belly band, or a crupper, or a bridle, or anything of that kind."

He calls himself a country preacher because he practiced on a country congregation after he finished at Baylor, but most of his preaching—and fighting—has been here in Fort Worth, with occasional forays across the Texas plains and invasions of the populous centers of the effete east.

His first good job was preaching to a fashionable "petrified" church here in Fort Worth where, he says. "A man is good on Sunday and as black as hell on Monday." But by and by he decided to preach what he believed. He preached a sermon "with hair on it," and the trouble started.

The trustees took him aside and told him what was what. Then he told them what was what, winding up with: "And so you have all resigned."



THE REV. J. FRANK NORRIS,
Field Marshal of the heretic hunters, otherwise known as the "Texas Bear Cat" who admits that he likes to fight the devil and is exercising his combatative talents upon preachers and teachers who believe in evolution, as a means of putting over the hardest punch at Satan.

"Resigned," they said, "what do you mean, resigned."

"You've quit. You're out."

"But the church elects us. It's a democratic body."

"I know, and I'm the democrat."

The next Wednesday night he had a meeting of the congregation and recommended that the resignations of the trustees be accepted, and they were. And that was that.

One Fight After Another

Through the years it has been just one fight after another. First it was with his own congregation. He wanted to expand and the congregation didn't. He expanded. Then it was with the Baptist association of the State. It engendered much bitterness and for a year the First Baptist was not affiliated with the other Baptist churches of the State. Recently there has been a reconciliation.

From time to time there were fights with the saloon keepers, the race track gamblers, the picture shows, the poolrooms. Those were hot times in Fort Worth. There were threats against the preacher's life. One night a shot was fired through his study window. Another night his body guard hurled himself upon an alley assassin and his hand was torn by the pistol's descending hammer.

Norris' church and parsonage were burned. He was charged with setting fire to them himself. He produced threatening letters. He was charged with writing them himself and committing perjury in telling the grand jury that he did not know who wrote them. There was a long bitter trial on the perjury charge and he was acquitted. The arson charge was dropped.

"The Gun Toting Preacher"

There is a Texas law which permits a man who believes his life is in danger to carry a gun. So Norris became known as the "gun-toting preacher." There are those who say that in those days he was a "two-gun preacher," but that may be an exaggeration.

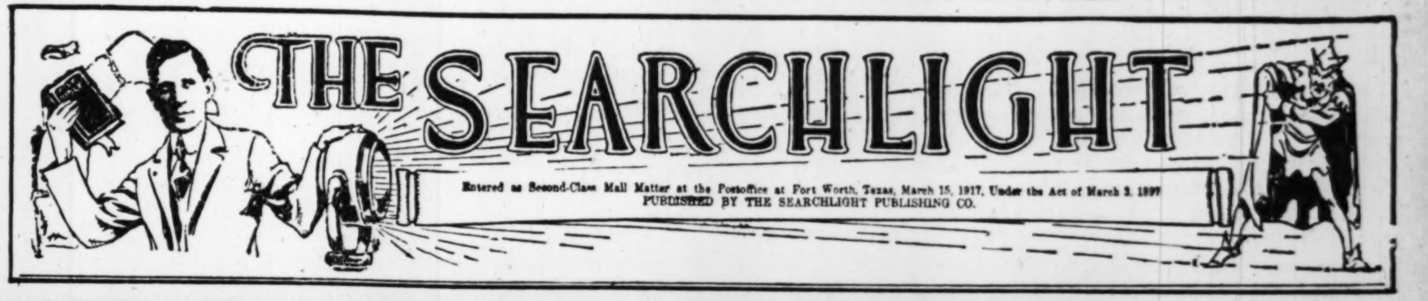
There was a mass meeting and he was ordered to leave town, with the intimation that if he did not get out he would be put out. He did not get out and they say here one reason he wasn't put out was that he and his fighters barricaded themselves with a machine gun and invited the mass meeting to come on. But Norris says there was no machine gun—only sawed-off shotguns.

Things are not as exciting now as they were. Norris has expanded until he has one of the biggest Baptist plants anywhere. It fills a block in the business section and spreads across the street. The property is valued at $1,000,000. There is room in the vast auditorium for most of the 7000 members but the Sunday-school, claimed to be the largest in the world, spills over into a leased theater and the Chamber of Commerce. There is room on the choir platform for 730 singers and an orchestra of 40. There is a paid office force of 20 to look after the institutional features and the publication of the preacher's paper, "The Searchlight," whereon the preacher is pictured rampant, with the Bible in one hand and a searchlight in the other focused upon the devil cowering in the opposite corner. Presently there is going to be a big searchlight on the church tower, to keep Fort Worth reminded that Norris is on the job and send its beams across the Texas plains.

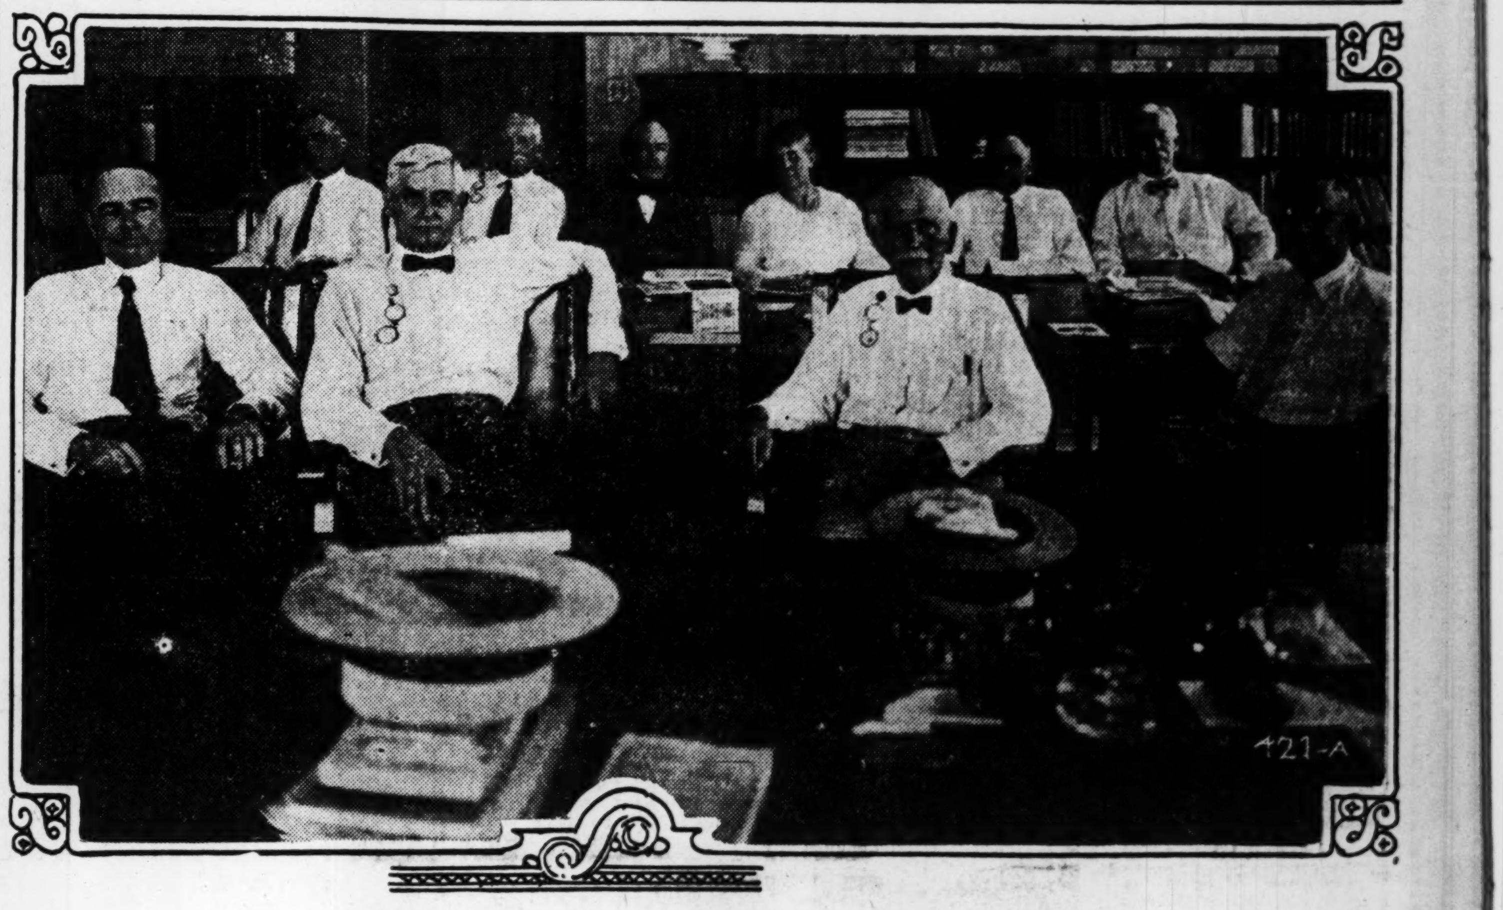
This "Searchlight" is the preacher's principal weapon. With it he has been for more than two years pouring hot shot into those hotbeds of iniquity, the colleges where evolution is taught. His plan of campaign is to preach a sermon exposing evolution in one of the colleges, quoting from the textbooks and the utterances of professors, poking fun at the modernist monkeys and winding up with a camp meeting exhortation. Then he puts the sermon in the "Searchlight" and mails copies to all the preachers. That gets the other preachers started and in a little while the college, or university, finds itself in the middle of an awful fuss, with Norris and the other fundamentalists shouting at its doors for the blood of the "infidel" professors.

There is an investigation and probably an explanation by the harried president in which he says evolution is taught in the sciences but not theologically, in contravention of the Genesis version. The President's explanation and the investigating committee's report are picked to pieces by Norris and his crowd. A few professors are forced to resign and by and by the college or university is declared to have been purged and the Norris fundamentalists move on to another.

Events took much that course in the fight



THE SEARCHLIGHT
Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Postoffice at Fort Worth, Texas, March 15, 1917, Under the Act of March 3, 1879
PUBLISHED BY THE SEARCHLIGHT PUBLISHING CO.



The Board of Regents of Texas State University, all ardent fundamentalists, who adopted a resolution in July requiring all employes of the University, from president down to janitor, to be "persons who believe in a supreme being."

to free Baylor University at Waco of the taint of evolution. Norris opened with a broadside from his pulpit and followed with the publication of his sermon in his "Searchlight." He sent it to the preachers and the heresy-hunt was on. President Brooks stood his ground for a while, defending his professors, and an investigating committee found that evolution at Baylor was taught only as a working hypothesis in the field of science, but Norris and his cohorts kept hammering away. Norris went to Waco and made a speech in which he said that some of his ancestors might have been hung by the neck but none of them had hung by their tails.

The professors couldn't stand argument like that, so two of them, G. Samuel Dow and L. O. Bradbury, resigned. Norris then turned his batteries on a woman teacher, Lula Pace, for the holy war knows no distinction of sex, and she made a recantation which was satisfactory. And then, not long ago, the Baptists had a convention at Galveston and President Brooks declared he was opposed to evolution of every kind and phase and the fundamentalists hallelujahed and wept with joy and Norris apologized for the cruel words he had spoken and written that were calculated to wound his brethren, and came back home and opened up on another college for harboring the evolutionary heresy.

Has "the Goods" on Them—in Books

"I'm going after all of them," he said to me as he sat at his desk, and I've got the goods on 'em." He waved his hand at a shelf filled with text books containing "the goods."

So, the hunt is on, and it has come to this that when a stranger, looking from a Pullman window and seeing a cloud of dust on the horizon, asks a native what's up, the native takes a squint and says he reckons it's a pack of fundamentalists chasing a college professor who has been teaching evolution.

"And what will they do to him if they catch him?" the innocent stranger asks.

"Skin 'im alive," says the native.

The fundamentalists are not satisfied with hunting the "infidels" out of the denominational schools. They are even more bitter against the teaching of evolution in the State-supported schools. At the last session of the Legislature Representative J. T. Stroder of Corsicana introduced in the lower house a "monkey bill," prohibiting the teaching of evolution in tax-supported schools. Norris went down to Austin and made a speech, in which he said:

"The evolutionists say some of these creatures lived on land and grew hair, some of them were more ambitious and developed wings and feathers, some of them went into the sea and developed scales and fins, those on the land began to devour each other for breakfast and dinner, the smaller ones sought refuge in the caves and there, doubtless through disuse, lopped off their tails and the ones on the outside grew larger and longer tails by their calisthenics on the limbs. Those living in caves kept on growing and being in the shade had no need for the hair and that accounts for so many baldheaded men. One day one of these hairless, tailless animals ran off and stole a suit of clothes and became professor of biology out here at the State University."

After that the House passed the bill, after extracting most of its teeth, but it died in the Senate.

Even Janitors Must Believe

When the Regents of the University of Texas, all strict church members and fundamentalists, appointed by Gov. Neff, strict church member and fundamentalist, met at Austin in July a resolution was adopted, over the protest of Acting President Sutton, requiring all employes of the university, from President to janitor, to be persons who believe in God.

The manner of carrying it into effect is to place a copy of it in the hands of each employe or prospective employe. If he does not believe in God, he is expected to say so. Failing to say so it is assumed that there is no conflict between the person's belief and the Regents' resolution.

It might be thought that this is lacking in conclusiveness but the Acting President says he takes it for granted that, the employes being gentlemen, any one of them who does not believe in God will say so. And he has reported to the Regents his way of enforcing the resolution and they seem to be satisfied.

But the fundamentalists are not going to let it rest there. It is evolution that they are after and they are going after it again in the next Legislature and Norris says they will be able to get a bill through. But a speedier and more effective method has been decided upon. The injunction is to be invoked to prevent the teaching of "that most destructive form of all phases of infidelity."

It seems funny but these fundamentalists are dead in earnest about it. And where they will stop nobody can tell. For the Baptists are regarded as controlling the politics of the State. Representative Strouer is threatening to run for Governor on an anti-evolution ticket.

The doctrinal tempest has been an ill wind for the Episcopal Church's educational interests in Texas. Because of its conservatism it failed last week to receive a gift of $4,500,000 which may grow to twice that size through accumulation. When Mrs. Mary Couts Burnett was debating whether to give her fortune to an Episcopal college or the Texas Christian University her decision was determined by the non-sectarian character of the university and its liberal attitude, as contrasted to the churchly and conservative character of the Episcopal college, and Texas Christian University was given the money.

Not that the university is admittedly modernistic. There was almost a panic when something was said out there the other day to that effect. It would be very serious, the dean remarked, if an impression got abroad that the university was modernistic. Was it fundamentalist then? Oh, no. What was it then? Well, just call it non-sectarian.

That reflects the feeling of the educational element in the State, in danger of decimation from the crossfire of the fundamentalists and modernists.

There are fundamentalists and fundamentalists, fighting fundamentalists and fundamentalists who wish the cruel war was over and hope that they won't get shot before peace is declared. When Frank Norris speaks of fundamentalists he means all who adhere to traditional teachings. Counting that way, he says there are 90 per cent. Part of these, though, are trying to keep from taking sides, just as part of the modernists are trying to keep from being found out. But it is Norris' idea that the neutrals will have to take sides one way or the other in the coming line-up when, he thinks, the fundamentalists will reign and the modernists will be cast into outer darkness.

The neutrals have a different idea. They have scant forbearance for the fighting groups and predict that they will subside after awhile and be absorbed.

The war is on and the fighting is fast and furious, with the fundamentalists whacking every modernist head that shows itself and the modernists, unlike in the north and east, a pitiful minority, holding on grimly to freedom of opinion, and the neutrals trying to escape being ground between the upper and nether millstones of disputation.

This, as Norris enunciates it, "is a war against modernism."

"And we propose to carry the fight into every school, college and university in the denomination where the false teachings of modernism are found. The issue is the integrity and authority of the Scriptures.

"We propose to expose and publish to the world, every professor in any Baptist school, north, south, east or west who is untrue to the fundamentals of the faith.

"We propose to review, expose and publish every textbook which has false teaching in it.

"It is a war to a finish. There will be no compromise."

YOUNG PHILIPPE DAUDET'S SUICIDE REVEALS POLITICAL SCANDAL THAT ABSORBS PARIS

ROYALIST EDITOR SEEKS REVENGE ON ANARCHISTS FOR DEATH OF SON

Revolutionist Editor and Poet Produces Youth's Writings to Prove He Was Secretly One of Them Though Father, the Most Powerful Politician in France, Insists He Did Not Kill Himself—French Capital Thrilled by Lurid Details and Charges in Press of Both Camps.

By HUGH O'CONNOR,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Dec. 24.

THE Anarchist poet Georges Vidal is in an extraordinary and dangerous duel of wits with the most powerful politician in France, Leon Daudet, Royalist Deputy of Paris. Vidal need make but one or two circumstantial slips in the present battle of newspaper articles and some member or members of his Anarchist group will be escorted to the guillotine as the assassin of Daudet's son, Philippe.

French justice is particularly sensitive to influence, and the powerful Daudet has need to have some head chopped off by order of the French Republic for his son's death. Otherwise he must postpone his hopes of overthrowing the republic and seating Philippe of Orleans on the throne of France, with himself as kingmaker.

It was either the greatest daring or the purest innocence of any wrongdoing which permitted the Anarchists to expose themselves to Daudet's fury by putting him in his present predicament. If Daudet doesn't now convince the people of France that his son was assassinated by the Anarchists, he will be in a ridiculous position as a Royalist.

Daudet's son was dead a week Dec. 1, and had been buried in consecrated ground at Pere Lachaise, with all the ceremonies of the Catholic Church, when the Anarchists declared he had not died in bed at all after the "short illness" which had been announced. In a special edition of the Anarchist weekly, Le Libertaire, Georges Vidal, its editor, had the news cried through Paris that the son of Leon Daudet, Royalist and Catholic, had really died an Archist and suicide.

Leon Daudet was convulsed with anguish and rage. He knew his son had really died from a bullet through the brain, but he thought he had succeeded in suppressing the news completely "by order" obtained from Poincare after a little urging. His son had run away from home repeatedly during the past four years, impelled by epileptic moods which he could not control and, after the last runaway of five days, his father discovered his body among the unidentified dead at the Larisboisiere Hospital.

He was told: "This young man committed suicide yesterday afternoon in a taxicab on the Boulevard Magenta." His son's morbid condition made suicide such a natural explanation of his death that Leon Daudet's only thought was how to conceal it.

Scandal Brought Home

Daudet's great power as a politician is based on his complete collection of the private scandals of public men; and now the Anarchists appeared with a scandal even greater than he had suspected—and in his own home. They declared his own son had joined the Anarchists and spent two days with them before his death.

They produced a letter in which he recognized his son's handwriting, saying: "I have been an Anarchist for a long while without daring to say it." And they went so far as to say his son, in devotion to the Anarchist cause, had proposed to assassinate his own father to prove this devotion. This was his eldest son, Philippe, well grown, whom he adored and called "My Little Brother."

Leon Daudet recalled how militant Philippe had been in the Royalist organization, the "Camelots du Roi." It was only a few months since he had thrashed a classmate at the college of Louis-le-Grand for criticising his father's politics.

He would not believe this son had been an Anarchist. He could not afford to believe it. His imagination, which has produced distinguished romances as well as political diatribes, began to work furiously to discredit Georges Vidal's account of how Philippe had entered the offices of Le Libertaire and made his profession of anarchy.

The theory of assassination took shape and within an hour it was a conviction in Leon Daudet's mind. Philippe had gone to the Anarchists only to gain their confidence and then strike them down. His letter was only a blind—a ruse. But the Anarchists had found him out, with their diabolic cunning, and they had contrived his death. Vengeance must be had.

In the days which have passed since the first amazing announcement by the Anarchists, these two opposing and heroic explanations of Philippe's death have become articles of faith in the opposing political camps. To the Anarchists Philippe is an Anarchist martyr. To the Royalists he is a royalist martyr. Both parties are advocates of violence and both have shed each other's blood before.

Now the Public Taking Sides

Now the greatest imagination and provocative ability are in action on both sides and they are whipping each other into a Gallic fury. The French public is taking sides for one explanation, or for the other and the elections in a few months will undoubtedly be influenced by this accusation of crime just as they were a generation ago by the Dreyfus "affaire."

"Perfume of the Damned"

Some of the poems left by Philippe Daudet with the Anarchists and published as "The Perfume of the Damned." Translation to indicate general style and thought.

In the Fireplace

The wind rattles,
The rain falls,
I am alone in the house, deserted.
And close to the fire.

It is a person this fire
When you are afraid.

The spirals of my pipe spread about me
In an impassable morass.
It is the ooze of my soul which is rising to the surface.
It horrifies me
And attracts me.

Now the flaming cavalier has faded.
Only a pale blue flame remains.
It is the seigneur of the damned angels
Who preside at the slow sarabande of my evil thoughts.

To a Skull.

You alone are happy in death.
Nothing can be taken from you.
You are unaware of love
And its tortures.
You are so happy
You smile eternally.

Poincare himself is disturbed by his role in it. Not only was it at his orders, in compliance with Daudet's request, that the police first suppressed the news when the supposed young suicide was identified as Philippe Daudet. A few days later, when he was buried ceremoniously "after a short illness," M. and Mme. Poincare were in attendance at the funeral.

The outraged feelings and the widespread disturbance in France resulting from the Anarchist revelations cannot be estimated. The Anarchists enjoy a sentimental sympathy which is proverbial in France. "If a young man of 20 isn't an Anarchist he has no soul; if at 30 he is still an Anarchist he is an imbecile."

The mystery is complicated, therefore, by the political advantages of lying and exaggeration by both anarchists and royalists and by the fact that the principal actor, Philippe, was known to be in an abnormal state.

The Anarchist poet, Vidal, explains everything plausibly. The royal romanticist, Daudet, examines every explanation with passionate scepticism and devises his own explanations to convict some Anarchists of assassination. When the Anarchists say that Philippe never told them more than his first name, and that they did not know him to be the son of Daudet, the father immediately accuses them of knowing who he was. And specialists in mental disease add to the possible speculations by asking: "Is any one sure the boy himself knew his identity when in his morbid state?"

Youth's Symptoms of Epilepsy

The boy, grandson of the famous French romanticist, Alphonse Daudet, author of "Sapho," showed the preliminary symptoms of epilepsy. He also had shown beginnings of the literary ability which is the family inheritance. He wrote a small sheaf of prose poems which he left with the Anarchists. He had never shown them to his family and, when the Anarchists published them, his father, Leon Daudet, considered them so good that he denied them.

The thought was too mature, he said, and the style too fine for his young son. Later, however, Pierre Lecene, who had been Philippe's closest friend at the college of Louise-le-Grand, came forward with the information that Philippe showed him some of the poems one day after class.

This classmate also says that Philippe was devoted to his father and feared for him. He says Philippe cried out recently after an attempted assassination: "O Pierre, these beasts of Anarchists will kill him or me one day."

Philippe's morbid imagination drove him once to Marseilles where he was about to take passage to South America, when he recovered his normal mind. This time he has been traced from his home directly to Havre, where he discussed going to Canada and found he had not enough money. Then he went directly back to Paris, and from the railroad station directly to the offices of the Anarchist weekly, Le Libertaire, on the afternoon of Nov. 22.

The solution of the mystery will depend upon discovering his experiences between that time and the afternoon of Nov. 24, when a taxi chauffeur on the crowded Boulevard Magenta called a policeman and said: "My passenger has just shot himself."

It was Mme. Daudet, his mother, whose anxious eye found a few lines buried in the Petit Parisien next morning saying: "A young man attempted suicide in a taxicab on the Boulevard Magenta by firing a bullet into his head. Condition grave. At the Laisboisiere Hospital." She says she had a presentimen. It was her missing son.

Above: Georges Vidal, French poet and editor of "Le Libertaire," who is accused of causing, by suggestion, the suicide of young Philippe Daudet.

Below, left: Germaine Berthon, 20-year-old girl anarchist who recently was acquitted of assassinating Marius Platan, a royalist and secretary for Leon Daudet. She admitted that she had meant to kill Daudet instead. At the right is Platau, who was a member of the staff of the French royalist newspaper, "L'Action Francaise."

At the same time the Anarchists according to their own account, noticed the same obscure lines and wondered if it might be their wild-eyed young disciple, "Philippe." They sent a "comrade" to view the body, but they say he was refused all information at the hospital. They explain it was only two days later when the royalist paper, L'Action Francaise, announced the death of Philippe Daudet, "after a short illness," that they suddenly had an intuition of the truth.

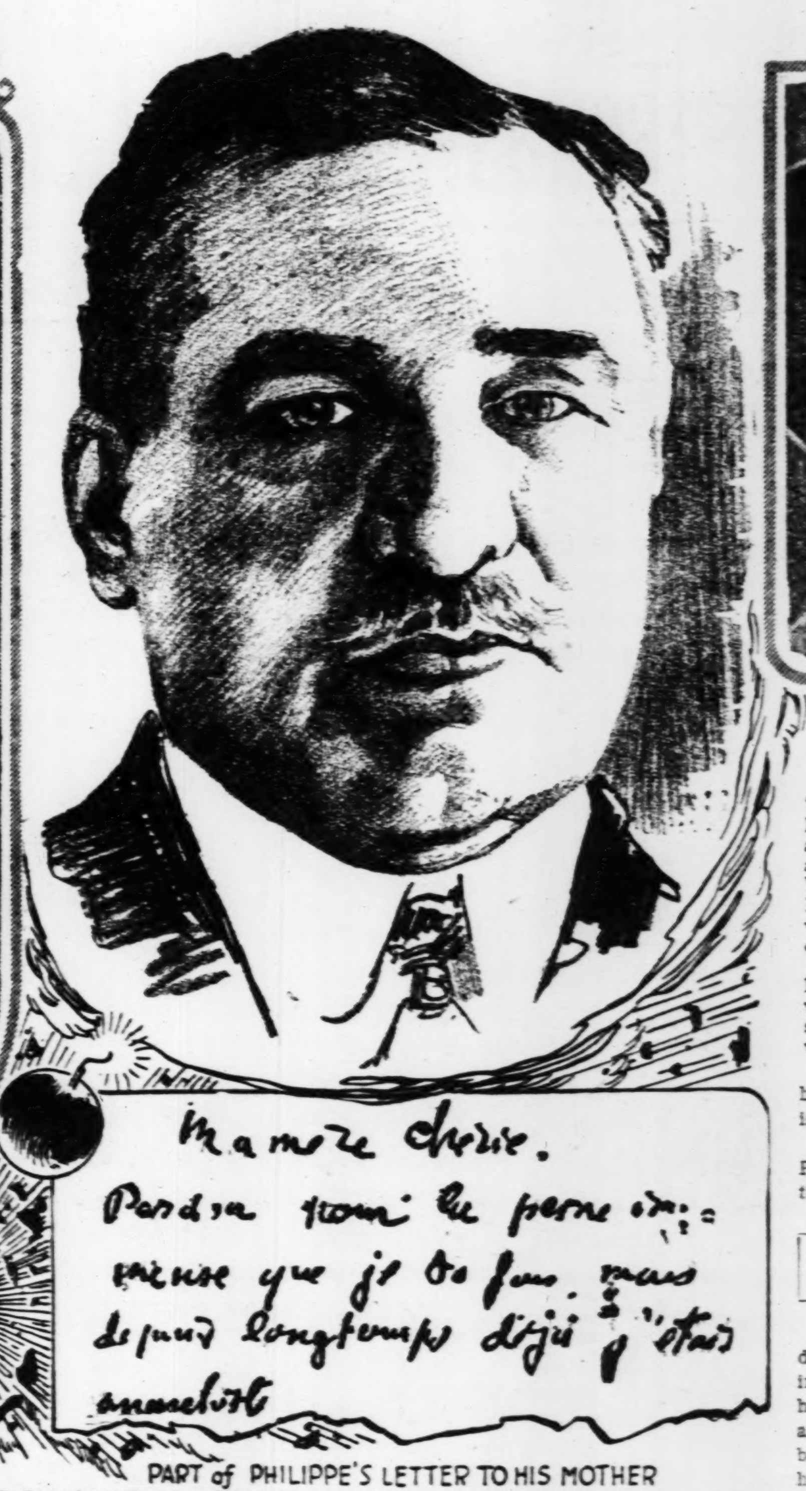
They connected their unknown "Philippe" with the young suicide and with "Philippe Daudet." For four days, they say, they carefully verified their judgment and then they revealed the scandal.

This is the story the Anarchist poet, Georges Vidal, tells, and it excites the royalists to a murderous rage:

He says a young man who seemed to him about 20 years of age came to the offices of Le Libertaire in a super-excited condition, declaring: "The social system revolts me. Life has no more interest for me. Help me to leave it with a sublime gesture of renunciation."

Vidal swears the young unknown proposed first to enter some police station and shoot down policemen as long as cartridges lasted. Then he asked what the Anarchists thought of having him go to some tea dansant to shoot down as many dancing men as possible. "He implored us to tell him what would be most useful in our cause." Among other possibilities he proposed to assassinate Millerand, Poincare or Daudet.

For two days the Anarchists declare they tried to soothe the young man. Then he left them a letter and a small sheaf of manuscript, saying: "Use these if you hear of me through the newspapers." They knew him simply as "Philippe," and they say they did not discover he was Philippe Daudet until after his death.



PART of PHILIPPE'S LETTER TO HIS MOTHER
(MY DARLING MOTHER ...... PARDON ME for the IMMENSE PAIN WHICH I AM ABOUT to CAUSE YOU BUT FOR A LONG TIME I HAVE BEEN AN ANARCHIST).

The Anarchists say they never saw him again after his departure from the Libertaire office that Friday. Georges Vidal was to meet him that night at a cabaret known as Le Grenier du Gringoire, but he arrived too late. The young man had gone, leaving a note: "I have borrowed 35 francs here, please repay from the money I left with you on deposit."

It was on the afternoon of the next day that Philippe Daudet was turned over to the police, dying with a bullet hole through his brain. The Anarchists say they had no reason to think their "Philippe" might have committed suicide until they noticed the few lines devoted to an unidentified young man in a taxicab. A "comrade" was sent to investigate but the hospital refused all information.

An Extraordinary Guess

Two days later, when the royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise announced Philippe Daudet had died "after a short illness," the Anarchists made what appears an extraordinary guess, if they had no intimation of the identity of their own "Philippe" and if the hospital had successfully denied them any information concerning the unidentified suicide, as they declare.

Philippe is a common name in France, yet the Anarchists say it occurred to them almost immediately that "Philippe," whom they had not seen in three days, was Philippe Daudet, and was also the unidentified young suicide. "We spent four days verifying this before we announced it," they said.

The letter which Philippe left with the Anarchists follows:

"My Darling Mother:

"Pardon me for the immense pain which I am about to cause you, but for a long time I have been an Anarchist without daring to say it. Now my cause has called men and I believe it is my duty to do what I am doing. I love you dearly.

"(Signed) PHILIPPE.

"P. S.—Kiss the children for me."

The sheaf of manuscript consisted of prose poems of eroticism and melancholy which showed no apparent connection with anarchy. They were written with a stylistic command of French cadence and phrase length which might have been attributed to a mature writer. It was their merit which led Leon Daudet to disown them at first as beyond the capacity even of his own precocious son.

Anarchists' Explanation

The Anarchist explanation of Philippe Daudet's conversion to Anarchy and his suicide was published in Le Libertaire as follows:

"Consider the existence in which this sensitive young boy was imprisoned—the comfortable dining room where his bourgeois family fattened itself, the salon where visitors were always announced before they entered. The natural disgust which Philippe must have felt for his bourgeois surroundings would turn him toward ideals which are the very opposite—ideals which were brought to his attention by the hatred his father professed for Anarchy and all its actions.

"Oh, our poor Philippe! If we had only known you were the son of Daudet we would not have let you go. We would have understood that you had the greatest need of all to be protected—you as an Anarchist and the son of such a father! We would have forced you to live so that, in maturity, you might have been one of the greatest ornaments of Anarchy.

"But you told us nothing except your unshakable will to strike down some of those responsible for the great Social Cesspool.

"You must have reviewed the long parade of all the crimes committed by Leon Daudet. You saw in imagination the thousands and thousands of poilus rotting in the battlefields where they had been sent through the sanguinary mania of this patriot of the Action Francaise.

"And with these, you saw also all the dead he will cause again. And you said to yourself: 'He is the man! He is the man!'

"But one vision stayed your hand. The shadow of your mother bent over you with all the weight of her tenderness. Your darling mother begged you to spare her the immense pain of your patricide. And therefore you preferred little comrade Philippe, to give her and to give us a different pain—the pain of your death.

"It was in a taxicab on the Boulevard Magenta while passing the Prison of Saint Lazare, that Philippe Daudet killed himself. After having told us repeatedly of his admiration for Germaine Berthon who attempted last January to strike Leon Daudet down —I might even speak of Philippe's mystic love for her—he killed himself in front of the prison where she is awaiting judgment. (Editor's note—Germaine Berthon has since been acquitted of the crime of killing the man next in authority or "L 'Action Francaise." Marius Platan, after failing to find Daudet, who she intended to kill. There was no doubt of her guilt but Paris was swept by hysterical sympathy for her and this extended to the press.)

"When Leon Daudet learned that his son—an Anarchist—had killed himself without a word of farewell for him, he lost his reason. What! His son an Anarchist! What will people say of the leader who wasn't able to convert his own child to his ideas? What will they say at the next elections?

"He forgot the dead body of his son. For him there was only public opinion. Now he is howling, 'ASSASSINATION!'

"Astride the tomb of our little comrade Philippe we see Leon Daudet, tragically grotesque, raving and lying."

PHILIPPE DAUDET.
The 15-year-old poet and son of the royalist leader, who shot himself in a taxicab after appearing in the offices of Le Libertaire in an agitated condition and, according to Vidal, offering to assassinate Millerand, Poincare or Leon Daudet, or anybody else whose death might further the anarchist cause.

At left: Leon Daudet, French royalist leader who refuses to believe that his son was an anarchist and once offered to assassinate him, and charges that the boy was a victim of Vidal and other anarchists.

Daudet's Version of Tragedy

The Royalist and romanticist, Leon Daudet, is brooding over his son's death. His imagination is in an inflamed state and from hour to hour he invents new explanations—always circling about the idea that it is a diabolic revenge of the Anarchists. They sent his beloved son to death after labeling him falsely as an Anarchist in order to disarm the opposition of his father forever.

He says: "The Oriental Communism of Russia is known for the refinement of horror of its political and ritual sacrifices. I don't believe it has ever exceeded in atrocity what any one may easily discern here—the hearts of father and mother wrung, stabbed and poisoned by means of the dead body and handwriting of their child."

He thinks the farewell letter in which Philippe made his profession of Anarchy must have been dictated under constraint. He will never believe that the son whom he adored could unaided conceive the idea of assassinating him, as the Anarchists declare.

He speaks of the boy: "Philippe was well grown and strong for his age, but he was only a child. He was only fourteen years and ten months. He was good and loyal and generous, and he loved me and I loved him with all the force of our two hearts. Each year, since 1917, as a reward for good school work, he went with me for a vacation to Avignon, where we were together only last September. I called him gaily My Little Brother. I restudied my Latin and Greek in order to work with him.

Slept Near His Mother

"In Paris he went with me daily to the Action Francaise and helped me open my mail. In the evening his bed was in his mother's room at the foot of hers. She tied his neckties in the morning and rehearsed him in difficult passages which I had translated with him the night before."

Daudet paused to steady himself: "The malady was consuming him. My friend, the doctor Lucien Bernard, didn't hide the menace from me. And the adversaries who spied upon us knew that here was a weak spot through which they would attack."

This is the form of a solution which is being shaped in Leon Daudet's mind as a charge of assassination: "Imagine Philippe at a moment when he recovered his senses at Havre; for instance—as the temporary spell of his malady receded. Would he come home with his head down in shame? No. He would go to the den of assassins and would choose his victim. And for that he must commence by deceiving them and gaining their confidence. What difference would it have made to him then to write: 'I have been an Anarchist for a long while without daring to tell it.' When he had struck the enemy down, his letter would appear as what it was—a ruse—a blind, necessary to arrive at his purpose.

"But they, the most suspicious people in the world—found him out. Pretending to agree with him they stripped him of his papers and sent him out to death."

Though Daudet insists his son was not quite 15, those who knew the youth say he was thought by casual acquaintances to be about 20, that he appeared fully that age.

Daudet was represented by his own [illegible]

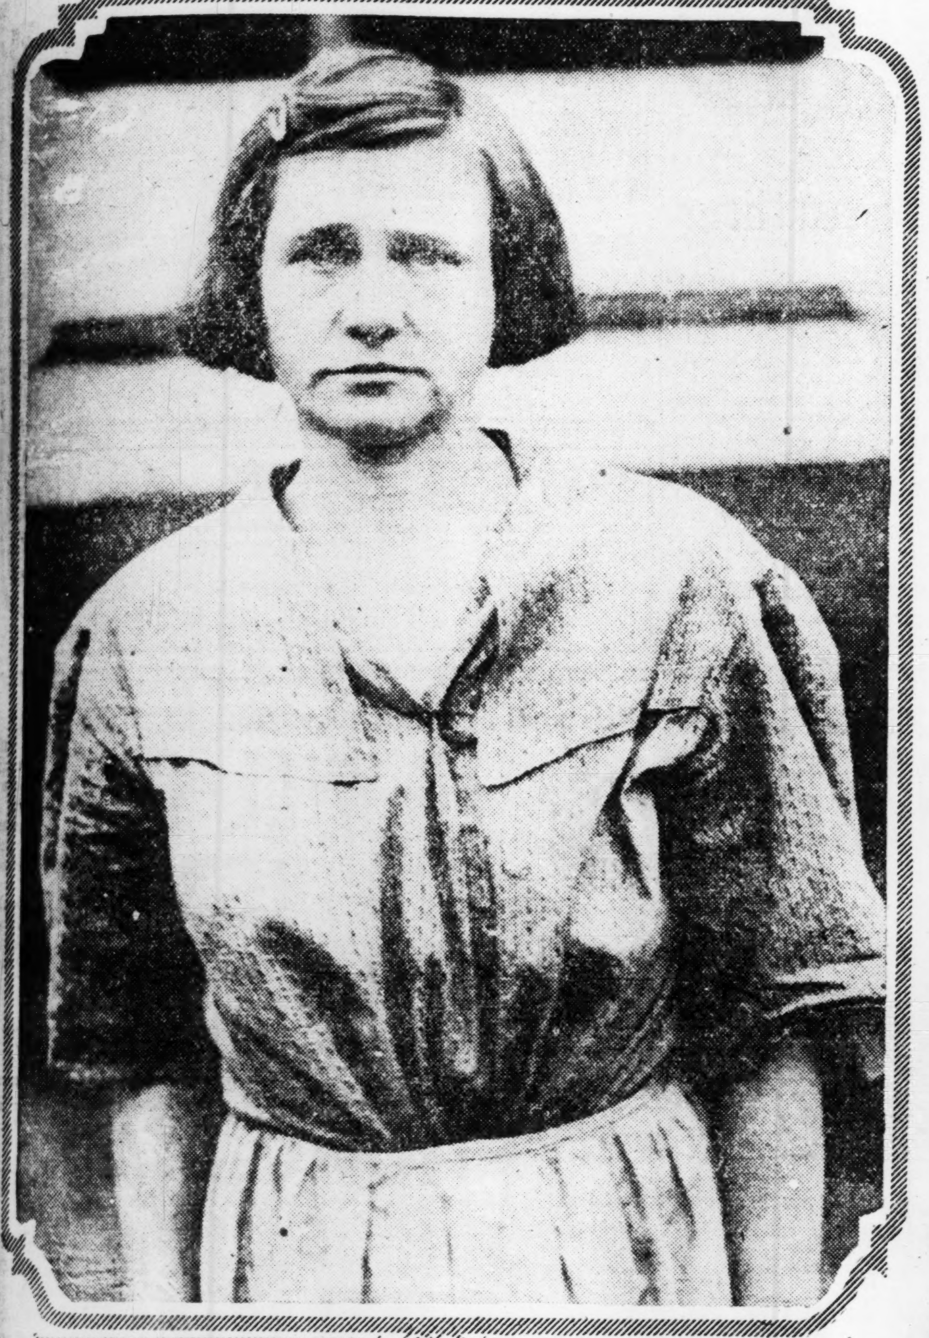
Girl from West Virginia Mountains Hopes Prison Term Will Bring Education Denied by Childhood Surroundings



EDNA BOND,
So-called "Queen of the West Virginia Moonshiners," who has just been sentenced to seven years in a Federal reformatory for women.

Typical stills used by West Virginia mountain moonshiners photographed after their seizure and dismantling. At the right (above) a dismantled still as it appeared in the woods where it was found by the raiders.

Two mountaineer moonshiners of the type with whom Edna Bond was reared. The still in the picture shows what damage a squad of prohibition agents can do to a confiscated plant.

Remarkable Case of Edna Bond Who Had No Rearing but, Like Topsy, "Just Growed," and Who Was, by Her Associations, Led to Believe That a Man Could Sell His Corn in Any Form He Pleased—Thought It All Right to Make Whisky if One Wished—Her 26 Years Spent Where Stills Are Thick and Are Regarded as Business Enterprises, and Only an Accident Turned Her Over to the Law.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 5.

EDNA BOND was born a moonshiner. She came of a moonshining stock which long before her time had made the West Virginia mountains notorious for their output of high-powered corn liquor and, like her mountaineer forefathers, she couldn't see any particular harm in augmenting the output or keeping up the traditional standard of its voltage. From the time she learned to talk she talked of stills and "runs" as her elders did and when she reached the age—not a very great age in the mountains—at which little girls begin to help with the drudgery of life in the backwoods, it was impossible for her to miss a thorough training in the fundamentals of the business. She never had a chance to do anything else. She was largely a victim of Fate in the choice of her occupation.

But Fate has its own desperate cures for the desperate diseases it develops and it has set about to administer to Edna Bond a course of rigorous treatment. That its remedy for curing the moonshining habit should coincide with the United States Government's prescription for the same affliction is perhaps not unusual. It may be that the two work together on such cases. Anyway, it is a circumstance which Edna Bond is not marveling at or trying to understand.

She is accepting the cure with the same unquestioning fortitude with which she accepted her station in life, the poverty of a mountain cabin and the circumstances which permitted her only one month of schooling in her life. Mountain women are accustomed to making the most of circumstances, adverse as they may be, without complaining, and she is not complaining of the fact that at 26 she is facing a term of seven years in the Federal Reformatory for Women at Rockwell City, Ia., and a fine of $6000—a penalty which the Federal Court at Charleston recently decided would be appropriate for a woman whose conduct and reputation had earned for her such a title as "Queen of the West Virginia moonshiners."

A Long Way From Her Home

A week ago she took a farewell look at the hills of Greenbrier County when the officers started with her to Iowa. To a mountain girl who has had but one month of schooling in her life it seems a long way from West Virginia to Iowa, for mountaineers have vague ideas of distance in the outside world, but the expression she made on that occasion fairly well sums up her philosophy. "If I've got to go to prison for seven years," she said, "I've got to go, so what is the use of worrying about it?"

A few days before that they took her brother, Frank Bond, and an associate, Luther Trimble, to the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., to begin similar terms for similar offenses. The three had been partners in their operations. At first it was ordered that they serve out their unpaid fines as well as their seven-year terms. At the rate of 60 cents a day, usually allowed in Federal cases where fines are not paid, this would have meant terms of 34 years each instead of seven. This added penalty, however, has been waived by the authorities upon the finding that confinement of a prisoner for more than 60 days in settlement of an unpaid fine is illegal. The seven-year terms stand and it is up to Edna Bond to get what consolation she can out of the fact that she must remain away from the woods and rhododendron of Greenbrier County only seven years instead of 34.

Looks on It As Opportunity

And that term, she feels, is severe enough.

"I think they have been too hard on me," she said with a serious faraway look toward the rugged fastnesses where she had spent her entire life, but I hope to win a pardon for good behavior before the term is up. They tell me, too, that I will have a chance to learn things from books. I never had a chance to do that here, so maybe prison won't be so bad after all. I hope to learn how to read and write better so I can get a job somewhere when I get out."

It is in this provision which the Government has made for educating its prisoners during their incarceration that Fate, which made a moonshiner of Edna Bond, will have the best means of effecting a permanent cure. Moonshiners of the mountains as a rule are not habitual criminals, lawless by nature, nor are they mental or moral defectives. They are largely victims of circumstances and environment as Edna Bond was. Their livelihood depends chiefly upon the corn they can coax from their rocky hillside patches, and when such products sell for 75 cents a bushel or less in the open market, it is hardly surprising to find hard-pressed backwoods farmers resorting to any expedient which might offer more profitable disposal of their meager crops.

In the mountain country moonshining offers that source of increased profit, has always offered it and mountaineers have always found a way to convert corn into moonshine without seriously compromising their own tenets regarding right and wrong. A man's corn, they maintain, is his own to dispose of as he pleases and if the Government doesn't approve of his method of disposing of it, then the Government can do what it likes. It can do something to relieve his economic predicament, or it can imprison him so that he will not have to earn his own living or it can educate him so he can earn it in another way than moonshining. These are the courses open in Edna Bond's case and the Government is acting upon two of them. What the result will be remains to be determined, but there is reason to believe, officials declare, that her prison sentence will have more than a punitive effect and will in fact be a blessing in disguise.

Edna Bond hardly remembers when she wasn't familiar with the art of concealing stills in the underbrush and dodging "revenuers." It was as natural for her to pick up the moonshiner's technique as it is for young animals of the wilds to stalk their prey and conceal themselves from enemies. When she was nine years old her family moved from Upshur County, where she was born, to Greenbrier, where she was to grow up in a veritable nest of "white mule" distillers and acquire an uncouth distinction as their "queen."

Caught With Pistol Under Pillow

Even before she was grown she constituted a problem for the revenue officers who rode in the hills, and when the Government replaced revenue squads with enforcement agents she continued to perplex and outwit these worthy officials. She accorded them some little measure of recognition by concealing her stills a little better and then went right on with her operations. Officers tried repeatedly to "get the goods on her," only to meet with failure until an incident occurred a few weeks ago to furnish them a "hot" trail and land Edna Bond and her two partners in prison.

It happened that Judge George W. McClintin and a party of friends were returning from their hunting lodge in Greenbrier County recently when they chanced to catch sight of her near a large rambling and isolated house which stood at no great distance from the lodge. Her presence at the place together with the community's reputation as moonshining district excited their suspicions.

A few days later Federal officers swooped down upon the place in a raid. Edna was found in bed with a .44 caliber revolver under her pillow—the same pistol with which she shot Clyde Ryder in 1921 as a result of a moonshiners' feud. Frank Bond and Trimble were arrested in the vicinity and a few yards from the house the officers came upon one of the largest stills ever captured in the mountains. It bore ample evidence of recent operation.

Trimble, when arraigned in Federal court, pleaded guilty to the moonshining charge and attempted to exonerate the Bonds. He admitted making a "run" only two days before the raid, but denied that Edna or her brother had anything to do with it. Their presence at the place he attempted to explain with the contention that they were planning to rent the house and were simply giving him a home with them. Edna and her brother both corroborated his statements.

At the trial Edna not only denied participation in the operations at the deserted house, of which, officers charged, she had taken possession by "squatter's rights," but she also refused at first to admit she had ever been a moonshiner. As for that title of "queen," she couldn't tell how she came by that. It was ridiculous anyway, she said.

The denial didn't have a pleasing effect upon Judge McClintic, who heard the trial. Her reputation was too well known to cover up with a denial which was weakly supported by witnesses. There were too many questions about previous operations which she and her brother couldn't satisfactorily explain and besides there were the circumstances of that moonshiners' quarrel, in which she figuratively put a notch on the handle of her .44, also to explain. A clever criminal accustomed to explaining such things in the courts might have done it, but Edna Bond, born and reared in the backwoods and accustomed to telling the truth to everybody but revenue officers, to whom she told nothing at all, wasn't equal to the occasion. The facts came out and with them came her sentence.

When She Killed a Man

The murder charge which bobbed up again to threaten her at her trial brought Edna Bond's first entanglement with the law two years ago. According to officers who investigated the case at the time, she and Ryder had been involved in "business" troubles common to the moonshining profession, but to all appearances had patched up their quarrel. Then one day Edna and "Bill" Nester were riding in the back seat of an automobile driven by Ryder when the trouble broke out afresh. One thing led to another until Ryder was shot twice in the back as he sat at the steering wheel. His death left another woman a widow and nine children fatherless.

Edna appeared before a Justice of the Peace the following day and admitted killing Ryder, but insisted that she fired in self-defense. She was locked up in jail and remained there for seven months, but the case, as frequently happens in the mountainous section of West Virginia, was allowed to drag along and never came to trial. Officers declared they found no evidence that Ryder was in a threatening position when shot and they found also that the $3000 he was known to have had on the day of his death was missing when his body was found. In spite of this evidence, however, the Bond girl was released on her self-defense plea.

And she still maintains her innocence with steady gaze and firm lips when asked about the Ryder killing. "I did shoot a man once," she says, "and I spent seven months in jail for it, but I did it in self-defense. Ryder was a bad man and I had 20 witnesses to testify to that. He used to come up to our house drunk and shoot it up just for the fun of it."

As for the pistol found under her pillow when she was arrested recently, she declared after the trial that it indicated no homicidal intentions on her part.

"It wasn't loaded," she explained. "I had taken the cartridges out so a child could play with it. They said, too, that I had taken that house by 'squatter's rights.' I don't know what that is, but I know I didn't take the house at all. I was planning to rent it and have papers to prove it. I didn't know anything about the still that Trimble says he was running on the place and here I have drawn seven years for it. But there's no use worrying. If they teach people in prison as they say they do, I can learn something. I taught myself to read a little, although I only went to school a month in my life. Maybe prison won't be so bad as trying to make a living in the mountains."

YOUNG PHILIPPE DAUDET'S SUICIDE REVEALS POLITICAL SCANDAL THAT STIRS PARIS

experts at an autopsy performed as soon as he entered his formal complaint of "assassination by persons unknown." The verdict was that "Philippe Daudet died from pistol bullet fired with muzzle touching right temple—there is nothing to disprove the hypothesis of suicide." To this Daudet immediately replied: "Nor is there anything in the findings to prove the hypothesis of suicide."

Daudet asks: "How can the police be sure that the chauffeur of the taxicab did not first allow some second person to step out of the taxicab after shooting Philippe? It may have been five minutes later in a different part of Paris that he called a policeman and said: "My passenger has just shot himself."

He asks also: "Did the Anarchists know or recognize their self-declared new disciple to be Philippe Daudet? And if Philippe was still in his morbid state did he know his own identity? If the Anarchists knew of the occurrence of his morbid spells they may have known him to be extraordinarily suggestible and may have decided to make use of him while the spell lasted."

Another Daudet hypothesis is that the Anarchists may simply have talked to Philippe

YOUNG POET'S SUICIDE WHICH BARES FRENCH POLITICAL SCANDAL

about the beauty and adventure of suicide until he obeyed the suggestion, without knowing what use would be made of his act.

Mental Specialist's Story.

The possibilities which arise from the abnormal mental condition of Philippe Daudet deserve special attention. He had been under a psychiatrist's care since he was 11 years old, when his morbid tendencies first developed. A mental specialist consulted by the Post-Dispatch correspondent declared the Daudet mystery is as much a matter for the faculty of medicine as it is for the criminal court.

"Such mentally debilitated children are usually affectionate and gentle in their normal state. They are unusually brilliant in school and can rise to any height provided they are not required to reason. They form absurd conclusions, which they sustain with conviction and talent.

"Here we have also to deal with epilepsy, which generally renders the victim unaware of what he has done in his abnormal state. This introduces the possibility of double personality, which permits a person to profess, with complete sinwith complete sincerity, ideas exactly oposite to those he professes in his normal state."

The specialist added another speculative solution to the mystery in passing. He said young Daudet might have partially recovered from his abnormal spell after leaving the Anarchists and discovered himself on the way to kill his own father. Thereupon, in horror, lest in some later spell he carry out the act, he committed suicide.

Inspired by Anarchistic Story.

The impulse which sent Philippe Daudet to the Anarchists in Paris may have arisen from a striking story about Anarchists in the Humanite of Nov. 21, which he left in a taxicab in Havre.

Daudet had gone to Havre directly from his home and inquired the cost of passage to Canada. He found he had not enough money. The suggestion of what to do next may lie in the newspaper which he singled out for attention by carrying it with him an extra day, until he left it in a taxi which brought him to take the Paris train.

There is a two-column story concerning an Anarchist, placed prominently on the second page of Humanite with the title, "After the Verdict." By coincidence, the young man in the story, who became an Anarchist, is a striking parallel to young Daudet. The idea of adventuring into Anarchy may thereupon have taken possession of Daudet's undecided mind.

The Humanite story is:

"A messenger delivers a package at the home of the public prosecutor, who is just going to bed. A note with the package explains that it contains the personal memoirs of a man upon whom the prosecutor has had death sentence pronounced. The ywere addressed so that the man would get them the night before the man was executed. He read them in his comfortable bed."

The story continues:

"With an effort the prosecutor finally succeeded in recalling which culprit it was. He reconstructed his impressions of a young Anarchist who had previously been imprisoned several times for antimilitarist propaganda, for vagabondage and for assault upon policemen. He was to die next morning because he had thrown a bomb in the path of the President of the Republic.

"The bomb had not exploded, but the prosecutor easily obtained the head of the revoltee from the 12 uneasy bourgeois of the jury by insisting this man must be made an example of or no honest man would be safe.

Moreover, the young Anarchist assumed all responsibility for his act. In fact, it seemed he had done it solely to get before a court where he could proclaim his profession of faith in phrases which he seemed to have learned by rote and badly understood. He was proud of the way his words were being printed in newspapers that had refused his articles. For he was the natural son of an alcoholic literary failure who had refused to give the child his name.

"He was sentenced more on account of his speeches in the court than on account of his act. What diminishes his sacrifice a little, as well as explains it, is that he was wasted by tuberculosis, and he knew he would not live long.

"The injustice of his physical state and of his social position led him naturally to revolt.

"The Magistrate now glanced into the manuscript, expecting to find this remembered personality of the condemned man. It was not the courtroom personality at all. These were evidently his memoirs, written for his own satisfaction, as if at the last moment he wanted to recall all he had felt in life.

"The propagandist of the courtroom seldom appeared, except now and then in a phrase where he seemed to remember the public. His style was, in general, timid and naive. He expressed his faith in the natural goodness of man and in a society more equitably arranged, such as a young man might wish to find in order to support it and lead a gentle life with a beloved companion.

The Prosecutor's Own Son.

"He would have liked to have his health. As a healthy man he could have worked for the good of all. He recalled his sufferings one by one. His origin was responsible for what he was and what he lacked.

"When the public prosecutor finished reading it was late in the night, and he shivered, although his bed was warm. He looked at his watch. It was almost dawn, and the condemned was now being led to the guillotine. The prosecutor remembered with troubled spirit that there was once a natural child whom he himself had disowned and who would now be about the age of the man whose memoirs he had just read. Who knows but this was his own child whom he had sent to the guillotine?"

"He could not sleep.

"Next morning he wrote to the Minister of Justice asking to be retired 'for reasons of health'."

That is the end of the Humanite story. The possibility that this may have led young Daudet to the Anarchists leads to another interpretation of the words in his farewell letter: "I have been an Anarchist for a long while without daring to say it." Perhaps he meant, "without daring to say it to myself."

Also, at Havre, when he was attempting to take passage to Canada, he wrote in a memorandum: "Poor Papa! Poor Mama!" But at Paris, after making the acquaintance of the Anarchists, his farewell letter ignores his father.

The facts, however, are that both relationships are true. If motor cars were simply an unproductive means of diversion the wealthy countries which own them would not remain the wealthiest very long. The greatest tribute to the economic soundness of motor transportation is to be seen in the following registration table of the United States for the past seven years:

| Year. | Number of cars. |
|---|---|
| 1917 | 5,104,321 |
| 1918 | 6,146,617 |
| 1919 | 7,530,105 |
| 1920 | 9,177,129 |
| 1921 | 10,464,005 |
| 1922 | 12 239,114 |
| 1923 | 14,000,000 |

When you stop to consider that seven years ago this country had one automobile to every twenty persons and that the number has grown every year, it becomes obvious that this is one of the sources of our national well-being. This is true for sections as well as for nations. Comparison of those States which have the largest automobile registration and those which rank first in gross income shows a remarkably close correlation throughout the entire 48 States. New York is first in the registration list as well as in the income group. Pennsylvania ranks second and fourth, respectively, Illinois third and fifth, Ohio fourth and third.

Motor transportation adds to national wealth in the same way as any other form of transportation which is on a sound basis. It opens up new land. It saves time. It affords a market for labor and materials.

When one looks over the list of States which have the most automobiles in ratio to population and compares this with the States which have the highest percentage of owned homes, one finds a very close relationship. Eighteen States are found to be in the upper tier of both groups.

Give Greatest Value for Money.

From the standpoint, then, both of the public and of business, the automobile industry stands out as a major contributor to national prosperity. Figures recently compiled by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce show that the purchaser of automobiles, tires and gasoline today is receiving more for his money than in 1913. Using the 1913 dollar as a standard, it now buys 111 cents worth of automobile, 123 cents in tires and 101 cents in gasoline, whereas in most other commodities the 1913 dollar buys only 60 cents worth of goods.

Those close in touch with the automotive industry assert that to fill domestic and foreign demand in the coming year production of approximately 4,000,000 automobiles will be required. Belief that output will reach this high total (approximately the same number as were produced in the current year) is based partly on increasing foreign demand for American cars. Cars sold abroad in the current year amounted to only 8 per cent of total output, but the industry is looking forward to the time when exports will make up fully one-fourth of total production.

Everything considered, the automotive industry is looking forward to another prosperous year. So far as can be seen at this time there is no reason to believe that production and sales will not be fully up to the higr record of 1923.

APPLEBY PLAN OFFICE OPENED IN ST. LOUIS

A St. Louis office has been opened at 1634 Arcade Building by Percy Chamberlain Associates, Inc., sponsors for the Appleby Used Car Plan. The office is in charge of G. H. Ford, who will handle the Southwestern territory, including Southern Illinois, Eastern Kansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana. In the near future the St. Louis office expects, according to Ford, to have half a dozen traveling men, besides 50 to a hundred managers of Appleby Motomarts in the district, all under the direction of this office.

The Appleby Plan of handling used cars is in effect in many sections of the United States. It calls for a central public institution having no connection with new-car dealers, and marketing used cars. When an owner wishes to sell or trade his car he can go to the Appleby Motomart, where a warehouse receipt which is negotiable, is given him. He can use this receipt in a trade or can cash it. Percy E. Chamberlain of Detroit, who is the principal backer of the plan and who is nationally famous, was in St. Louis early in December to address the district meeting of the National Automobile Dealers' Association.

ESSEX SIX TOURING MODEL NOW ON SHOW

The new Esmsex Six touring car has arrived in St. Louis and is now being shown by the Hudson-Frampton Co. at their showrooms, Leonard and Locust boulevard. This new car is priced $850 f. o. b. Detroit. It has low lines similar to those of the new Essex Six coach, which preceded it here.

Both the coach and the new touring car continued to attract crowds to the Hudson--Frampton showroom during the past week.

The Essex is not the sole attraction at the Hudson-Frampton quarters, however. The special model Hudson super-six sedan with balloon tire equipment is drawing crowds ,too. According to Joseph N. Kellerman, sales manager of the company, this special Hudson is selling well, particularly because of its easy riding qualities.

C. E. GEIGER ST. LOUIS OVERLAND OFFICIAL

C. E. Geiger arrived in St. Louis Jan. 1 and assumed the duties of wholesale manager for Willys-Overland, Inc., succeeding D. R. Yantis, who resigned to accept a position in Canada with the Studebaker people.

Geiger has been connected with the Overland Motor Co. of Chicago for several years, the past year as assistant wholesale manager. He is a man of broad experience and pleasing personality and will add materially to the organization of the Willys-Overland, Inc. Geiger is married, but does not expect to move his family to St. Louis until early spring.

ARTHUR E. BARKER OF MAXWELL DIES

Word was received Friday from Detroit by S. B. Ward, president of the Ward Motor Co., Maxwell, Chalmers and Chrysler distributers, of the death of Arthur E. Barker, Maxwell vice president in charge of sales. Barker was taken ill with acute appendicitis on Dec. 27.

According to officers of the Maxwell Motor Corporation, the loss of Barker is a severe blow. He was mainly responsible for the tremendous growth in sales of the Good Maxwell during 1923. Barker was also credited with being responsible to a large extent for the Dodge Bros. dealer organization, he having been formerly connected with that company.

CHAMPION BODY CO. SHOW TWO NEW MODELS

The Champion Body Co., 3147 Locust street, announce two new models for Ford chassis. The Traveler is a beautiful five-passenger coach with removable seats, which can be folded down the same as a Pullman car, making a full, comfortable double bed. Taken out, there is 50 cubic feet of carrying space for salesmen.

The other car is purely commercial, for salesmen. It is a closed two-passenger coupe, with a rear compartment 40x40x40 inches. Several big St. Louis shoe houses have adopted this as standard equipment for their road forces.

ARE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER CHRYSLER SIX

Ward Motor Co. Officials Ride in New Creation in Detroit —Already Securing Local Orders.

Probably the two most enthusiastic St. Louis automobile dealers returned from a visit to Detroit the end of last week talking only one subject, the new Chrysler Six. These two, who went, saw and were shown, happened to be S. B. Ward, president, and Walter L. Prack, secretary, of the Ward Moto Co., distributors for the Maxwell and Chalmers and who will handle, in addition, the new Chrysler.

"I have never before seen such an automobile," said Prack on his return. "We took a ride in the Chrysler in Detroit. In two blocks we were going 74 miles an hour and we wouldn't have believed we were riding over "40" unless we looked at the speedometer, so smoothly and beautifully did the car ride. I have never ridden in a car with such little vibration. It's wonderful.

"The motor, though of small bore, is tremendously powerful," continued Prack. "It's an L head engine and the combustion chambers are offset over valve pockets with unusually large valves. That's the design that has resulted in the car being able to get up such speed. Unusual features of the new car include a double strainer and sterilizer for oil, which results in the oil needing to be changed only every 2000 miles. These are just some of the big features of the new Chrysler."

Prack and Ward have communicated their enthusiasm to others, for already, though the price is not known, the Ward Motor Co. has sold several Chrysler Sixes, deposits being made on the cars for immediate delivery upon arrival, regardless of price. A full line of Chrysler Sixes, including roadster, standard touring car, phaeton, brougham, standard sedan and special sedan will be shown by the Ward Motor Co. early in February.

GARDNER REDUCES OPEN CAR PRICES

"Yes, all Gardner open cars have been drastically reduced in price," says W. H. Yeldell, general sales manager of the Gardner Motor Co., St. Louis. "With expanding production and sales we are able to share with our buyers and dealers the lowest cost of production, while maintaining the same quality, style and distinction we have always offered. The standard touring car and the roadster have been reduced to $895—a flat reductio nof $100, or more than 10 per cent. The Radio Special Sport touring now lists at $1095 and the sport roadster at $1085.

"The sport touring now has a rear trunk as standard equipment, side carrier of spare tire with special cover, Spanish leather upholstery, nickled radiator, lamps, disc wheels, scuff plates on the running board and other features. The sport roadster carries the spare tire on the rear, and because of the commodious deck-storage space, has no rear trunk. In addition to these open cars the Gardner line includes an all-season touring car with permanent top and glass enclosures which lists at $995."

Yeldell was one of the Gardner officials who left St. Louis Saturday to attend the National Automobile Show in New York where the Gardner is exhibited. Others who went with the Gardner party were: Russell E. Gardner Sr., chairman of the board; Russell E. Gardner Jr., president; Fred W. Gardner, vice president; T. F. Fowler, export manager; I. W. Shuester, assistant sales manager, an dE. A. Weber, chief engineer. Headquarters are at the Commodore Hotel, New York City.

PRACK MANAGER OF WARD RETAIL SALES

Walter L. Prack, secretary of the Ward Motor Co., Maxwell Chalmers and Chrysler six distributors, has been appointed retail sales manager of the company by S. B. Ward, president. Prack will take charge of retail sales in addition to his work as secretary. Ward continues to act as general manager of the concern.

Yes!

$100 Lower in price Now $895

A Better Car at a Lower Price

For $895 you can now get a very exceptional car that outperforms any automobile selling under $900. At this low price you can get big car performance with small car convenience and economy.

For $895 you can now get a car that will accelerate from 5 miles to 25 miles an hour in 7.7 seconds and a range of speed from 2 to 60 miles an hour in high with no perceptible vibration.

For $895 you can now get a car that will climb any hill in high that any other car will take. Yes! A car that is comfortable, durable and economical—20 to 25 miles on a gallon of gas.

Repair parts on all Gardner cars ever built have averaged less than $1.00 per month per car. Gardner owners will tell you it is the most satisfactory car they have ever owned.

Taking America Off Its Feet!

Overland Success is the Talk of the Country

Great strides ahead—conspicuous leadership—warm words of praise on the lips of people everywhere—all these things focus on one big, vital fact: Overland motor cars have the right stuff in them. Worth shines out far above price.

The year ended was the greatest of all the fifteen years of Overland history. A great year made by great cars—the greatest Overlands ever built. Greatest in looks, power, comfort—money's worth!

The big record-breaking success of these cars is the direct reflection of the bigness and heartiness of public interest everywhere.

Look at the new Overland Champion, for instance. It brings a quality closed car with features and utilities hitherto unheard of within reach of every purse. America's first all-purpose car—conceded to be the most useful motor car on wheels.

The price of the Champion—$695—is a champion price. And even if the new Overland Champion did not have the many unique features that make it famous, it would still be a remarkable value at its price. It is the only quality closed car seating more than two passengers ever sold under $700.

The Champion and all Overland models have the bigger Overland engine—brute power with extreme economy. And the buoyant riding ease of patented Triplex Springs. And the extra-sturdy Overland rear axle.

Leaders in economy—leaders on the road—leaders in the many satisfactions they bring to owners. See them. Sit in them. Ask for a sample of their performance. Ten minutes looking or ten minutes riding will tell you why these fine cars are multiplying so rapidly on the streets of America.

WILLYS-OVERLAND BREAKS ALL RECORDS

President John N. Willys Predicts That 1924 Will See an Even Greater Year Than 1923.

Announcement by President John N. Willys of the Willys-Overland Co. of the production of more than 200,000 cars on Dec. 15 capped the climax of the most remarkable year that Willys-Overland has had. Willys coupled this announcement with the statement that Willys-Overland expects to break every one of its 1923 records in 1924.

Willys-Overland created the first of its series of unusual announcements in 1923 with the appearance of its new Willys-Knight coupe-sedan at the New York show.

Another important message was sent forth early in spring—the new Overland Red Bird—a novel creation in Mandalay maroon and glistening nickel, set off with khaki-colored top and extra equipment, in a totally new price class.

The announcement of the new Overland Champion, a closed car of unique design, introduced to the public something radically fresh.

Of particular interest to the business man who operates one or a fleet of delivery cars was the Overland announcement of the new Overland Spad, a delivery car chassis, with four standard body types, making possible 16 different models.

Ranked also among Willys-Overland achievements of the past year has been the growth of its dealer organization, which today is practically twice that of 1922.

One more spot of pleasant memory that the past year holds is the production of the millionth Willys-Overland car, an event properly and fittingly celebrated not only by the factory organization at Toledo, but by the entire dealer body.

With this series of achievements now a matter of history Willys-Overland faces the new year with a determination to improve even on this record. The Willys-Overland factory in Toledo expects to beat every month of 1923 during 1924. It is estimated that the production requirements will exceed 300,000 cars.

PACKARD CAREFULLY TESTS ALL MATERIALS

Precautions the Packard Motor Car Co. takes to assure itself that every car it produces conforms exactly to Packard standard are a source of constant amazement to visitors at its plant, according to G. M. Berry of the Berry Motor Car Co., St. Louis Packard distributors.

Packard builds as much of its completed car, it is believed, as any other automobile company. It does this that it may always be sure that the materials which enter into its cars are exactly what its scientists have learned, through years of tests, are the best known.

For example, it pours all its aluminum, cast iron and bronze. It makes all patterns used in casting the dozens of different parts from these materials. And its own laboratory experts check over the materials used every day.

Packard metallurgists, in their exhaustive tests with iron, for instance, according to Berry, have found that certain portions of various chemicals mixed together and properly poured and heat treated will give the longest life to the cylinder block. They have found that the best material for this purpose can be obtained only by using a combination of irons found in several sections of the country. And they know exactly what quantity of each should be fused together to insure the proper hardness and the longest life to the finished product.

It is only by constant analysis, say metallurgists that any manufacturer can be positive that the materials used in each of the hundreds of different parts of every car he turns out comply in every way with the requirements of safety and long life.

REO TAXICABS NOW USE "SIX" ENGINE

Announcement through its distributors, including the Kardell Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, has just been made by the Reo Motor Car Co. that the Reo high-power six-cylinder engine will be used in the Reo Taxicab in the future. The adoption of the six-cylinder engine for the taxicab has been urged by taxicab operators for some time

According to Reo officials this change is being made after months of practical tests of the taxicab equipped with the six-cylinder engine. A group of selected taxicab operators were supplied with T-6 powered cabs with instructions to give them the hardest service to be found in their business. In this way the adaptability of the engine to the taxicab was actually proved.

The operators who had experimental cars in their service kept very close check on costs as well as on mechanical accomplishments and all of them are said to be enthusiastically in favor of the six-cylinder engine for taxicabs.

FRANKLIN CAR MAKES 403 MILES IN DAY

Harry Clark of New Bedford, Mass., recently completed the 403-mile journey from that city to Syracuse, N. Y., in 12 hours elapsed time, in a 1921 Franklin demi-coupe that had already been driven 38,000 miles.

Four stops were made and there were two waits for gasoline, while Clark also found time to grab a meal in his hurried journey.

Not only was the big part of the journey made in darkness, according to the description just received by A. E. Spielberg, president of the Franklin Motor Car Co., Franklin distributers, but the drive from New Bedford to Albany, a distance of 253 miles, was accomplished in a driving rainstorm.

New 1924
5 Passenger Sedan

$1295

F. O. B. Cleveland

For 1924, Cleveland announces [illegible] biggest closed car values ever offered to the public!

Two new sedans are presented at prices heretofore never achieved by any builder of quality sixes: $1295 for the 5 passenger sedan; and $1395 for the luxurious four door model.

That more impressive combinations of beauty, power, and enclosed car comfort have never before been obtainable for so small an expenditure becomes instantly apparent upon investigation—and comparison.

Bodies by Fisher

The bodies represent Fisher's unmistakable mastery in the coach builder's art. Neither soundness in construction nor beauty of proportion have been sacrificed or compromised. Built of panelled steel over substantial hardwood frames, they represent a welcome departure from the makeshift construction that many manufacturers are satisfied to sponsor.

Thirteen painting operations produce a deep, rich, enduring color finish. Carefully selected plush, beautiful and long wearing, is used for upholstering. The seats are deep, soft, loungelike, and restful. Generous interior dimensions and skillful seating arrangement preclude the crowding so frequently experienced in sedans of moderate price. The windows will remain tight and silent through the life of the car. Interior appointments are smartly finished and complete.

Performance Supremacy

Even though they carry the lowest prices ever placed on enclosed cars of similar specifications, Cleveland 1924 sedans are notable for the performance supremacy produced by the new Cleveland "Extra Power" motor.

This famous power plant is acknowledged to be the finest ever used in a motor car. Its extra power in the driving range is responsible for amazing performance brilliance. No light six equals or even compares with the Cleveland's thrilling speed on hills or its alert, smooth, silent response to the accelerator in traffic.

Do not fail to see these dominant closed cars! Combining the sound appeal of a rugged chassis, the attraction of smart, modern lines and the charm of spacious interiors luxuriously finished, they merit the single inspection that will reveal the matchless values they offer!

New Four Door Sedan

More impressive than ever is the new 1924 model at $1395.

OPEN TERRITORY

You Might Buy It for Its Beauty Alone

Of course, the fundamental reason for the selection of any Hupmobile is its remarkably fine, durable service, and its brilliant performance. Even if the worth and the performance of the Hupmobile were only average, however, we sincerely believe that the beauty, the comfort and the outstanding dignity and refinement of the Hupmobile four-passenger coupe would win your favor. Perhaps the highest praise that can be given this car is to say—what is literally true—that the body is in every way worthy of the chassis. It is significant that both are built in Hupmobile's own shops.

NATIONAL AUTO SHOW OPENS IN NEW YORK

More Than a Million Dollars Worth of Motor Cars and Parts Shown in Big Hall.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—On the largest single expanse of floor space in the world, an area of approximately four and a half acres, without an obstructing pillar or post, the twenty-fourth annual National Automobile Show opened at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the 258th Field Artillery Armory on Kingsbridge road at Jerome avenue, the Bronx.

Due to the combination of almost limitless space and a one-floor display, the National Automobile Show of 1924 is beyond question the finest industrial spectacle ever presented anywhere. More than a million dollars' worth of cars and accessories are shown in what at first glance would appear to be a wonderful art gallery, filled with statues and almost surrounded by paintings.

Seventy-four different makes of cars, of which seven are taxicabs in the section devoted to that type of car, are on display. In all there are nearly 500 complete motor cars in the twenty-fourth annual show. In addition there are about 250 exhibitors of accessories and parts. In the value of exhibits it is immeasurably the most important exposition of its kind in the history of the industry.

Many shows of the past have been marked by the introduction of radical innovations in mechanical and body design, in fact, nearly all great changes in the construction and fitting of the motor car have been reserved by manufacturers for this great annual event. Peculiarly enough, the current display, while it marks the introduction to the auto show patrons of two features that are likely to exercise an enormous effect on motor cars in general, cannot be credited with producing a real sensation.

Four wheel brakes and balloon tires are the two mechanical innovations that stand out among the features of the Big Armory. They are new so far as the show is concerned, but both were brought out months ago.

On the cars in the show embodying these two innovations there can be discerned other changes in design, but they are not such as would be quickly detected even by those who are familiar with constructional details. They relate largely to the lightening of parts that are affected by the inclusion of the new brakes or tires. The modern automobile is so much a unit nowadays that a change in one part affects the whole to a greater or less degree. Both the frame and body are certain to react to the employment of these innovations, but that, too, will be a case of gradual development.

The cars designed for 19°4, as disclosed at the Armory, show no material changes from those of a year ago. The changes that may be noted relate to the improvement of certain makes than to any striking improvement over what could be considered the complete car of 12 months back. The fundamental features of body design appear for the present to be established and accepted. Bodies are hung as low as is consistent with safety on poor stretches of highway; the straight line effect is aimed at on all cars and achieved on most of them.

The cars on display are as follows:

American, Anderson, Apperson, Auburn, Barley, Buick, Cadillac, Case, Chalmers, Chandler, Chevrolet, Cleveland, Cole, Columbia, Davis, Dodge, Dort, Du Pont, Durant, Elcar, Elgin, Essex, Flint, Franklin, Gardner, Gray, H. C. S., Haynes, Hudson, Hupp, Jewett, Jordan, Kissel, Lafayette, Lexington, Liberty, Lincoln, Locomobile, McFarlan, Maxwell, Moon, Nash, Marmon, Oakland, Oldsmobile, Overland, Packard, Paige, Peerless, Pierce-Arrow, Premier, R. & V., Reo, Rickenbacker, Roamer, Star, Stearns, Stephens, Studebaker, Stutz, Templar, Velie, Westcott, Wills Sainte Claire, Willys-Knight.

Makes of Taxicabs—Checker, Dodge, Premier, Rauch & Lang, Reo, Roamer, Yellow Cab.

ONE-GEAR OLDSMOBILE SHOWN AT NEW YORK

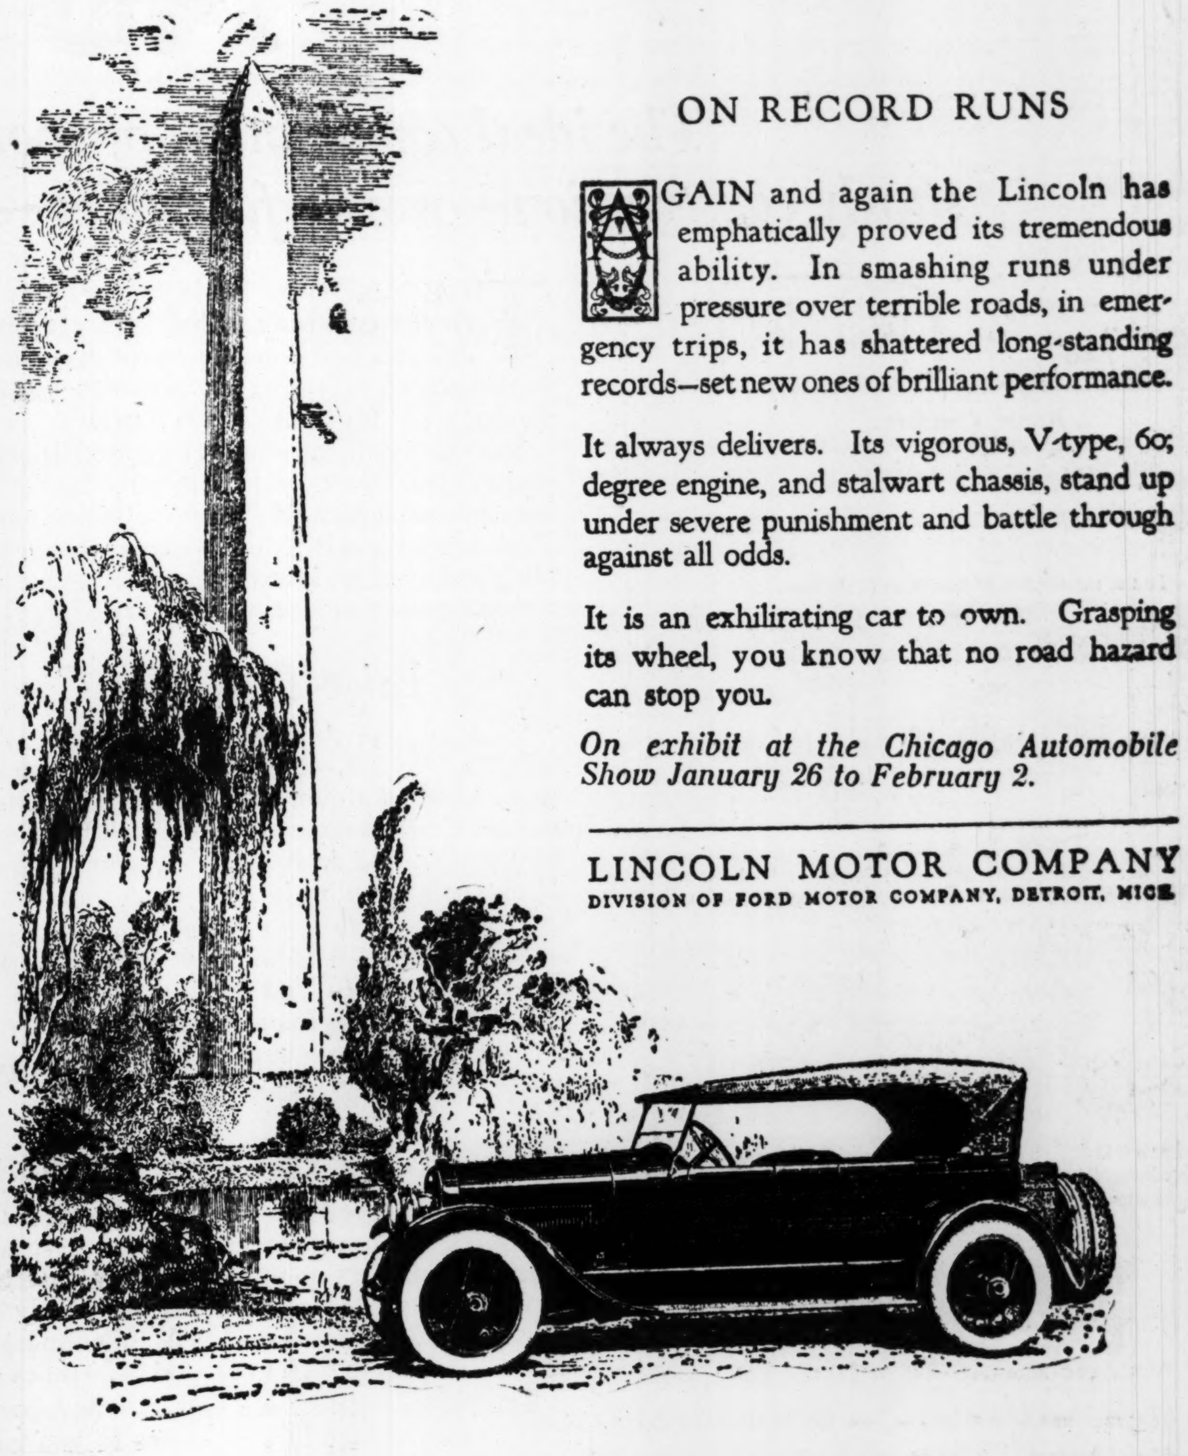
The famous Oldsmobile six, which recently completed the first coast-to-coast trip ever made by any automobile in high gear, is one of the features of the Automobile Show week in New York, starting today. Following the New York show the "one-geared" car will visit several other of the larger cities where shows will be held during the next few months. According to P. H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., St. Louis, Oldsmobile distributors. This city will probably be one of those visited.

Driven by "Cannon-Ball" Baker, famous race driver, the Oldsmobile six left New York on Oct. 8, after all gears except high had been removed from the transmission and the gear box sealed. After 12½ days of driving time, Baker pulled into Los Angeles, 3674 miles from New York, without mishap of any kind and with a record of having pulled every grade on the long grind in high gear.

"Cannon-Ball" Baker, on his return to his home in Indianapolis, was full of enthusiasm over the performance, stamina and all-around quality of the Oldsmobile six. In Baker's own words, "She's the greatest little boat I ever drove."

LINCOLN



ON RECORD RUNS

AGAIN and again the Lincoln has emphatically proved its tremendous ability. In smashing runs under pressure over terrible roads, in emergency trips, it has shattered long-standing records—set new ones of brilliant performance.

It always delivers. Its vigorous, V-type, 60; degree engine, and stalwart chassis, stand up under severe punishment and battle through against all odds.

It is an exhilirating car to own. Grasping its wheel, you know that no road hazard can stop you.

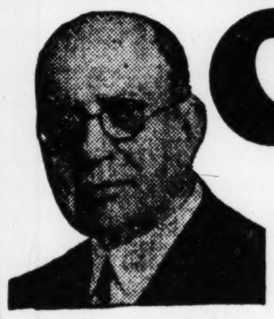
Startling Offers to Sufferers From Catarrh!



DR. W. O. COFFEE
Noted Catarrh and Deafness Specialist

Catarrhal Deafness and Distressing Head Noises

After suffering for a number of years from Catarrh, Catarrhal deafness and head noises, during which time I tried many different treatments and had two surgical operations, all of which failed to give complete relief. I began experimenting on myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed me of my Catarrh, restored my hearing to normal and stopped the distressing head noises. I then gave this treatment to a number of my patients who were similarly afflicted and they too reported remarkably quick relief.

I want every reader of this paper who suffers from Catarrh, Catarrhal deafness, loss of hearing and head noises, caused by Catarrh, to write me at once.

I want to prove entirely at my own risk and expense that this treatment of mine is the best treatment there is for these ailments. Just send me your name and address.

10-Day Proof Treatment Sent to Any Sufferer → FREE

Catarh is Dangerous

While Catarrh in itself may not be considered dangerous, when neglected, it leads to all sorts of complications. Authorities claim that nearly 90 per cent of all deafness is caused primarily by Catarrh of the head. Others state that many cases of indigestion, rheumatism and a number of other constitutional troubles are caused by neglecting Catarrhal conditions of the head, nose and throat.

A Trial Will Amaze You

I am so proud of my achievement and so anxious to help other sufferers that I will gladly send a 10-day proof treatment by prepaid parcel post absolutely free to every one who writes me. I want to prove entirely at my own risk and expense that this treatment will give relief to sufferers from Catarrh, Catarrhal deafness and head noises. The results from my treatment are quick and convincing. You can feel the difference in a few days. A trial costs you absolutely nothing. You are under no obligation whatsoever. Simply fill in your name and address on coupon. Cut it out and mail today for a ten day proof free treatment. This is the best treatment I have ever found in over forty years practice as an "Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Specialist." I want you to try it free.

Brings QUICK RELIEF to Many Sufferers. Why Not You?

Already thousands of sufferers have taken advantage of my liberal offer. My 10 day free treatment has brought many quick relief. Why not give it an opportunity to do the same for you? I don't ask you to send one penny. The 10 day proof treatment is absolutely free. Just send your name and address and state whether you have Catarrh only or also suffer from Catarrhal deafness and noises. You will be under no obligation whatsoever. I think I treat more cases of Catarrh, Catarrhal deafness and head noises than any oculist in the United States and I know this treatment is the best I have ever used so I urge you to accept my free offer and send the coupon today.

Read What These People Say:

J. C. Elmer, Mo. says I am 86 years old. I had suffered with catarrh, partial deafness and head noises for 8 years. I used a short course of Dr. Coffee's treatment and was completely relieved from catarrh deafness and head noises.

Mr. A. G., Princeville, Ill.—70 years old stated he had been afflicted with catarrh of the nose, head, throat and stomach for 35 years, growing deaf and had head noises for about four years. Dr. Coffee's treatment completely relieved him.

Mrs. A. R. of Davenport, Ia., says she suffered with catarrh of the nose and head and sinuses for 40 years, suffered much pain in the nose and frontal head. Doctors said an operation was necessary. Dr. Coffee's treatment gave her complete relief in a short while.

A. W. S. of Rockford, Ill., says he suffered with catarrh for 15 years, had become an invalid. It went to his bronchial tubes and stomach, finally started to make him deaf. Doctors could not give him relief. Dr. Coffee's treatment stopped this disease and gave him complete relief.

M. S. from St. Louis, Mo., states she suffered with catarrh 48 years gradually losing her hearing, suffered with terrible head noises, was so deaf she could not hear any conversation and had not heard a telephone in 17 years. Her catarrh was completely relieved and the hearing restored so she could hear a telephone with each ear.

J. H. McM., Birmingham, Ala. Your 10 days' treatment completely relieved all symptoms of catarrh.

J. S., Columbus, Ohio. Your 10-days' treatment relieved my catarrh, stopped the ringing in my ears.

G. L. Milburn, Okla. I could hardly breathe thru my nose from catarrh. Your 10-days' treatment relieved me.

J. H. B., Henry, Idaho suffered terribly with catarrh, head noises, deafness in left ear. Your treatment completely relieved me.

Mrs. L. K., Bomansdale, Pa. Your free treatment relieved me of catarrh, stopped the awful roaring in my ears and restored my hearing.

To test the comfort of Jewett, sit in the car. Drive it. Ride in it.

Traffic Advantages

Jewett turns around comfortably in a 42-foot street. Parks easily in a 16½-foot space at the curb. Enters or leaves your garage from or into a 14-foot alley.

Sturdiness

Jewett has a 6-inch-deep frame—a wonderful foundation for ruggedness. Paige-Timken axles front and rear. Jewett weighs 2805 lbs.—it is not a "light" six.

Power

Cubic inch piston displacement of cylinders explains power. Jewett cylinders are 3¼ x 5 inches— 249 cubic inches in all. 20% to 40% more power than "light" sixes.

Hill Climbing

More power for weight—that explains Jewett's amazing performance. Like the powerful man lifting the weight, compared with the weaker man trying to handle it.

Get-away

Ever see an ordinary horse struggling to start a load? Then watch the stronger horse walk away with it smartly? Jewett goes from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high!

CLUTCH PEDAL

CLUTCH
STEERING COLUMN
BALL BEARING STEERING SPINDLES

Easy Handling

Jewett steers with little effort—it has ball-bearing steering spindles. Change gears fast or slowly—rarely a "miss" or clash. Clutch requires but the gentlest pressure; acts smoothly without jerking the car or stalling the motor.

THE New Jewett Six is the final type of car for the average motorist. Most people want roomy comfort for their average number of passengers—a size car that lightens the driver's task in traffic—a car of such construction that repair bills are rare—a car whose power gives it satisfying performance—a car that leaves you money in the bank when you buy it—and a six, for sixes do beat fours!

See the first illustration on the left. It shows Jewett's roomy comfort, whatever body type you choose. Few cars—and those of far higher prices—have more body room. The second picture illustrates how ably the New Jewett manipulates in traffic. Turn around in a 42-foot street. Park Jewett in a 16½ foot space at the curb. Jewett easily enters your garage from a 14-foot alley or driveway. Larger cars force you to back in turning around, keep you away from many a choice parking place, and require a larger garage and more driveway.

Paige-Type Fine Car Construction Throughout

Look at Jewett's sturdy construction. It has a 6-inch deep frame, extra cross-braced and weighing 184 lbs.—a superb foundation for a long lived car. Paige-Timken axles front and rear. All-steel universal joints, with sealed-in lubrication good for 15,000 miles! See Jewett's motor. You are amazed when you lift the hood. Expecting the ordinary size motor, squat and low, you see that Jewett's motor nearly fills the hood. Tremendous energy, full 50 horsepower. High-pressure oiling like the Paige and other highest quality cars.

But the New Jewett's performance gives all owners their greatest thrill. Jewett passes most any car on any hill. Like the strong man in the picture, Jewett's powerful motor easily handles the sturdy 2805-lb. Jewett. Try Jewett on a hill, and get the thrill of your life. In getaway, too, Jewett's 50 horsepower motor is like the big horse which trots away with a load that the small horse can drag but slowly. Try it when the officer blows his whistle; you'll marvel! And when chance offers, on a crowded road, you can dash ahead because Jewett does it in a flash.

A Car that Women Drive with Confidence

All women like Jewett Six because "it just seems to drive itself." Due to ball-bearing steering spindles, Jewett steers with finger-touch guidance. Steering stays easy because these steering knuckles do not wear. Test Jewett's clutch pedal with your hand to know its gentleness. Then while driving let it in quickly to prove its smoothness. Gear changing—rarely needed for Jewett will do 2 to 60 miles an hour or more, in high—calls for an effortless movement. Drop from high to second at 30 miles per hour.

The New Jewett Six is designed to be superb mechanically for just such thrilling performance, and to assure long life. It comes to you with roomy bodies of substantial construction but without frills, to make low price possible. Then, too, there are the De Luxe Touring Car, Roadster, and Sedan, for those who want the last word in fashionable color, equipment, upholstery and fittings.

Jewett is unique! No other car even approaches Jewett's combination of roominess, convenience, comfort, sturdiness, power, performance and price. In all the world no car like this! Compare it, as below. Never before was there a car whose maker could show so much more for the money than cars immediately below it in price, and so much of the qualities of higher priced cars.

How Jewett Six Outclasses "Light" Sixes

Jewett is a sturdy six—not a "light" six. A high-powered car built to handle its power safely and delightfully. Compare Jewett with "light" sixes as below.

Weight tells sturdiness. Jewett weighs 2805 lbs. Certain "light" sixes weigh 2300 lbs.—2420 lbs.—2650 lbs.—2545 lbs. To any man of even slight acquaintance with machinery, no further evidence of Jewett's superior sturdiness and long life is needed.

Power is the most expensive thing to build into a car—one of the most important measures of what you get for your money. The word "horsepower" is not a reliable guide. Cubic inches of piston displacement indicate horsepower. Jewett has 249 cubic inches. Those same light sixes have 169—171—207—177—from 20% to 40% less than Jewett!

Power compared to weight governs performance in hill climbing and get-away. Engineers state it as the number of pounds weight to each cubic inch of piston displacement. Thus the fewer the pounds per cubic inch, the more spirited the performance. Jewett, in spite of its husky construction, has but 11¼ lbs. weight per cubic inch. These same "light" sixes respectively have 13.5—13.7—12.8—14.3—not one you see, but will be sluggish compared with Jewett.

How Jewett Six Compares with Costlier Cars

Perhaps you wouldn't think of Jewett as having more power than costlier and larger 5-passenger cars. Here are the prices of 11 well known sixes whose motors are smaller than Jewett's—$1535—$1790—$1185—$1650—$1675—$1795—$1495—$1335—$1485 $1295—$1590. And these cars have from 5 to 11 inches more car to pull around, to maneuver in traffic. They cost up to $700 more, yet they cannot equal Jewett's power.

To get a car the equal of Jewett's power for weight, a man has but two choices—one car which costs $420 more, and another which costs $685 more than Jewett—those choices or $5000 cars.

No other six under 119 inches wheelbase weighs as much as Jewett. Think what that means in Jewett's extra life and road ability and freedom from repair, compared with cars for which you are asked more.

Now consider Jewett's combined mechanical qualities. To buy a car which gives you the equal of Jewett's weight for length—the equal of Jewett's 249 cubic inch motor—and the equal of Jewett's power for weight, all the world offers you but four choices—a Paige—a car at $1750—a car at $5000—a car at $7000. And remember Jewett's price is but $1065!

Brougham, $1325

De Luxe Sedan, $1695

Touring, $1065

De Luxe Touring, $1220

De Luxe Roadster, $1195

are numerous hotel projects for this part of the city. These include two structures designed for sites on Twelfth boulevard. A 12-story annex to Hotel Jefferson is planned for the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets, which has been purchased by the Hotel Realty Co. Construction is to begin as soon as building costs will permit, with financial arrangements completed with the Mercantile Trust Co., which financed the Hotel Jefferson building project and which is financing the $3,000,000 Arlington Hotel under construction at Hot Springs, controlled by the same interests.

Building Program.

The height of several large downtown structures is to be increased, provided the requisite capital is available, supplementary to the building program, with the building project of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in the foreground, as reviewed in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch. The list includes a commodious office structure which is tenanted by concerns which require additional space.

The Western Union Telegraph Co., according to the "street," has had several opportunities to resell at a handsome profit the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, purchased by it less than a year ago for an individual building. The Industrial Savings Trust Co., formerly the Industrial Loan, also, it is said, has rejected several offers for the northeast corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, which it recently purchased with plans for a 10-story office building. This corner, it is said, is sought by a large insurance company, which desires to establish headquarters in St. Louis, and which has plans for an ambitious structure.

Sam Lieberts has purchased the southeast corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets, recently acquired by Hazel Green, a stenographer in Frank S. Rice's real estate office in the International Life Building. The price paid was not disclosed. The lot, 31x135 feet, is the key to the corner. The inside plot, adjoining on Market street, has been acquired by James P. Mannion, professional operator, through Frank Gilbert of the International Life Building.

Sale on Washington Avenue.

Deeds were recorded during the week by which Fred Fischer, president of the Fischer Meat Co. in Union Market, acquired the title to the five-story building and site at 411 Washington avenue. The price paid was $175,000, according to Ben Altheimer & Bro. Realty Co., which negotiated the transaction.

NEW $40,000 BUILDING TO HOUSE BRANCH POSTOFFICE

The Natural Bridge Bank Building Co. will erect a two-story postoffice, store and office building on Newstead avenue, south of Natural Bridge avenue, adjoining the Natural Bridge Bank.

Part of the new building will be occupied by a branch postoffice under a 10-year lease. There will be an additional storeroom, and the second floor will comprise offices, to be arranged to suit tenants.

The entire structure will be of the most modern type throughout and will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. Work is to begin immediately.

MOVIE THEATER FOR GRAND AND MORGAN

Structure to Cost $1,000,000 Will Have Space for Ten Shops.

Plans have been completed for a motion picture theater building at the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Morgan street, to cost $1,000,000. The plans call for a four-story structure of artistic design, devoted exclusively to the theater, with the exception of space reserved on the ground floor for 10 shops, five of which will be on Grand boulevard and five on Morgan street.

The theater will be ventilated with washed and refrigerated air and the stage constructed and equipped with all the paraphernalia to take care of the most elaborate stage theatrical performances. It will be known as the St. Louis Theater. Tha architect is Preston J. Bradshaw. The site has a frontage of 149 feet on Grand boulevard and 169 feet on Morgan.

William Goldman, who was formerly manager of the Missouri Theater, and who will operate the theater when it is completed bought the site from Simon Van Raalte, who will participate in the financing of the project. Goldman it is understood, has had several opportunities to resell the site at a handsome profit. The site for the theater was acquired through the Mathews Realty Co.

REALTY FIRM HEAVY ST. LOUIS TAXPAYER

O. E. and R. G. Scott and Clients Pay 1.25 Per Cent of City's Levy.

The city of St. Louis derived about 1.25 per cent of its revenue for 1923 from the real estate firm of Oreon E. & R. Scott and the firm's clients, according to figures given out yesterday by the firm.

The firm last year paid more than $300,000 to the City Collector to settle tax bills for itself and its several hundred clients. The city's entire tax levy for 1923, on an assessed valuation of $1,003,179,000 was $24,372,713.

The taxation rate for the current year is $2.43 the $100 valuation.

West End apartment properties are among the large properties on which the taxes were handled by the Scott firm. These include the Pettingill, East Harlan Court, West Harlan Court, Sheridan, Marne, Grand-Olive, Valentino, Ambassador, Yorkshire, Tudor Dwellings, Doris, Ardmore, Briggs, Forest Ridge, Belle Place, Brentmoor, Portland, Kingsbury Court, Washington Court, and Warwick Court apartments. The Victoria building, Eighth and Locust streets also is handled by this firm.

FOUR SALES REPORTED BY M. A. RUST AND SON

Dixon and wife, who were represented by the Bellis Real Estate Co., to Clementine Windey.

Oyster Dinner Ends Pest Hunt.

Twelve gallons of oysters were consumed yesterday at Edwardsville by the winners and losers of the Ft. Russell Township annual pest hunt. Sides were chosen and so many points allowed for pests, ranging from English sparrows to red foxes, and including mice, rats, crows, hawks, etc. The side score was 1983 points to 1082, and the best individual score was achieved by John Krouse with 400.

ST. CLAIR ROAD WORK HALTED

Illinois Supreme Court Again Has Held Maintenance Tax Illegal.

Maintenance work on all St. Clair County highways, which come under the head of State aid roads, has been halted as a result of the decision of the Illinois Supreme Court against the county in the matter of tax collection for road maintenance of highways of this kind. A year ago the court held maintenance tax illegal in St. Clair County, and the Legislature, to remedy matters, last June passed an act validating the tax.

The Supreme Court a second time decided against the tax by holding that the validating act is not constitutional. As a result, the 1924 road-building plans of St. Clair County will be interfered with by the court's decision. County Highway Engineer Thomas of Belleville has issued orders to the 60 highway patrolmen to remove all machinery off the road, and maintenance work on 200 miles of highway in St. Clair County has stopped.

OWNS BOOTS 50 YEARS OLD

Millstadt (Ill.) Man Made Them When a Boy.

John Veit of Millstadt, near Belleville, is the owner of a pair of handmade leather boots half a century old, which he still wears. He made the boots in 1874 when he was 14 years old, and served as an apprentice to a cobbler, the late John Hahn of Millstadt. Before becoming a full-fledged cobbler Veit was compelled to give an exhibition at making a pair of boots and the product he still wears was the result. Despite the fact that the boots are 50 years old, they are in good condition.

Daughters Contest Woman's Will.

Alleging that undue influence and improper restraint were used on Mrs. Eleanora Reinhardt of Belleville when she made her will, Mrs. Anna Raban, Mrs. Ella Tetzlaff and Mrs. Alwina Mooney, daughters, have filed suit at Belleville to set aside the will. The suit is directed against Philip Reinhardt and other children of the testatrix. Under the will the first two complainants were left $190 each, and Augusta Raban, a daughter of the other complainant, $50. The residue went to the defendants in the suit. Mrs. Reinhardt died Feb. 24, 1923, and the will was made Nov. 22, 1922.

$10,000 Suit Over Fatal Collision.

A praecipe was filed in East St. Louis City Court yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Chrisman of Washington Park, an East St. Louis suburb, asking for $10,000 damages against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad for the death of her husband, Robert Chrisman. Chrisman, who was the proprietor of a Washington Park restaurant, was killed last fall when a truck he was driving was struck by an L. & N. train at the Eighteenth street crossing in East St. Louis. The crossing watchman said that Chrisman failed to heed his warning.

Sues for $65,000 Damages.

Suit for $65,000 damages was filed yesterday in East St. Louis City Court against the Fellner-Crow Dry Goods Co. by Mrs. Laura Hoefle, who alleges she was permanently injured Oct. 27 last, by a wire basket which fell on her while she was in the company's store. Mrs. Hoefle alleges that she has lost permanently her hearing in her right ear, has suffered partial loss of the use of her right arm, and her nervous system has been shattered. She charges that the basket was poorly constructed, in bad repair and carelessly operated.

E. ST. LOUIS APPROPRIATIONS

Ordinance for Next Year Laid Over for Consideration.

An ordinance containing appropriation for city expenses for this year, presented to the East St. Louis City Council yesterday morning at a special meeting, was laid over for one week's consideration. The total amount of the appropriation is $537,950, practically the same amount as was appropriated last year.

The sum of $145,000 is appropriated for the fire department and also for the police department. The next largest single item is one of $50,000 for city officials' fees and salaries.

Sues Coal Mine for Accounting.

William Davis of Belleville has filed suit for an accounting against John Henderson and the Liberty Coal and Mining Co. of Liberty Station. He states that Henderson sold the output of the Liberty mine through the West Virginia Coal Co. in St. Louis and that the report on the sales showed an operating loss for the Liberty mine aggregating $50,000. Davis also charges that Henderson, principal owner of the Liberty mine, had persons placed on the payroll and that the money paid these men went to him and other stockholders. It is also alleged that Henderson took machinery out of the Liberty mine and placed it in other mines in which he is interested. Davis claims over $15,000 due him from the Liberty mine, of which he holds one-eighth share.

$903 Fines in Belleville.

Fines and costs aggregating $903.45 were collected in the Belleville County Court yesterday when five pleas of guilty were entered before Judge Green. Peter Schwartz of Belleville was fined $337.50 on a charge of keeping a gaming house. Deward Bozeman and William McMurty were each fined $96.75 on charges of gaming, and John O'Connell was fined $241.10 in one case and $131.35 in another of keeping and operating slot machines. The men were all arrested in raids made by Sheriff Schnipper of Belleville.

Says Wife Made Him Sleep in Attic.

Fred Kropp, 65 years old, of Millstadt, formerly assessor of Millstadt Township, yesterday filed suit in the Belleville Circuit Court to divorce Mrs. Mina Kropp, 52, alleging that she left him six months after their wedding day, which was March 28, 1921. He also charges that she made him sleep in the attic during the six months, that she pinched him and that she wanted him to let her take care of the pocketbook. He states that she left him because she "couldn't be boss."

Test Drill in Coal Field.

The Edward Gaertner coal syndicate, a Pittsburg concern, announced yesterday through Gaertner, its president that a "deep hole" will be drilled at once in the field of several thousand acres of coal rights it has just secured north of Edwardsville. A former test hole went to a depth of 2175 feet, and resulted in a considerable showing of natural gas. The coming test will be made with a view to keeping a definite "log" of all strata for geological data.

$45,000 Asked for in Suits.

Two suits aggregating $45,000 were filed in the Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday against the Aluminum Ore Co. of East St. Louis. Mrs. Ellen Troy asks for $25,000 and B. A. and Clara J. Mueller sue for $20,000. They allege that the plant of the company near which they reside gives off dust, dirt, chemicals and obnoxious matter which is detrimental to the health of the members of their families.

Oreon E. & R. G. Scott.

The above fac-simile check for $300,247.76 represents the 1923 tax payments made by us for ourselves and our clients and is more than one-eighth (1-80) of all the taxes paid in 1923 by all of St. Louis taxpayers on all of the taxable wealth of the entire city of St. Louis, from Carondelet to the Chain of Rocks and from the Mississippi River to the Western confines of the city, including all real estate and personal property, banks, trust companies, office buildings, street railways, telephone and telegraph lines, railroads, bridges, and all other public service corporations, etc., and exceeds by more than $100,000.00 our phenomenal tax payment of last year. This clearly and unquestionably indicates the magnitude of our rapidly growing business and the proportion of taxes which we and our clients pay in support of the city and of all its institutions.

FLORIDA

We have secured the agency for the property of the celebrated Indian River Farms Company, at Vero, Florida, including acreage tracts, truck farms, small tracts, orange and grape fruit groves, both partially and fully developed, city lots and business locations. Vero is the most wonderful spot, today, in Florida. It has everything that Miami or Palm Beach had to begin with; high location, Indian River frontage, ocean frontage and swell bathing beaches. It is on the East Coast, at the door of the semi-tropical section; has the perpetual East Trade Winds, which are warmed in winter and kept cool and fresh in the summer by passing over the Gulf Stream which passes in front of Vero; no cold in winter nor excessive heat in summer—an almost uniform temperature throughout the year. Vero is surrounded by 60,000 acres of black soil, 20 feet deep, perfectly drained, has good roads throughout, artesian water and perfect living conditions. The City of Vero and the surrounding country are growing and developing by leaps and bounds. Everybody in every line, fruit growing, truck farming, building, business of all kinds, are making money. Robert Young, formerly of Alton, got $12,000 cash money for 10 acres of grape fruit crop—on the trees. The nearest approach to the Garden of Eden that we know of is

California

SMALL farms in winterless California. You can work a small farm with less capital investment; and in California you can work outdoors all the year. The State Land Board of California is offering choice 20-acre farms at Ballico, Mercer County, small down payment, 38 years time on balance. Ample water for irrigation; a small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. Equally good opportunities in other sections of the San Joaquin Valley, as well as Southern California, for the man of moderate means who wishes to get a home of his own. California is the richest State per capita in United States of America. Most of this wealth comes from the soil. No winter handicaps. Illustrated folders descriptive of California mailed on request. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Ry., 946 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill. (c99)

CLOSE TO LOS ANGELES

Units of 5 acres or more of irrigated orange groves and vineyards offered at lowest prices on easiest terms over a period of years, on famous Fontana Estate; largest fruit, poultry and livestock farm in world. ## ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

JINKS.—The years that are divisible by four are leap years; 1924 will be a leap year, as will 1932, 1936, 1940, 1944, 1948, 1952, etc.

REG.—See answers to "D. of M." in reference to the English race horse.

D. OF M.—Papyrus, the English race horse, ran only one race in the United States, that was the race with Zev at Belmont Park, N. Y., in which Zev was the winner.

THANKFUL L. — Flirtation is the act or process of pretending an affection that is not felt; insincere love-making; coquetry; as a seaside flirtation.

HELEN N.—There are premiums on the $2.50 gold pieces, but as you do not specify the date we are unable to determine just what the premium would be. Write again, giving the date of the coin.

INTERESTED.—The word "quire" is a noun and can be used in the same sense as "choir." It will be perfectly correct for you to use "quire" referring to the church choir, since it would be preferable to you, although the form is largely obsolete.

CARD SHARK.—In the game of five hundred the "no trump" bid is the hand that is played without trumps; the joker is the largest trump when there is a trump, but the holder of the joker cannot trump with it while he is able to follow suit. If the holder of the joker leads it, he has the privilege of naming the suit that shall be played to it, regardless of his previous play.

ANXIOUS.—A good floor wax is made by melting a scant half pound of beeswax set in a pan of hot water. Add gradually, stirring well, a quart of turpentine, and when mixed, a half cup of ammonia. Cover closely the saucepan containing it and set outer vessel of hot water at the back of the stove to heat it for 10 minutes. Apply warm with a piece of flannel and polish with a rough cloth.

J. S.—The Republic of Germany has an area of 185,889 square miles, divided into these states: Prussia, 113,852; Bavaria (with Coburg), 29,501; Wurttemberg, 7629; Baden, 5817; Saxony, 5789; Mecklenburg-Schwerin, 5068; Thuringia, 4546; Hesse, 2966; Oldenburg, 2482; Brunswick, 1418; Mecklenburg-Strlitz, 1131; Anhalt, 888; Lippe, 469; Waldeck, 433; Schaumburg-Lippe, 131; Hamburg, 160; Lubeck, 115; Bremen, 99. President Friedrich Ebert was born Feb. 4, 1871, and was elected Feb. 11, 1919. The United States has an area of 3,026,789 square miles.

C. S. M.—In the United States the principal observance of Mardi Gras is that which has been carried out in New Orleans with great pomp and splendor since 1857. On this day the whole city is turned over to the rule of "King Rex," who passes through the streets escorted by his bodyguard, the mystic krewe of Comus' and various military and visiting organizations. In the evening occurs the great pageant, in which are displayed elaborate tableau, placed on moving forms and brilliantly illuminated. These represent noted scenes of history, poetry and fiction, and are constructed at great expense and with artistic elegance. All the arrangements are under the control of societies composed of the best-known professional and business men of the city.

ARCHIE.—In playing the game of auction pitch, the highest bidder (or eldest hand, if he has refused to sell) leads first, and indicates trump suit by his first lead. Should he, by error, lead a suit other than that which he intended to be trump, suit led becomes trump, regardless of his intention. Each player in turn must play a trump on first lead if possible, and highest trump played wins. Winner of first trick leads to second, etc., until hands are played out, when cards are bunched and new deal ensues. After the first trick, player may lead any suit. On plain suit leads, player having card of suit led must follow suit or trump. Having no card of suit led, he may trump, or discard a card of another suit. Highest card played of suit led wins the trick, unless trumped, when highest trump played wins.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

F. D. L.—Yes, you will still have to pay for it, even though it has been burned.

OBLIGE.—If you were arrested without cause you can sue for damages. Consult a lawyer.

WOODS.—He can garnish your wages in Missouri if you still owe him something, but not if you have paid him in full.

ASLEEP.—The children by the first wife are entitled to share in the cash left by their father, since he made no will.

A READER OF THE P.-D.—The consul may not have given her a visa for any one of a number of reasons; you might write to the consul regarding the visa.

JUDGMENT.—We suggest that you consult some lawyer in whom you have confidence, and let him investigate the matter, and then follow his advice.

AT LOSS.—You might inquire of the Finance Commissioner's office, 602 United Home Bldg., 211 North Seventh street, for the information regarding the certificate.

GUS.—The railroads are not charging war tax on their tickets now. Their rates are subject to approval or disapproval by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

LAWRENCE. — If the doctor treated you improperly or negligently, you can sue for damages, provided that your claim has not been barred by lapse of time. Consult a lawyer.

A READER. — Whether or not you could be kept out of the theater would depend upon the circumstances. You might be able to sue the theater for damages, if you were put out without good cause. Consult a lawyer.

A WIDOW.—"Posting the Title" means bringing the certificate of title down to date, to show that there is a deed of trust to you on record. You should have the certificate of title by this time. It is important to have the title.

P.-D. READER.—If the doctor's bill is a reasonable bill, or if you agreed to pay it, you will have to pay the other half of it, even though the patient died. You will have to arrange with the doctor regarding the amount of the installment payments.

THANK YOU. — The bureau named is a private organization. We suggest that you enquire of them regarding their methods and facilities. Prosecutions for fraud are in the jurisdiction of the public authorities. In St. Louis the Circuit Attorney's office handles them.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

W. A. S.—Absolute (pure) alcohol resists freezing at 166 degrees below zero. It can be frozen.

SAMUEL.—If a fistula exists the remedy is a surgical operation. Local applications are of no benefit.

KIRKWOOD.—Some nauseas in pregnancies are serious. We advise that your wife should be under a physician's care.

HOPE.—Varicocele has no connection with dropsy but swelling of the limbs is usually the first swelling noticed. When present its cause should be sought for.

J. P. G.—The condition is not due to the antitoxin but is an after effect of the disease. You should have your nose and ears examined.

NURSE.—Most hospitals pay the pupil nurse. The city hospital pays perhaps better than any other. A nurse applicant must be 18 years of age, in good health, of good moral character and high school graduate.

J. A. K.—No application will remove or change the appearance of a scar. By surgery it may be possible to remove scar tissue with a very much less objectionable scar.

GERTRUDE.—Shampoo the hair as often as necessary. Use equal party of green soap and alcohol. Apply the following once or twice a day: Sulphuris praceipat. 1½ drams; acidi salicylici, 1 scruple; olei limonis q. s., vaseline, 1 ounce. Apply to the scalp in parts made in the hair. We know nothing of permanent waves.

NELLIE.—Symptoms of indigestion, pain, nausea, vomiting (blood at times) hemorrhage from the bowels. A patient so afflicted may have an appetite but food causes distress. The so-called lump in the throat is likely caused by indigestion. Ulcers of stomach or bowels is treated medically and by operation.

In loving memory of Mrs. Annie McNulty (nee McDermott), who departed this life Jan. 5, 1921:
Days of sadness oft come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow,
Love shall always keep you near me,
Though you left three years ago
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade,
A loving heart will always linger
'Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, JAMES F. McNULTY.

In memory of our dear husband, father, and grandfather, Mathias Hoven, who departed this life Jan. 8, 1922:
Sad to our hearts, but sweet the memories
As we think of you each day.
Through life you lived and taught us
To abide by God's great will.
This solemn thought, dear Father,
Doth our hearts with courage fill,
Peace is thine, most precious loved one,
Ever faithful, kind and true.
Love shall always keep you near us
Till in God we shall find repose.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be.
As long as life and memory lasts
I shall remember thee.
If I had seen you at the last
And held your dying hand,
And heard the last sighs from your heart
I would not feel so bad.
I did not know the pains you had,
I did not see you die.
I only know you went away
And never said good-by.
Just a few days that you left me,
And I miss you more and more,
And my heart is filled with sadness,
For you I'll see no more.
Sadly missed by your beloved brother,
JOSEPH E. EDMOND.

The Unique Story of Mary Jane,

A Brave Message From the Land of Counterpane

To the Editor of The Literary Review:

Dear Literary Review: Indeed, you are much too valuable to me for me to consider missing even one issue of you. You are dispatches from the world that I most loved in those days when there was still choice of words, and now you are the only world left to this sojourner in the Land of Counterpane.

If the dark were not muffling the stars tonight, my story might be read, writ in the clouds. I am Andromeda, chained to the rock, but no gallant Perseus will be able to take me from the swift approach of Cetus. The gods have given me a lithe young body and eyes set on the far horizon and feet eager to stray on the paths of all the earth—and the heart of a fat, wheezy, dropsical old lady with one foot in the grave and the other nine-tenths of the way over. But Pegasus is left to me, and astride him I may poke my nose into all the corners of the world and have a finger in the lives of all people and all time—and I may even look ahead with the wisdom of the ancients into that far distant country where I shall soon be going.

You see, my valiant friend, I am to die, perhaps in a month, perhaps in a year. My subscription is for five months, partly because it seems hardly likely now I shall be reading it then without a miraculous intervention and partly because mortal illness is expensive business. But until the very threshold looms ahead I must have you for my guide to tell me what is most worth while in the only realm—that of books—in which I may live out these weeks. It's of fearful import—this business of choosing one's equipment of courage and spiritual resource on the journey. It must be selected wisely and equitably and discriminatingly—neither too much bread nor too much wine nor too much meat. You have helped these last months to give me a noble burden; pray continue to direct my wavering will!

It is in such moments of solemnity that one may be truthful. I had hoped to make books for others. Now I am living the last few chapters of my own book. If perchance it be of interest or service to others to read therein, I want only that they may learn what I did from an agony of frustrated dreams and aspirations—that on this last Adventure one can take only things of the mind, and a lifetime is all too short to find what is best, worth while, even with the necessities well charted! I thank you that you found me, Literary Review!

MARY JANE DANIELS.

Woodstock, Ill.

First clew to this unpublished poet who doesn't care to rush into print was supplied by her letter written to a New York book-review periodical when she lay ill and expected early death—Message from "a very brave spirit" attracted international attention and brought responses of sympathy and cheer from noted authors and others—Here follows a study of Miss Mary Jane Daniels of Woodstock, Ill., a young woman of rare spiritual grace and personal charm, who through suffering has learned "how to know and love beauty, and holiness, and God" :: ::

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

GENTLE READER—and unless you be gentle this piece of writing and printing is not for you at all—before you proceed further from this point turn to the communication reproduced from the Literary Review. Read that remarkable letter and begin to get acquainted with Mary Jane Daniels. Read it carefully, also prayerfully if you feel that way; read it at least twice, though that advice hardly seems necessary, for if you really make the grade indicated in the first sentence above written you are quite likely to peruse that most soulful missive several times over, until you learn it by heart, also by soul.

Now, if you have made preliminary acquaintance with our brave Andromeda of Illinois, you must wish to learn more about her. That being assumed as a proposition self-evident, you may return to this part of the page and read right along. But never dare to read what follows here unless you shall have qualified yourself for further revelation in the spiritual realm of Mary Jane Daniels!

"A very brave spirit," wrote Mr. Christopher Morley on the flyleaf of one of his books which he sent to Miss Daniels after he had read—and no doubt reread—that message from her. The Morley appraisal was accurate. This is the direct testimony of one who, on a recent Sunday afternoon in Chicago, had the most happy privilege of eight immortal hours' close-up communication with the very brave spirit of this "sojourner in the Land of Counterpane."

But—and if you have chansons of joy prepare to shout them now—this communication, or communion, was in a pleasant country far from the Land of Counterpane. That land used to lie in a sunny chamber in a comfortable cottage home at Woodstock, northwest of Chicago. In years still earlier, and for two years at one stretch, it lay in another sunny chamber in the Presbyterian Hospital at Chicago. In those years, and in years before and after, at home with her devoted mother, our wistful Andromeda's Land of Counterpane was very near indeed to the Land of Greensward; so near, in truth, that time and again the white was on the very edge of taking on the hue of the green.

The letter "From a Reader" was printed Nov. 10 in the New York literary weekly. It was not discovered by the present writer until about a month later; and even then he neglected to make note of the date of publication. After clipping it and carrying it in his pocket for several days, to reread when the spirit moved, he went up to Woodstock, unannounced. The local city directory revealed the names of Mrs. Margaret Daniels and Miss Mary Jane Daniels, with one street address. This writer, who begs leave to use the handy perpendicular pronoun from now on, hesitated about calling at the house or calling it up by telephone.

As you may agree, I was more than a bit worried. Many things may happen in a number of days. The one thing which, above all others, one hopes has not happened, may have taken place. "The swift approach of Cetus"—he may have arrived! But even though his approach be stayed for the nonce, Andromeda may be in such pain on the rock that she must not be subjected to the inquisition of a visitor from the dull world of mortals. I walked past the Daniels home, a two-story frame cottage on a quiet street; a wide veranda in front; the weatherboarding painted a mild maroon; a fit place for a poet to loaf and invite her soul—and I was quite sure that Andromeda was a poet, since she wrote prose that read like poetry.

Then I returned to the hotel and entered the reception room of a physician whose sign made appeal next door. I should ask the doctor if he happened to know of an invalid lady named Daniels. Woodstock is a place of only about 5000 people, so any local medical man must know about her. The girl in the outer chamber the doctor was busy, could see me presently.

"Do you wish to see professionally?" she inquired.

"Well—yes," I replied, and utterly without Waiting for doctors is a highly agreeable when one is in perfect health. Two three other patients were in advan Fearing I might develop some ima inary malady myself, I disappeared Walking around the courthouse squa earlier, I had discovered the public brary. Now, if Mary Jane Daniels be not known the public library, then surely she is not known where. Brilliant inspiration, that. So I dropp in and asked the librarian if she knew a Miss iels who——

"Mary? Why, yes, indeed!"

"Is—is she very ill?"

"Why, no, not now. She went to a dance week, and for the past three weeks she has helping me here in the library, afternoons. don't think you will find her at home. She Chicago last night to spend the week-end."

Yes, I withstood the shock. It was a joy quite of course. Approach of Cetus stayed, arrived first, chains rent; Andromeda released the rock. Even a hard-working journalist moments of "agreeable disappointment," and was one of them. I was most agreeably ed in finding that the object of my quest had that she was able to fly, that her wings of had waxed measurably strong again. "A lithe body"—Miss Daniels was only 25, the librarian fided—"eyes set on the far horizon, feet stray on the paths of all the earth."

"But she was very ill indeed, for a long time," said the librarian.

The obvious next thing was to call up Mrs. iels. It was Saturday, and her daughter was ed home from Chicago on any incoming train. had many friends in the big city, and for mother did not know where to reach her by phone. In the evening I called on Mrs. Daniels sat waiting for Andromeda to return. Miss Newman, a friend of Miss Daniels, was present. teaches drawing in the Woodstock High School, she is one of many who believe that Mary Jane iels is a rare human spirit. In fact, Miss knows it, for she knows Mary Jane.

"Yes, she writes poetry," said Miss Newman, she is rather reticent about it. She does not in us, as to that, and we get to see but little of she writes."

A young woman who writes poetry and yet the fact—and the poetry—to herself! It is usual that is news, and here indeed was news. student of poetry must scent the trail to an esting discovery when provided with such a

"I don't know whether I ought to do it," Newman, "but I'll show you her poetry book."

The trail was hot. Miss Newman lifted bookcase a tall tome bound in black limp The book was about two inches thick. ous pages were of the loose-leaf variety.

Jane, a Literary Discovery in Illinois

poems could be subtracted, approved poems added. When I opened the volume I felt slightly felonious, assuming that I was to browse in pleasant pastures of poesy by breaking through the fence when the creator and owner was absent. Miss Daniels, however, was merely the owner. The pieces in her poetry book had been gathered by her from the four corners of the Olympian gardens, each duly signed with the author's name, in typescript.

Andromeda had made for herself a stupendous private anthology of the poems approved by her keenly critical sense of poetic values. I had but a brief time to inspect the collection; but if all the rest of Andromeda's poetry book is of similar sort to the specimens casually observed, I am certain that some publisher might put forth the contents of that loose-leaf treasury as an anthology easily superior to many collections now on the market.

There was a telephone call. Miss Daniels told her mother she was going to stay over in Chicago until Sunday evening, at the home of Dr. Leo Hardt, one of the physicians she had known at the Presbyterian Hospital. My presence on earth was made known to her, I talked to her across 50 miles of space, and she said she would be glad to see me in Chicago.

But before departing from Woodstock let us learn more about Mary Jane—Mrs. Daniels uses both of those beautiful names when speaking of her daughter. Miss Daniels is a native of the town, where her father was manager, for many years, and until his death, of a large pharmacy. Mrs. Daniels is of English birth, having spent her childhood in North Devonshire. If you have read Kingsley's "Westward Ho!" you will recall the Chichesters. Well, Mrs. Daniels is of the Chichester family. The novelist used the real family name. It is a fine old family.

"Mary Jane," said her mother, "has lived with books all her life. She was graduated from high school at the head of her class; and so was her brother, who is three years older and is a practicing physician now, out in Montana. Mary Jane won a scholarship in the University of Chicago, and so did her brother. She entered the university and spent more than two years there, until her health failed and she had to go to the hospital."

There were two major surgical operations in the hope of counteracting an ailment that weakened the patient's heart. The second operation was not completed because the surgeons became aware that death would ensue within a few minutes if they continued. To sum up, without going into details of her case, Miss Daniels has been an invalid for about eight years—a third of her lifetime to date. Not all of these years have been lived in the Land of Counterpane, but quite enough of them to make one feel that Andromeda has had considerably more than her share of pain. But this must not cause you to pity Mary Jane Daniels. She will not like you at all if you pity her; she will be inclined to pity you, on the other hand, because you are not able spiritually to understand. You see, our valiant young friend Mary Jane is made of a more delicate and yet more enduring fiber than goes into the raw material of those who mewl around pitying themselves and whining against fate.

In 1886 the State of Illinois erected on the lake front in Chicago an equestrian statue in honor of Major-General John A. Logan. When I was waiting for high noon of that recent Sunday, the hour named by the rescued Andromeda for her arrival in the waiting room at the Auditorium Hotel, I strolled over to the Logan memorial and walked around it, reading the names of the battles in which the General fought. There he sits astride his charger, bareheaded, holding aloft in his right hand Columbia's furled flag in bronze; and I indulged in a few serious, and perhaps impertinent, reflections. I just wondered if John A. Logan, or any other of the military heroes whom states embalm in bronze, ever fought a battle requiring a tithe of the heroism which this Illinois girl, small and slender and divinely fragile, must have employed in her many onsets against physical dissolution; apparently forlorn-hope struggles, many of them, in the eight years past. Without further suggestion, I leave that thought with you.

I was to identify Miss Daniels by her hat, which was "gray, lined with blue." All hats look alike to me; and, anyhow, I am color blind as to blue and green, and the upper part of this girl's hat I should have described as something other than gray. But no such mark of identification was required. I had formed already a living picture of Mary Jane Daniels; and if there had been half a hundred young women present I should have picked her out readily. You see, I had read Mary Jane's letter until I could have declaimed it to the Northern constellations, and I had learned certain things at Woodstock about her personality. For one thing, I had had a peek into that big poetry book. So I was looking for a petite young person of somewhat spirituelle aspect.

Well, that is the kind of young person I encountered. Somehow it seemed to me that this girl must have blue eyes, delicately blue, like new young violets in fresh sunshine, just after an April rainstorm; and so I found her eyes, happily not being color blind where blue eyes are concerned. Only cats have green eyes, anyhow, and there is absolutely nothing cattish about Andromeda. Quite to the contrary, she is just about the most candid and open-minded young woman this adventurer has discovered. No purr, you are to understand; and no hidden claws.

I am not idealizing this girl when I say that she is beautiful. There are different standards of beauty. But there is one standard not to be deemed second to any other: it is that whereby the beauty of the spirit is communicated to the flesh, and by that standard Mary Jane Daniels is inexpressibly beautiful. If I should call her simply a pretty girl she would despise me; and right there, by the way, is a leading hint to her fine quality. There are lots of pretty girls in the world—oh, lots and lots! There may be lots of Mary Jane Danielses, but present company has missed seeing most of the others.

MISS MARY JANE DANIELS.

In fact, there hardly can be more than one Mary Jane Daniels, and after you shall have read the rest of this inadequate study of her personality you will be inclined to agree with the writer. Did you, for instance, ever hear of a young woman who has been writing things ever since the age of 5—things in both verse and prose—and has destroyed most of what she has written because it has not approached near enough to her own ideal of perfection? Mary Jane has done just that.

She began hearing from that letter, as well you may suspect, shortly after it was published. One sympathetic correspondent wrote from Brussels, the capital of Belgium. A young man in the South, who imagined he had had troubles of his own, sought, though no doubt unintentionally, to add them to whatever troubles Miss Daniels may have had already. Texas came to time and scored more pleasantly. New York, little old New York, which has been accused of seeing nothing west of Hoboken, unless it be of the "Main Street" sort, awoke from its smug daydream of assumed spiritual superiority to the Wild West and took gracious notice.

One of the best-beloved of New York writers requested Mary Jane to send him some of her work. She did so, poems and prose essays being included. That anxious author, probably fearing that Cetus would snatch Andromeda from the rock and devour her if he depended upon the mails, wired that he had received the manuscripts and that he liked the work very much.

"You cannot know how much these new contacts, gained through that letter of mine, have helped me," said Andromeda, after a mid-December ride on the top of a Michigan boulevard bus to the Drake Hotel, where we found a table in one of the big downstairs tearooms and settled down to talk things over. "They have done much toward giving me a renewed faith in people and a new hold on life."

Then she explained something for which you probably have expected some sort of explanation since you began reading this article. She wrote that letter last June, five months before it appeared in print. Dr. Henry Seidel Canby, editor of the Literary Review, wrote to her at once, requesting permission to print the message in his correspondence department. She consented, stipulating that her initials only were to be used. Somehow she missed the issue of Nov. 10, in which the communication appeared at last; but she knew that it had been printed when she began to get letters from literary persons, nonliterary persons, Christian Scientists and others. Then, when Dr. Canby wrote her an apology, stating that her letter had gone through with her full name appended without intention upon his part, she forgave the editor.

"And why shouldn't I?" she argues. "It has brought me so many fine friends, persons worth while to know."

It was exceedingly hot last June in Woodstock. Miss Daniels was again a

ANDROMEDA'S PHILOSOPHY OF PAIN

By MARY JANE DANIELS.

I BELIEVE that he who has never suffered has missed one of the most valuable lessons life can teach. Pain is an exquisite discipline, but not, as the elder ecclesiastics held, a punitive one. I, who have known pain intimately over a long period of years, know it to be a privilege granted to those who are worthy to suffer. Forbes Robinson, an English curate, once wrote to a friend:

"I like that phrase, 'worthy to suffer.' It is to those whom God loves best and most that He gives, as He gave to His Son, the chance of suffering. Sympathy, strength, reality, these are some of its fruits for those 'who allow them to grow.'"

One in pain probably never feels himself of the elect during the actual hour of trial; but afterward, when the sun shines more brightly and the sky is a more tender blue, by contrast he should recognize that life has been translated into higher and holier levels through his pain. Anyone who agrees with Cal Van Vechten's remark in "Peter Whiffle"—"Art is memory crystallized out of experience"—ought never to shrink from suffering, for it is a great crystallizer. By a strange and compensating alchemy it teaches one canons of judgment; it burns away what is haphazard and slovenly; it washes from hearts and souls that which is impure and untrue. Then he who thought himself a victim, in coming away from Armageddon annealed and cleansed and quickened in perception realizes himself a victor.

In pain, again, one feels closer to the mystery of Law—Law infinite and immutable, which is the beginning and end of being. In active life one has little time or desire to learn whether or not he is attuned to the universe. It is only when pain isolates and confines him, and he is suddenly the instrument of vast impersonal and omnipotent forces, that he is likely to feel the rhythm of living and dying. And is not this sudden understanding the realest prayer—the communion, the oneness of this human bundle of laws and Law itself?

There are those who have built up a philosophy around the denial of pain. Rather than subscribe to their tenets, I would willingly undergo a hundred, a thousand times, the suffering that has been mine. Not to have had it would be to have been cheated out of my birthright—the right to be courageous, the right to develop patience and the right to know and love beauty, holiness, and God.

Building Roads to Break Them Dow

Government aids in new system by which experimental sections of highways are put to rigid tests—Survival of the fittest in material and details of construction—Cost is small compared to old method of building entire road on a guesswork foundation—Standing up under a 50-ton load on two wheels is the supreme ordeal :: ::

GUESSWORK is on its last legs so far as the construction of highways is concerned. The laboratory method of finding out in advance just how a certain type of road will stand up under the pounding of the traffic it will have to bear has been substituted for the old way of building the entire road and turning it over to the mercies of traffic with the fervent hope that it will stand up long enough to justify the wisdom of those who built it.

The ever-changing traffic conditions have made roadbuilding a most difficult proposition. Roads which were built a few years ago and at the time were adequate to carry all of the traffic which might reasonably be expected to pass over them proved insufficient because of the unforeseen increases in the number and character of the vehicles using them. The whole road-building program of the country has moved along so fast in the last few years that it has been next to impossible to keep pace with the demand for new roads. State highway departments, County Commissioners, cities and towns, all have been engaged in the construction of highways, and as the public would brook no delay, the work had to go on without proper opportunity to make the investigations which are now being made. In the last few years, however, the study of road building along scientific lines has been pushed as never before, and the most interesting phase of this study is the test road.

The three most notable examples of the test road, which is just what the name implies—a road built of varying materials and then "tested to destruction" in a comparatively short time by running abnormally heavy traffic over it—are the Bates test road in Illinois, the Pittsburg (Cal.) test road and the Highway Experiment Station at Arlington, Va., conducted by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, which is a division of the Department of Agriculture.

These three notable experiments have been watched carefully by skilled engineers with precision instruments, and every failure of any type of pavement has been studied with the greatest possible care. The results observed have been tabulated and then the problem has been to get this information into the hands of the builders of roads widely scattered throughout the country. In this term "road builders" are included the duly elected or appointed representatives of the public, the engineers who supervise the work, the contractors who do the actual construction and the makers of the machinery which is necessary for the work. Each of these groups has its own organizations, but the only place where all are gathered together at the same time is at the annual convention of the American Road Builders' Association, which is held in Chicago. This convention attracts thousands of men—and in the last few years an ever-increasing number of women—from all parts of the United States and Canada who in one way or another are actively participating in the construction of highways. The sessions of the convention have never been restricted to those on the membership list, but always have been open to anyone who cared to attend.

At the conventions the results of the scientific investigations just mentioned above have been analyzed and discussed and these discussions have been listened to by the state highway engineers, county road commissioners, contractors and machinery men. In addition to the convention itself, the American Road Builders' Association conducts a good roads show at which almost 300 makers of road-building materials exhibit their latest products and have an opportunity to meet and talk with contractors who use these products in their work and the representatives of the public for whom the roads are built. It is the nation's great clearing house for information in regard to the highway industry, an industry in which hundreds of millions of dollars are spent annually and which is now adding 40,000 miles of surfaced roads to the highway system of the United States each year, as well as almost an incalculable mileage of unsurfaced highways.

The American Road Builders' Association convention and show of 1924 will be held Jan. 14 to 18, the convention at the Congress Hotel and the show in the Coliseum and adjoining buildings. Any man or woman interested in road construction will be welcomed. The president of the American Road Builders' Association is Frank Page, chairman of the North Carolina State Highway Commission. The treasurer is James H. MacDonald, for many years chairman of the Connecticut State Highway Commission and at present a State Senator in the Connecticut Legislature. Directly in charge of the convention and show is C. M. Upham, State Highway Engineer of North Carolina, who has established quarters at the Congress Hotel in Chicago.

Of the various test roads referred to, the Bates test road is perhaps the most conspicuous example. It is a little more than two miles long, 18 feet wide and consists of 63 sections, most of them 100 or 200 feet long, surfaced with various types of pavement. Brick, asphaltic concrete, cement concrete and other frequently used types make up the road. This road was subjected to the most thoroughgoing, backbreaking ordeal that any highway ever went through. In a space of three or four months as much as [illegible] 460 tons of traffic passed over the stronger [illegible] of this road. Some of the weaker sections [illegible] more easily, but only because they broke up [illegible] the limit was reached. Of the original 63 [illegible] only nine survived without breaking and [illegible] showed failures that were probably due [illegible] able causes other than heavy traffic.

The test was made in a very ingenious [illegible] A number of trucks given to the Illinois [illegible] Department by the United States Army [illegible] surplus material first made 1000 trips over [illegible] with a load of 2500 pounds on each [illegible] and 2250 pounds on each front wheel. [illegible] followed by four other test runs in which [illegible] on the rear wheel was gradually increased [illegible] pounds, and when this had been finished, a [illegible] final run was made at night when the [illegible] 5000 trips with a 8000-pound wheel load. [illegible] done because of the fact that at night [illegible] of the surface differs in some ways from [illegible] during the day. For example, on a concrete [illegible] the edges of the pavement curl up slightly [illegible] subgrade due to the cooler air. These [illegible] destroying runs were made with the [illegible] trucks at different distances from the [illegible] road and nothing was omitted to make every [illegible] test of the various kinds of surface.

The Pittsburg test road in California [illegible] an elliptical track built, like the Bates [illegible] various kinds of surfacing. It was at first [illegible] to the pounding of 30 fully loaded three [illegible] half and five ton trucks and four of the 11 [illegible] failed. Later on, numerous other tests [illegible] on the Pittsburg road, including a 16-ton [illegible] at the end a 50-ton load on two wheels. [illegible] load was obtained by constructing a special [illegible] which was filled with pig iron and imposed [illegible] of 5000 pounds per inch width of tire. I HAVE been asked how it is that I continue reasonably hard at work and mentally and physically fit at my age.

There is no sovereign remedy that will give good health. The nearest approach finds expression in one word—abstemiousness. Nor is the experience of any person of universal applicability.

My trouble from the outset and during a long and active life has been gout and rheumatism. Probably, to a certain extent, inherited; doubtless to a large extent my fault.

Some there are so fortunate that until extreme old age their organs remain sound, their blood circulates freely and their glands function normally. In most cases the glands become atrophied, the blood circulation becomes sluggish and all sorts of complications ensue.

In my case at the age of 50 I was so racked with gout that I was suffering all the time. In all the thick muscles of the body controlling motion I was suffering intensely, and, a martyr to lumbago, was rapidly stiffening up.

I concluded that my work was not nearly done; that I could still derive both pleasure and profit from gainful activities, and I started, following largely a system of my own, learning much from some of the muscular health doctors who recommended many different forms of exercise, to perfect a daily routine to fit the case. Stressing and tensing muscles, exercising those preferably that are most affected and where you suffer most, taking hot and cold showers alternately, using reasonable care in the choice of foods, but more particularly reducing quantity and substituting water for alcoholic beverages, are all parts of my system for keeping fit.

As to my diet, in the morning, as a rule, I eat nothing but fruit in season, and not very much of that. The other two meals I eat whatever I may fancy, from lobster down to milk toast, but always in moderation. Now that it is fashionable to take strong drink on the sly I have pretty much given up the habit.

As I went along I found that I was suffering with cold extremities. My hands and feet in any but the warmest weather were cold. I cast about for a remedy to cure defective circulation and evolved a system of pounding with my fists every part of the body that I could reach, preferably the muscles most affected, and I have, at the end of a considerable period of time, so improved my circulation that practically all of my troubles are gone. As for instance:

My hands and feet are normally warm now. I walk without discomfort on the cold tiles of the bathroom with bare feet at any time of the night or day.

I am amply supple to bend forward with my knees taut and pound the floor with my fists.

I can strike myself in the pit of the stomach after a hearty meal and I can strike hard at the funny bone of the elbow without flinching; also I pound myself in the groin, both lying down and standing — for me rupture and appendicitis are legendary diseases.

"I can strike myself a hard blow in the stomach after a hearty meal."

I pound my ears and jaw, my temples, cranium and neck, and I have not had a headache since I started doing it.

"I pound my ears, jaw and neck, and I never have a headache."

I am practically free of an annoying case of catarrh through inhaling water freely mornings and evenings.

The other day we were at Nipissing Mines. Accustomed to comprehensive exercise while using my shower at home, I thought that I could duplicate standing in a bath tub, but I promptly went backward over the rim without a chance to save myself. I threw out my right arm, expecting to break it, to save my head, but all that happened was a considerable discoloration of the palm of the hand which I carried with me for some time. This must be proof that my bones are not brittle.

You will see that my methods are reasonably violent for a man of 75.

More than six years ago I was told by an eminent physician that I must give up all violent exercise because of my heart. I thereupon pounded the region of the heart and the muscles and ribs over the heart violently, and I have kept it up and experienced no discomfort. If you would feel fit you must fight your infirmities.

Although I seldom take the time to walk, an eight or ten mile jaunt over the Adirondack trails holds no terror for me.

I had great trouble with my eyes years ago, falling lids, extreme nervousness when reading by the electric light. The oculists did not help me much. I started in to dip my face in water, fresh water preferred (salt water does not hurt) two or three times daily, opening my eyes wide and rolling them until they ached. I now read with perfect comfort in my car coming from Huntington in the morning the small print of newspapers and often without glasses.

These are some of the odds and ends of infirmities turned into the glorious summer of good health by not giving in.

And there are other exercises that I take that have been at least equally remarkable in their satisfactory results. What is there of greater worth?

Many men of my acquaintance who are working under high pressure at tasks involving great business and financial responsibility appear to be largely dependent upon medical advice and assistance "to keep them going," as it were. They literally have a doctor at their elbow. Not a few of them do not leave New York even for a short business trip without an accompanying physician.

Many men have overlooked the simple rules of keeping themselves fit. Many today are so completely absorbed with the idea of getting ahead that they neglect their health until medical advice becomes a pure necessity.

I believe life would be prolonged for many of us and much suffering avoided if we were to stop now and then and take invoice of our physical well being. The surest way to overcome disease is to take it in time. An ache or pain is nature's warning that something in the human mechanism is going wrong. This notice should be heeded. It is the advice I took myself 25 years ago.

If people would only realize how much easier it is to keep well, with simple exercises and moderate care of one's self, than to wait till nature rebels and shows her disapproval of our habits of living, and she finally goes on strike, the number of well and happy people would be infinitely greater. I believe the physiological

Mrs. Champ Clark Writes of Thomas Jefferson

St. Louis has some of the great Democrat's line, but Pike County has more than his own county in Virginia, 23 families being of direct descent—Widow of famous Speaker, an authority on the author of the Declaration of Independence, tells interesting things about her neighbors of this illustrious ancestry and others of Jeffersonian blood ::

Thomas Jefferson is perennially a subject of interest to all Americans and to people everywhere who cherish the ideal of democracy in government. Just now there is a movement afoot to raise money for the purchase and preservation of Jefferson's Virginia home, "Monticello." Missourians have a peculiar interest in this movement, inasmuch as most of the great President's descendants live in this State, some of them in St. Louis and a great many more in Pike County.

Missouri is a Jeffersonian commonwealth. Primarily, it is the greatest State carved out of the Louisiana territory which was added to the United States through the wisdom of Thomas Jefferson. Consequently, in addition to having been the author of the Declaration of Independence and of the Virginia statute for religious freedom, the sage of Monticello may be said to have been the father of the State of Missouri. Jefferson's intimate relation to Missouri is manifested in many ways. The capital city of the State bears his name. Similarly honored is a prosperous and picturesque county. St. Louis has a cross-town avenue named Jefferson. There is also a splendid Jefferson Memorial Building in Forest Park. On the campus of the University of Missouri, at Columbia, stands the monument placed originally at the head of Jefferson's grave.

It is a remarkable fact, by no means so well known as those mentioned above, that in one Missouri County—Pike, the home of the late Speaker Champ Clark, a lifelong Jeffersonian in principle and practice—there are living today more direct descendants of Thomas Jefferson than there are in Albemarle County, Va., where the great advocate of majority rule lived and died and is buried. Mrs. Genevieve Bennett Clark, widow of the famous Missouri Congressman and Speaker, who would have been President had the Jeffersonian principle of majority rule been in effect at the Baltimore convention of 1912, lives at the old Clark home, "Honeyshuck," in Bowling Green, county seat of Pike, surrounded by lineal descendants of President Jefferson. Mrs. Clark has been acclaimed the greatest living authority on Jefferson. She has written for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine the interesting article about the Pike County descendants of the great apostle of democracy, published here with pictures of a few of the many Pike countians of this distinguished ancestry, some of whom have removed to St. Louis.

These descendants of Jefferson are citizens of solid worth and high standing in their respective communities.

By MRS. CHAMP CLARK.
(Genevieve Bennett Clark.)

THOMAS JEFFERSON believed that the majority must rule, no matter what happened. In his first inaugural address Jefferson declared: "Absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority is the vital principle of republics, from which there is no appeal but to force," and Jefferson defined force as "the vital principle and the immediate parent of despotism." Senator Hoar, in the "Special Introduction" to the first volume of the "Memorial Writings of Thomas Jefferson," says:

"If we want sure proof of Jefferson's greatness it will be found in the fact that men of every variety of political opinion, however far asunder, find confirmation of their doctrine in him. Every party today reckons Jefferson as his patron saint. Every political sect finds its political doctrine in Jefferson, almost as every religious sect finds its doctrine in the Saviour of mankind."

There have been tremendous changes in both church and state since Senator Hoar wrote this tribute to Thomas Jefferson. The World War has changed everything: we burn what we used to worship and worship what we used to burn. Jefferson is in eclipse—even in Missouri, the State which loved him best and named its capital in his honor. He will emerge when the people get back their senses sufficiently to lift the ban which war-time hysteria has placed upon Jefferson and all his works.

Bowling Green is a good place to start the Jefferson revival; there are at present six families at the county seat of Pike County and 17 families in the county at large who are descended in direct line from the author of the great Declaration. These are descended from Jefferson through his eldest child, Martha Jefferson, wife of Gov. Thomas Mann Randolph of Virginia. The first child of Martha Jefferson Randolph was Ann Cary Randolph, who was Jefferson's first grandchild; and her son, John Warner Bankhead, was Jefferson's first great-grandchild. It was in 1842 that John Warner Bankhead (a gentleman from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot) and his excellent wife, who was Elizabeth Christian of New Kent County, Va., came from Albemarle County, Va., to Pike County, Mo., and settled in Quivre Township. From this couple are descended most of the Jefferson descendants in Pike County.

There are at present three other descendants of Jefferson living at the old Calvert place, not far from Clarksville; they are Miss Zumia Carter and her widowed sister, Ann Cary Carter Norris, and Carter Bankhead Clark, son of Mrs. Norris by a former marriage. These are descended from Jefferson through John Carter, son of Ellen Bankhead, who was a sister of John Warner Bankhead. She and her brother were present in the room when Jefferson died on July 4, 1826. At that time John was 15 years old and was noted for his skill with a rifle. Ellen, who was several years younger, was quite a scholar. Randall, in his "Life of Jefferson," in describing the deathbed scene at Monticello, tells us:

"In the parting interview with the female members of his family, Mr. Jefferson, besides general admonitions, addressed to them affectionate words of encouragement and practical advice adapted to their several situations. In this he did not [illegible] pass over a young great-grandchild, Ellen Bankhead, but exhorted her to persevere diligently in her

Besides John and Ellen, there were two other Bankhead children, Thomas and William. The mother of the children, the gentle, lovely Ann Cary Randolph, had died six months before, and their father, the handsome, dashing Charles Lewis Bankhead, was a new-fledged widower. He afterward married again and became the father of other children. William Bankhead, Ann Cary's youngest child, who at the time of her death was a babe in arms, grew up, married and moved to Alabama; his name served to point a moral and adorn a tale at the Baltimore convention in 1912. It was told and published in the papers that Senator Bankhead's son, who would put Mr. Underwood in nomination for President, was a lineal descendant of Thomas Jefferson. That was a mistake; Senator Bankhead was not related to Jefferson. William Bankhead, who was Jefferson's great-grandson, had no sons; his sister Martha and his two daughters, Mrs. Gilchrist and Mrs. Hotchkiss, and their families were the only descendants of Jefferson in Alabama. I have their pictures and their father's pictures in my collection.

Dr. Dunglison, in his memoranda published in Randall's "Life of Jefferson," and who was the attending physician, describes how Jefferson received the news of his granddaughter's death:, "On the last day of the fatal illness of his granddaughter, who had married Mr. Bankhead, Mr. Jefferson was present in the adjoining apartment, and when the announcement was made by me that but little hope remained, that she was, indeed, past hope, it is impossible to imagine more poignant distress than was exhibited by him; he shed tears and abandoned himself to every evidence of intense grief."

Mr. Jefferson announced the death of this granddaughter to her brother, then in Richmond, in the following note:

"Monticello, Feb. 11, 1826.—To Thomas Jefferson Randolph: Bad news, my dear Jefferson, as to your sister Ann. She expired half an hour ago. I have been so ill for several days that I could not go to see her until this morning, and found her speechless and insensible. She breathed her last about 11 o'clock. Heaven seems to be overwhelming us with every form of misfortune, and I expect your next will give me the coup de grace. Your own family are all well. Affectionately adieu.

"TH. JEFFERSON."

A granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson Randolph, Miss Sarah N. Randolph of Virginia, published a book in 1871, "The Domestic Life of Thomas Jefferson." Although this book is compiled mostly from Randall's "Life of Thomas Jefferson," which is the standard biography, yet there are some things that were never published before and the book is highly prized among collectors of Jefferson literature.

Thomas Jefferson Randolph, Mrs. Bankhead's brother and Jefferson's eldest grandson, was in Richmond on business for his grandfather when he received the note from Jefferson announcing the sister's death. At that time, Jefferson was greatly worried over financial difficulties which threatened to overwhelm him; and to make matters worse there had been a falling out between his grandson and his grandson-in-law, Charles Lewis Bankhead. The quarrel, which had come to blows, was over politics. Bankhead belonged to a high-flying Federalist family and was a pretty high-stepper, ready to fight at the drop of the hat, and to drop it himself. His wife stood loyally by him, but she was very devoted to her brother and the estrangement nearly broke her heart. She was married at 17 and was only 36 when she died. Her portrait and her husband's, painted shortly after their marriage, has come down to their posterity in Bowling Green. They were the best looking of all the family; at least they appear so in their pictures; but that may be because the portraits were painted when they were young and happy. At the time of his death, Jefferson had two other grandsons-in-law who thought the world and all of him. Both of these were born north of Mason and Dixon's line.

Ellen Randolph's husband was Joseph Coolidge of Boston; and Virginia, a younger sister, was the wife of Nicholas Trist of Philadelphia. Ellen's son, Sidney Coolidge, was the only one of Jefferson's descendants who fought on the Federal side in the Civil War; he was killed in battle. The three Bankhead brothers of Pike County, Missouri — Archibald, Cary and Thomas—all followed Virginia out of the Union. Thomas died in the Confederate army.

President Calvin Coolidge is not descended from Thomas Jefferson. In Boston, the descendants of Jefferson are known as "The Great Coolidge Family." Thomas Jefferson Coolidge of Boston, son of Ellen Randolph, was born five years after Jefferson's death, lived through the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish War and the World War, and died peacefully in his bed Nov. 17, 1920, at the age of 89. He was a graduate of Harvard, a diplomat, a manufacturer, an East Indian merchant, a railroad president and several other things. In the second Cleveland administration he was sent as Minister to France, and his nephew, Archibald Cary Coolidge, was his secretary. The Boston branch of the Jefferson descendants can be traced by their names; Archibald Cary, for instance, runs back to Col. Archibald Cary of Ampthill, Chesterfield County, Va., who was grandfather to Thomas Mann Randolph. The Coolidge family now own Tuckahoe, the old Randolph homestead in Virginia, where Martha Jefferson went as a bride with her young husband and set up housekeeping.

There is a movement on foot to buy Monticello and make of it a national shrine. At present there are six families in Bowling Green, including those of Ben C. Bankhead, Thomas J. Bankhead, T. J. Bankhead Jr., Mrs. Grace Bankhead and Mrs. Carl Zubor, who belong to the Archibald Bankhead branch of Jeffersons. Russell Bankhead, ex-Sheriff of Pike County, lives in Bowling Green, and his brothers, Dr. Errett Bankhead and Dr. Randolph Bankhead of Clarksville and Dr. Charles Lewis Bankhead of Paynesville, and their sisters, Mrs. Gillum, Mrs. Smith and the Misses Martha, Katy and Bessie Bankhead, are the children of Dr. Cary Randolph Bankhead and his wife, who was Miss Ellen Errett, daughter of a notable pioneer minister of the Church of the Disciples. Capt. Archie Bankhead's wife was Miss Mary Chambers; her father, I think, was the founder or first editor of the old Missouri Republican (later the St. Louis Republic), which was run for 40 years as a Whig paper and never elected a Governor until it came out for B. Gratz Brown, a Liberal Republican. Mrs. Archie Bankhead's half-brother, Lucian Carr, who was a professor at Yale College, wrote a book on Missouri, published in the American Commonwealth series, in 1888.

When people remark, as frequently they do, that Bowling Green is made up of "has-beens," we retort: "It is better to be a has-been than a never-waser." The Bankhead boys had a sister, the youngest of the flock and as pretty as a pink; her name was Martha Jefferson, but everybody called her Matty.

She was educated at Christian College, Columbia, Mo., under the administration of James K. Rodgers, and married Howard Norris of St. Joseph, a student at the university. I remember her well, and all her children; there were three attractive daughters, Lizzie, Mollie and Ellen; and two sons who were younger, Charlie and John. Lizzie married Porter Norton of Troy, and died leaving a daughter, Natalia. Mollie married Gene Wells of Troy and had two children, Howard and Dixie. Her husband died and she married again and is now Mrs. Sublette of St. Louis. Ellen is now Mrs. Daniel and lives in St. Louis. Charlie and John both died without issue. Their cousin, Lizzie Bankhead Bell, sister of Ben and Tom, lives in St. Louis; her husband is descended in a direct line from Dabney Carr, Jefferson's best friend and brother-in-law, whose grave was the first one opened at the family burying ground at Monticello.

The youngest of all the granddaughters of Thomas Jefferson was the seventh daughter of Martha Jefferson Randolph; and so, on that account, she was named Septemia. She grew up and married a man named Meilkleham, who was a cousin to Sir Walter Scott. This lady has a colored namesake in Bowling Green, namely Septemia, wife of Garfield Williams. "Timmy," as she is called for short, is a granddaughter of old Aunt Betsy Page, a very aristocratic colored lady who came with her husband, "Uncle Ben," from Virginia with the Bankheads, in October, 1842.

The original portrait of Jefferson's daughter, Martha, painted by Sully, and the only picture of her, is in possession of the Burke family of Alexandria, Va. They told me there the story of the picture. Nicholas Trist, who married Virginia Randolph, engaged Sully to paint his wife's portrait, but the wife insisted that her mother must sit for a portrait instead of herself. At last it was so agreed.

"Don't paint any gray hairs or wrinkles, Mr. Sully," Mrs. Randolph told him at the first meeting.

"Mrs. Randolph," said the artist, "I will paint you as I remember you twenty years ago."

And so he did. Some time in the late '60's the New York Historical Society asked permission to copy this portrait. Permission was given; but the real portrait was too old-looking, so there was a new portrait made up, out of whole cloth, which passes for that of Martha Jefferson Randolph and hangs on the wall of the Republican Court Gallery in New York.

THE eye of a baby ant is shown, magnified to the full size of a moving picture screen. And on the eye of that baby ant is crawling a flea, so small that it causes the baby ant no discomfort. It is discoverable only under the all-seeing eye of the microscope. Who knows but that on the eye of this flea other fleas are crawling, awaiting only the time when more powerful microscopes than any now in use will make them visible?

The photographing and screen projection of the flea on the ant's eye is an established fact of recent microscopic achievement. It has brought to the screen the world's smallest stars and opened a new field of educational value for the moving picture.

When Jonathan Swift, the English satirist, wrote his famous "Gulliver's Travels" early in the eighteenth century, describing in wonderful detail the imaginary lands of Liliputia and Brobdignagia, his readers gasped with amazement at the wild flights of the author's imagination in his description of the lands where the inhabitants were but inches tall or where they towered 70 feet in the air. The book was written as a satire on the times and the people, but later it has come to be regarded as a fine bit of writing and an admirable fairy tale.

Today, science has discovered worlds more wonderful than any ever imagined by Jonathan Swift.

Imagine a country where the inhabitants are endowed with strength so great that any of them can lift and carry a load that, for a man, in the same proportion, would be a load of 120 tons! Imagine these powerful beings working with a fury and determination unapproached by anything human; ruled by an inexorable political and economical system, with each citizen assigned a certain set of tasks which it performs with the greatest energy and fidelity, each sharing alike in the common product of their labors; where the penality of laziness is death and where the women do all the work! With such devotion applied to our affairs, the Himalayas could be bored in a week, the Rockies in 10 days, and we'd have a transcontinental underground road for automobiles in a month!

Or imagine another land where the laborers work themselves to death in six weeks storing up food and resources for generations to follow; where the workers are expert builders, constructing their homes and storehouses in accordance with the best structural practice and with geometrical precision; where again the women do all the work and the land is ruled by a queen, whose authority is absolute!

Where are these lands? Underfoot, in the air we breathe, the water we drink; the land of the ant hill, the bee hive and the spider web—the insect world!

The microscope has opened to the scientist and student of natural history the secrets of life of these wonderful worlds, and has enabled them to study and record the habits, industries and complex social systems of our familiar insect neighbors. And now another invention, no less wonderful, has brought the life and habits of these insects to the motion picture screen, where each of us may behold wonders more amazing than anything ever conceived in the fertile brain of Jonathan Swift or Jules Verne or H. G. Wells.

For several years experiments have been made along various lines with microscopic motion pictures. Different members of the American Society of Cinametographers, in the course of their regular duties, have made such experiments, among them being Faxon Dean, who, with little or no equipment, obtained the first noteworthy results for the Rockefeller Institute, and Andre Barlatier, who worked on various microscopic subjects in France some 12 years ago.

Due to the handicap of lack of proper equipment, the motion pictures made by those men were necessarily limited in their scope and results, and it was not until Louis H. Tolhurst perfected his processes of lighting and photography that microscopic study of insect life by motion pictures became a practical possibility.

Tolhurst is a young California scientist of independent means whose hobby is the motion picture camera and microscope. The combination of the two interested him and he determined to surpass the efforts and results of the early investigators in this field. Eight years of study and experiment brought him to his goal, but it was only after he perfected processes of an almost revolutionary nature that he succeeded.

When Tolhurst

ic experiments and found he had created a barrier to his success. Before perfecting his "cool" light his experiments had been with dead specimens. With a living, moving subject under the powerful lens, it was impossible to keep the active insect in focus!

In ordinary motion picture photography, this is a simple problem; in microscopic motion picture photography it was disasatrous to success. The lenses necessary to perfect results must be so fine and the focus so sharp that failure loomed ahead of the young experimenter. When it is considered that microscopic specimens are so small that millions of them live in a trace of matter no larger than the point of a needle the difficulties of keeping one of them in focus can be appreciated.

Tolhurst took two plates of plateglass, and on one of them placed a drop of water. The plates were clamped together until only a microscopic trace of moisture remained between them. In this trace of moisture, microscopic life lived, moved and had its manifold being and swam about as do gold fish in a crystal aquarium, and yet the distance between the two plates of glass was, microscopically speaking, so great that the swimming organisms farthest from the camera and microscope were out of focus!

Tolhurst solved this problem in mechanics and photography with a quickly adjustable lens, geared to an adjustment of one-ten-thousandth of an inch.

Another problem to be solved was one in economics. If he wanted to catch the lateral race of a spider across its web in its leap after a fly, it was necessary to keep his camera going continuously, grinding out its hundreds of feet of expensive film, or he would have to start his camera instantly. As it is sometimes the better part of a day before the capricious insect decides to perform, it can be seen that the former plan would involve such a waste of film as to be ruinous to the experimenter, or place a prohibitive price on the pictures. By means of a continuously operating motor, and a system of electrically operated clutches, Tolhurst perfected a method of starting his camera instantly. It can be operated from any point of the laboratory with such alacrity that the quickest movement of the liveliest insect cannot be so instant as to escape the watchfulness of the camera or the recording sensitive film back of the whirring shutter.

With the perfection of this last apparatus, Tolhurst was enabled to commence his photographic-microscopic studies which have resulted in the most remarkable pictures of this nature ever secured. The myriad life of the ant hill has been photographed, and the determined workers are shown constructing a tunnel and storehouses for their winter supply of food. While the tiny workers struggle with their excavation problems, carrying boulders many times their size, performing prodigious feats of engineering in seeming haste and confusion, the greatest system and order prevails. An instance will suffice to show the organization among the workers. While the burden bearers are struggling up the narrow tunnel laden with debris, boulders, tiny twigs or roots, the workers returning to the blind end of the tunnel walk on the ceiling, giving the right of way to their burdened co-workers.

Each has her task to do (the women do all the work) and the life of the ant hill goes on, ceaselessly following this rigid routine.

Similar conditions prevail in the beehive. The colony is divided into workers, builders, honey bearers, housekeepers and drones, and over all is the queen bee, the royal mother of thousands of industrious daughters.

Under the microscope the spider is shown to be a much maligned individual. He attends strictly to his business, building a web for the sole purpose of garnering his daily bread in the shape of flies or other insects, and is a harmless sort of recluse, whose only wish is to be left alone.

Tolhurst will make a series of 12 of these pictures, each one dealing with a familiar insect. Already he has completed pictures on the ant, the bee, the spider and the butterfly. The ant lion will be next, with the silk-worm possibly following.

Entomologists and scientists have made deep studies of insect life and recorded their findings in print. With few exceptions their accounts were dry, scientific facts regarding the anatomy and physical structure of the insect, overlooking entirely the "human interest" angle of their tiny subjects. In the life of these common insects there is as much of drama, pathos and humor as in the lives of the human inhabitants of the world.

While the Tolhurst pictures, which are distributed by Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., and which are known as "Secrets of Life," show these insects as interesting creatures for the amusement of the theater-going public, the scientific angle has not been overlooked or slighted.

Henry Kitchell Webster

The brightness was still in her face —she hadn't found out yet.

WARING frowned absently at his watch, took a turn across his office, and finally met the eye of his secretary, who sat, with expectant pencil, waiting to seize the next words his boss should utter.

"I've forgotten something," said Waring. "Can't think what it is."

Vickers waited.

"Don't you know?" Waring asked.

"No, sir," said the secretary. "Your day sheet is clear."

"Got it," said Waring after another 10 seconds of abstraction. "Letter to my wife." He looked at his watch, caught up his hat and moved toward the door. "You write it," he said. "Going to Pittsburg. Back Sunday morning."

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Vickers.

Waring had been chosen by a committee of chastened creditors, as the one man, perhaps, in the United States who could take the maniacally complicated affairs of the The Winstead Co. in hand and bring it back to a condition of solvency.

The Winstead plant occupied the area of a good-sized farm in the small city of Great Bend, where Waring lived in an imitation onyx hotel and in the somewhat fictitious hope that soon he could begin going home over Sunday. As a matter of fact, on Sundays he and Mr. Vickers generally spent about 12 uninterrupted hours at the office, cleaning up what couldn't be done on work days.

This particular Sunday, when he came back from Pittsburg, was no exception. From 9 o'clock to 1:30 Vickers took down a confidential report and a series of recommendations to the Executive Committee. As he informed them, in conclusion, that he was theirs very truly, Waring picked up a rather feminine looking note, ripped it open and began to try to read it.

"From my wife," he explained to Vickers. And, after finally getting a clew at the top of the third page, he asked Vickers, "Here! Where are you going?"

Vickers stopped on his way to the door. "To get the carbon copy from your file," he said.

"Hmp!" said Waring. "Kept a carbon, did you? All right, let's see it."

He read the innocent-looking carbon sheet which Vickers placed before him, with a sort of Olympian gloom.

"You fell down on me," he said, sadly. "That's no sort of letter to write a man's wife."

"Sorry," Vickers said.

"Oh, it's all right," said Waring, gloomily. "But I've got to square myself. Get me a sheet of paper that folds over."

He picked up a pen and looked at it dubiously.

The Sabbath calm was broken by the sound of people coming into the outer office.

"I guess that's the Committee on Cost Accounting," Vickers said in answer to Waring's look of inquiry. "You told them to come at 2."

Waring laid down the pen again and turned a pleading look upon the secretary.

Part of Vicker's job was to understand without being spoken to.

"Want me to try it again?" he asked. "I can do better than that. Didn't quite get the idea."

Waring was already on his way to the door of the directors' room.

"Put your back into it," he said before he vanished.

The young man who remained in the office after the door was shut was no longer the 100 per cent efficiency secretary—no longer A. B. Waring per S. V., but a distinctly engaging young chap by the name of Stanley Vickers.

He hesitated a little over picking up the note that Waring had left on the desk, but the spirit of his instructions clearly involved his reading it, so he did so. He meant to do a good job this time, and it was not without its difficulties.

To begin with, Stanley Vickers was new. He had never met Mrs. Waring, never seen a photograph of her. And the illegible scrawl her letter was signed with failed to make it apparent whether her first name was Amie, or Anne, or Alice.

In her answer she had commented satirically on the "My Dear Wife" with which he had begun his other letter, so he clicked out firmly, "My Dear," and then he stopped and thought for a while longer.

This wasn't secretarial work. This was literature! The way to get the right atmosphere would be to have some sort of picture in his mind of the lady he was writing to. An attractive lady? Undoubtedly Waring had found her attractive once and it was a cinch she wanted to think he thought her so still. Brown hair, rather wavy, blue eyes, cheeks without too much color in them, but bright red lips. Oh, bosh! What was he thinking of? Waring was easily 55, and his wife—— Well, weren't men's wives sometimes a lot younger than they were? His vision must be the sort of vision that Mrs. Waring would like to think she presented to her husband. Cinch! Now to begin. Nothing fancy. Honest, plain-spoken—affectionate.

"My Dear: I own up. As you suppose, I didn't even dictate that last letter to you I had young Vickers, my secretary, write it for me and you are perfectly right to feel hurt about it. I am dictating this letter to him now, and I am afraid you will think this makes my offense all the worse. Well, that is what I want to talk about, and I want you to listen patiently until I get through.

"Why do you suppose I forgot"——

Vickers exed the "forgot." He'd have to make a copy anyway. This was just a draft.

——"put off writing last week so long that at last there was no time to do it myself. I was waiting to get business out of the way and turn young Vickers out of the room and sit down for a visit with you all by myself. And the time never came. That's all. It never does. And if it did, I shouldn't know what to do with it. I've forgotten how to write with a pen, except my signature. Now, look here"——

Vickers, with the third finger of his left hand on the "d," hesitated between darling and dearest. Then he got an inspiration and grinned.

——"look here, old lady! Why can't you be a good fellow and just let me have a chin with you like this whenever I get the chance? If you'd do that, and then get a typewriter yourself and learn to work it, so that I could read the letters you write me, why that would be almost equal to coming home over Sunday. I know what it is that bothers you. You don't like the idea of my young cub of a secretary sitting here and taking down all I say to you and writing it out on the typewriter. Well, now, I'll tell you! He doesn't hear a word. It just goes into his ears and out of his pencil, and that's all there is to it."

Vickers wrote a whole page of vivacious details about Waring's Pittsburg trip, and then swung into the stretch.

"You've no idea how excited I am, waiting to see what you'll say to all this. So write me a good long letter and tell me you aren't cross any more and that you have fully forgiven your affectionate but busy husband, who wishes he weren't so busy, so that he could have more chance to show how affection[illegible] real is. Always." * * *

When Waring came back from the directors' [illegible] the letter, immaculately copied, lay on the desk, [illegible] by side with the report to the Executive Committee, both awaiting his signature. He signed A. B. Waring at the bottom of the report and was about to [illegible] the signature beneath Vickers' masterpiece, [illegible] the secretary stopped him.

"Better read that first, hadn't you?" he suggested. "See if it's all right?"

"I'll look it over afterward," said the boss, [illegible] he twisted his mouth over to one side of his [illegible] the regular preliminary to his regular signature.

"You don't want to sign it 'A. B. Waring,' [illegible] you?" Vickers protested. "Always, A. B. Waring[illegible] Sounds kind of funny, I should think."

The boss agreed, and signed it Bert, instead. [illegible] he thrust back his chair and got up.

"Look here!" said Vickers. "You'll have to [illegible] that letter, you know. I may have put something [illegible] it that'll give the whole thing dead away. And [illegible] you'll have to go home."

"That's so," said the boss. But the telephone [illegible] just then and the person on the wire proved to [illegible] one of the Chicago directors who had stepped [illegible] the train at Great Bend, and thought that he [illegible] Waring might spend the evening together, [illegible] things over.

So Waring said he would come right along [illegible] company automobile, pick him up at the station [illegible] take him out to the golf club. Then he hung [illegible] the receiver and made for the door.

Vickers headed him off.

"You haven't read that yet," he said, [illegible]

"It's all right. Send it off. I did look it [illegible] when signing it. Sure, it's all right."

Beginning about Wednesday morning, [illegible] Vickers began to be conscious, as he ran through [illegible] mail, that he was looking for a feminine [illegible] addressed in an illegible hand. His feeling [illegible] was closely akin to that of a literary aspirant [illegible] is waiting to hear from an editor.

It was more than a week later that he [illegible] rather messy looking typewritten, stamped [illegible] and with an expression of distaste, began to [illegible] single sheet of paper it contained. He hated [illegible] typewriting and this communication went [illegible] It wasn't margined nor dated. It was [illegible] spaced, and it began "Dear Old Man."

Obviously a touch from some seedy [illegible] who had known the boss in boyhood days. [illegible] was a conscientious secretary, and he would [illegible] through.

"Dear Old Man It's very exciteing—I'[illegible] I don't know how to spell at all when I have [illegible] real letters that show.—But ive been [illegible] the week and I can find the right keys [illegible] ing for them hardly at all—I wish you had [illegible] what sort of a typewriter—I know that's [illegible] wrong—to buy, but Im sure this one is all [illegible] Its perfectly huge and can add and subtract [illegible] everything—and you can hear it all over the [illegible] You knew why I didn't answer sooner—[illegible] That I couldn't buy a typewriter and make it [illegible] in a minute—and didn't think it was because I [illegible] cross and unforgiving—How could I be about [illegible] lovely—dear old letter—Youve never sent me [illegible] letter since—oh well—never mind about [illegible] if thats the way you dictate why dictate [illegible] time—I don't mind haveing Mr. Vickers with [illegible] —so long as he doesnt have to read the [illegible] you"——

Too Busy to Write His Own Letters to Wife

The badly written sheet dropped from the conscientious secretary's hands as if it had burnt them. He had just read on automatically. And, quite as automatically, his eye picked up the signature, which was typewritten like the rest, only in caps. She had a rather nice name—Audrey.

He saved the letter out from the rest of Waring's correspondence and when the boss came in, he handed it to him separately.

"I—I opened this by mistake," he said, apologetically. "I think perhaps—that is, it's from your wife."

"From my wife!" said Waring, staring at it. "What in blazes"—— And then: "What sort of a joke is this?"

Vickers told him it wasn't a joke. "If you'll only read it," he protested.

But Waring only went on turning it around in his hands, so Vickers explained a little further.

"It's the answer to the letter you had me write. I said in it—that is, you said, that you couldn't write letters by hand and that you were dictating that one to me, and that you only wished she'd get a typewriter and write her letters to you on it, so that you could read them. Just stuck it in for atmosphere, you know."

Waring had begun reading the letter. "Atmosphere!" he observed. "That'll cost me $140. Add and subtract!"

This was an aspect of the matter that hadn't occurred to Vickers, and he couldn't help feeling rather pleased about it. It seemed like poetic justice, somehow. But the boss grinned as he handed the sheet back to Vickers.

"She seems to like your line of goods, sonny," he observed.

The secretary held it between thumb and finger, rather helplessly. "What shall I do with it?" he asked.

"Do with it!" echoed Waring. "Answer it. What would you do with it? Have it framed?"

Vickers waited a discreet three days before writing his next letter. He found, when he sat down to it, that the job was a great deal easier. There was no difficulty whatever now about visualizing an image of the lady he was writing to. It wasn't the same image, either. The effect of her reply had been to make her at least 10 years younger and potentially—well, rather jolly. It was rather a shame that anyone as nice as that should be neglected.

The neglect wasn't Waring's fault. The man was driven almost to death. Still, one would think that with a wife like that——

Vickers found himself getting quite sentimental about it. The emotion was vicarious, of course—strictly vicarious. As he wrote "Dear Audrey" at the top of the letter, he was aware of an impulse to transpose those two words. "Audrey, dear"—that would be rather more like. But he wouldn't do it—yet.

The letter finished, Vickers stamped the carbon copy with a special file number and laid the original on Waring's desk. He wrote on a pink memorandum slip, "Sign this Bert," and fastened it to the letter with a paper clip.

Would the boss read it? Vickers waited to see, and sternly frowned down the feeling of satisfaction that came when he didn't.

It was about two months later, the fag end of an August day, when Waring, writhing into his alpaca coat, was stopped on his way to the door by the implacable Vickers.

"What is it?" asked the boss. "I don't care what I've forgotten. I'm not going to do anything more before dinner."

"It won't take but a minute," Vickers persisted. "A letter came in today from—from Mrs. Waring."

"Oh, yes—yes," said Waring, vaguely. "Yes, I saw it."

He was half-way out the door.

"She's coming," Vickers said.

The boss whirled around. "Coming!" he cried. "Where? Who's coming?"

"Your wife," said Vickers, clearly. "In the letter that came in this morning, she said she was coming on at once, in a day or two."

"What for?" asked the boss. "Nothing the matter, is there?"

"No," said the secretary. "She just said she wanted a visit with you."

"Visit!" cried Waring, with a gesture of despair. "I can't visit with anybody! Have I had a free evening for the last two weeks? It will be the same for two weeks more—maybe a month. Then we'll have broken the back of it, and I can begin going home over Sunday."

"Yes, I know," said the secretary. "I told her that a month ago. I mean you did. Two weeks ago she wrote again, that the two weeks were up and if you weren't coming home, she was coming down here. I wrote another letter then, in which you said you were busier than ever just now, but were sure that in 10 days or two weeks you'd be able to come. Now she says she's coming."

"Well, she can't come here if all this weather holds, anyway," said the boss. "Wire her. Tell her anything you like."

Vickers mopped his brow. "Look here!" he said, so vehemently that he made Waring blink.

"I did," said Vickers. "I put a copy of the telegram on your desk and asked you to read it."

"Oh, yes—yes. Certainly," said Waring. "You were quite right to wire her."

"Yes," said Vickers. "But she wired back. It's just come in. It says: 'Coming anyway. All the more. Audrey.' "

"What does she mean—all the more?" Waring wanted to know.

"I suppose," said Vickers, "she means that the reasons I gave her, why she shouldn't come, make her all the more anxious to."

"Pretty good," said Waring. "I never could understand her telegrams. Well, I suppose she won't melt. Be sort of nice to have her around. Only—you'll have to look after her for me, son. I shan't have time."

Vickers mopped his brow.

"Look here!" he said, so vehemently that he made Waring blink. "There's something I want you to do. You've simply got to do it, that's all—before she comes."

"Before she—— Do you mean my wife? What the dickens has she got to do with it? Here! Where are you going?"

Vickers walked to the private file, opened it, and came back with an enormous manila envelope. This he held out to Waring.

"I want you to read this," he said. "It's the letters she's been writing you for the last two months and—and the carbons of the letters you have written to her—that is, that I have."

Automatically, Waring took the envelope.

"Yes, sure, I'll read it, if you want me to," said Waring. "Can't do it now, though. I'm going up to the hotel for dinner. Coming back this evening. I'll be through with those auditors by 10 o'clock. Read it then."

So all Vickers could do was to prop up the big envelope against Waring's inkstand, and hope for the best. But when he came in, next morning, Waring's deprecatorily guilty air convicted him.

"Worked with those fellows until after 1," he said. "Didn't get those letters read. I'll squeeze them in this morning some time, sure."

But at 12:30 Vickers was sitting alone in the office and the big envelope was still propped against the inkstand, when someone opened the door behind him.

A woman's voice, with a little accent of surprise, said, "Oh!" and as he rose and turned and faced her, went on, "Isn't Mr. Waring here? You're Mr. Vickers, aren't you?"

He managed to say yes and that Mr. Waring was in the next room.

"I'll get him for you," he added.

"Oh, no," she said. "I'll go right in. Thanks just as much."

She crossed to the door his glance had indicated before he could get around from behind the desk to open it for her. In less than a quarter of a minute he was alone again.

And she was in there with the man she thought she'd been writing those wonderful letters of hers to—the man she thought had been writing the letters she had been so pathetically pleased with and eager about, to her.

Well, she wasn't old at all. Just a girl, and with a brightness about her that wasn't wholly in her eyes, that seemed to shine, somehow, through her face.

When the buzzer went off at his elbow, from the directors' room, Vickers got up, took a steadying breath or two, opened the door and went in.

"Oh—yes." Waring said. "Er—this is Vickers my dear. He'll look after you—keep you amused somehow, till after dinner. And I shan't be working late tonight. Not after 10."

She was coming toward Vickers to shake hands. Somehow he managed to get his feet in motion and meet her half way.

The brightness was still in her face. There was a sort of adventurous gaiety about it. She hadn't found out yet!

"I'll do my best," he stammered, "but I'm afraid I'll be a pretty poor substitute."

"I don't know," she said, cheerfully. "I suspect you're a pretty good one."

"Well, run along now," said Waring. "I'm busy."

In a daze, Vickers walked beside her, out of the office, across a brick-paved court—where an idle automobile might have suggested an idea to him, but didn't—down the shabby, weed-grown street to the nearest street car line. Here he stopped, automatically.

She was laughing.

"We're waiting for a car, aren't we?" she asked. "But when it comes, where are we going on it?"

"I—I don't know," he said, and then blurted out: "Oh, you must think me a perfectly dreadful fool, but—— Well, I've had something on my mind that"——

"When," he asked, "when did you know?"

Facts and Legends About Famous Trees in England

THERE are many more trees with histories, or in some other way remarkable, than could be mentioned here. For a tree may be a very ancient survival indeed, a venerable relic that was perhaps not so very young when William the Conqueror came over.

Many oaks in England are of great antiquity, but there are yews far older. The huge yew-tree in Crowhurst churchyard, near Lingfield, is thought to be 1200 years old. It yet thrives, although about a century ago a room was cut in its mighty trunk by some barbarians. The girth of the trunk is 32 feet 9 inches. A table and chair were placed in the room, which will hold 18 or 20 persons, with no space to spare. The door of this singular apartment is now generally kept closed and padlocked.

Among venerable English oaks, the "Queen's Oak," in the old forest of Whittlebury, near Pottersbury, is still hale and hearty. It is indeed historic, for under its shade, in 1464, Edward IV met Elizabeth Woodville, the beautiful young widow of Sir John Grey of Groby, whom, later, he married.

The story had a tragic ending, for, years later, her two sons, after the death of the King, were murdered in the Tower of London by their uncle, in order that he should secure the succession, as Richard III.

The ancient oaks of Windsor Forest, now Windsor Great Park, are long past their prime. "William the Conqueror's Oak" is decaying, and "Shakspeare's Oak" long ago became a mere stump; while the most famous of all, "Herne's Oak," was blown down in 1863. In the same year Queen Victoria planted an oak sapling on the site of it.

Herne, by tradition, was a keeper who went mad and roamed the forest with deer's antlers fixed to his head. At length he hanged himself on the oak, and his ghost, it was said, haunted the spot. The story of this unfortunate man was made use of by Harrison Ainsworth in his "Windsor Castle."

The Major Oak, in Sherwood Forest, is hollow, and although only one person can well squeeze through the rift in its trunk, there is room for 20 people within. Around its root the girth of the Major Oak is 54 feet. The tree still flourishes.

Not far distant is the Greendale Oak, in the park of Welbeck Abbey. This had a passage cut through it by the former Duke of Portland. He made a bet that he owned a tree which would, when cut, admit a coach and four horses. The cut was 10 feet 6 inches high by 6 feet 6 inches wide, and he won his wager by driving through. It was not very sportsmanlike, however, for he had a small coach especially built for the purpose. The poor old tree is now greatly shrunken.

The oldest wood in England is the weird "Wistman's Wood," on Dartmoor, in a lonely and little-visited nook. It is a wood of miniature dwarf oaks, growing amid boulders. The wood is full of adders, and the grim trees are thickly draped with shaggy, gray-green moss.

There stands in a field near "Capp's Lodge," not far from Burford, Oxfordshire, an oak with the inscription on its trunk, "H. D.; T. D., 1784." It is this tree on which the bodies of Henry and Thomas Dundson were gibbeted, after being hanged at Gloucester for highway robbery. They were leaders of the "Dundson Gang," who once terrorized that countryside. It is not a large tree. Local superstition declares that it has ceased to grow since being put to that use.

A very curious tree grows in the church of Ross, in Herefordshire. Ross is the little town associated with John Kyrle, called "The Man of Ross," who was born in 1637 and died in 1724. He was in many ways a benefactor to the town, and, among other things, he planted the fine elm avenue in the churchyard which still in part remains.

For many years past two suckers from the elms outside have sprung up through the flooring of Kyrle's pew, and although every now and again they appear to be dead, they renew their vigor, and at present are flourishing exceedingly. Needless to say, they are looked upon as miraculous in th and are jealously cared for.

Shelton Oak, a little way to the north of Shrew bury, and standing by an old tollhouse on the Holyhead road, is called "Glendower's Oak,"

Boxes Are Now Made From Sawdust and Ashes

SAWDUST, trampled underfoot for years has risen to new heights. It is now one of the important ingredients in the making of boxes. Christine M. Lewis, writing in St. Nicholas, describes the process by which ashes and sawdust are used to make handsome containers. She saw a man rubbing a dry, mealy mixture by hand through a huge sieve; and in its final state—a coarse, dry powder—the compound was taken to the presses, ready for the next step in the process.

There are four large presses in the factory. Two are used for making the lower part of the boxes, and two, by bronze embossing dies of different patterns, which can be changed at will, impress upon the covers a wide variety of beautiful designs—Roman, Greek, Egyptian, Gothic, Moresque or Renaissance. A certain quantity of the powder from the mixing room is placed on round sheets of paper, somewhat smaller than a dinner-plate, and inserted in the presses under the dies. With a movement of the hand, the presses are lowered; the powder is left to bake for about three minutes; the presses are then lifted; and behold out come the boxes, a beautiful creamy brown, like that of newly baked bread, and giving off a resinous odor. There they are complete, with but a single operation. No folding or gluing of edges, no fitting of bottom and sides and top is necessary. It is upon the simplicity of the operation of the presses that the cheapness of the whole process depends. The covers are produced in exactly the same way.

After being smoothed off at the edges, the box are ready to be painted. It required at least tw years' work to produce a special paint which wou stick to the surface of the baked compound. Ther was something about the chemical ingredients of th mixture which caused the ordinary paint to dry, cu up and flake off. At last, however, the inventor h made a paint which will stick, and it has the add advantage that it dries very quickly. This quality valuable because it does away with the necessity o having a large space set aside for the boxes to b stored while drying. The first coat is applied b hand; and almost as soon as this is done the box dry enough to pass on for the finishing touches b air-brushes. Any tint can be applied to finish off th box—blue, pink, green, yellow and so on—and some times a combination of the two is used. Sometim they are finished with ivory, ebony, bronze, silve or gold effects. They can even be plated with bron silver or gold. These boxes may be used for a sorts of purposes, wherever a fancy box is needed and are employed by dealers in the more expensiv candies.

The finished box is very light in weight, and y so strong that a man can stand on it without breaking it. It is washable and sanitary; it is waterproof an fireproof; it can be made of any degree of flexibility climatic changes do not cause it to shrink or e pand; and it is very cheap. One pound of the mixtu costs about 5 cents, and from a pound, three bo can be made.

Strictly Vicarious

She gave him an understanding nod.

"Part of the worry of this dreadful business that's driving my—my husband so. It was frightfully unceremonious of him to bundle me up and hand me over to you this way. I hope you didn't mind."

"N-no," said Vickers. "I was rather glad—— That is to say, of course not!"

"I haven't had any lunch yet," she suggested. "Have you?"

"I'd forgotten there was such a thing," he told her, more nearly at ease than he had been yet. "We generally send out for a couple of sandwiches. Lunch is a good idea!"

"And will that car take us to it?" she asked, nodding to one that was coming along. It said "Golf Club" on it.

"Of course!" he exclaimed. "We can get lunch out at the club. I've never been out there, though I belong. But I've heard it's pretty good."

So they went out to the golf club.

They got a little table on the shady side of the veranda, which they had to themselves, and presently, to Vickers' consternation, he found himself having a wonderfully good time.

They finished the last pretense at lunch by 2 o'clock, but there still was plenty to talk about, so she had him light his pipe and they moved over to another corner, where there was a little more breeze.

At 4 o'clock the arrival in force of a bridge-tea party drove them from the clubhouse and down to the river, where, in the shade of a thicket of willows, they found a rickety little flat-bottomed skiff. Means of propulsion were totally lacking, but it was dry inside and the thwarts were just a comfortable conversational distance apart. So they climbed in and went on talking.

Two or three times, earlier in the afternoon, he had given himself a terrible fright by saying something to her that he had already written in one of Waring's letters, but she had seemed oddly unaware of the slips, and by now he no longer kept any guard at all—said anything that occurred to him.

And then this happened.

She was saying something about not liking presents on account of an element of barter, when she interrupted herself to say:

"Oh, but, of course, you know all about that. I wrote it to you ever so long ago."

And Vickers, with a nod, said, "Yes, I remember."

And then there were two simultaneous gasps, and two red flags of blushes, that burned brighter ... in two frightened faces. And for the whole of a very long minute they looked at each other, and he pondered her "I wrote it to you," and she his "Yes, I remember."

Finally, "When," he asked, "did you know?' She laughed uneasily. "Why, from the very first, of course. The letter about buying a typewriter. Anyone could see that he had never written it."

There was another silence. At last he asked another question:

"You knew I was writing to you. But how could you know that you were writing to me—not to him? Because you were writing to me, weren't you?"

She hesitated a little. "Why, I put things in it, at first, to see. So that if he read them, he'd be sure to know."

This was puzzling. "Know what?" Vickers asked.

She hesitated again.

"That they weren't written to him," she said, at last.

He drew in a long breath and let it out with a rush. It expressed the contents of a very long paragraph, which, it seemed from her smile, she perfectly understood.

"You poor boy," she said. "You've worried dreadfully, haven't you?"

"You've known, all day, what it was I was worried about," he said, at last.

She blushed again, at that.

"So I know," he went on, "that you must have forgiven me the rottenest thing I've ever done in my life. And that must be because you've known all along—been able to feel, somehow—that the letters were real. That I meant every word of them—for myself."

There was nothing you could call vicarious about that.

She got up rather suddenly, a stepped out of the boat. "We must back," she said.

It was at this point that the yo secretary's conscience woke up with bang. In view of the contents of th letters, no declaration of love co have been more explicit than that statement of his. And he had made it to another man's wife. His employer's wife, too.

"Yes," he said, gravely, "we must go back."

They walked across the links to the clubhouse, with hardly a word all the way. But for a person whose world had fallen altogether about her ears she seemed singularly at ease with herself.

The one thing she said—out of nowhere—was: "You are a nice boy!"

But the factotum at the club had a telephone message for them that suddenly reversed their position. Waring had telephoned, it seemed, ascertained they were there, and left word they were to wait. He would come out to the club for a 7 o'clock dinner.

Vickers heard this message with a great deal of honest satisfaction. They were in for a ghastly time, of course, but they could come to some sort of an understanding. That would be better than this horrible confusion. He turned to her as the man walked away.

But she, with a look of downright panic in her face, was gazing out blankly across the low hills.

"Look at your watch," she commanded. "What time is it?"

"Six twenty-five," he told her.

"And what time does the next train go?" she asked.

It was natural enough that he should ask, "Where to?"

"Anywhere," she cried. "Oh, to Chicago, of course."

It went at 7.

"Can I make it?" she asked, and when he told her that she could if they caught the car down there at the foot of the hill where the conductor was at that moment turning the trolley pole, she was off like a flash.

Vickers did manage to stammer out that he thought it would be much better to wait for Waring, tell him everything and have it over. But she had her foot on the bottom step of the street car before he finished, and though she treated the suggestion as one that did him credit, its consideration did not detain her the smallest fraction of a minute—he didn't understand, that was all.

So he got into the car with her and rode back to town. There seemed to be nothing that he could say; and the misery of the silence, for him, was deepened by the perception that, on her part, it wasn't miserable at all. She seemed to have fallen back into that mood of contentment that had characterized her walk back across the links.

There was a bit of a scramble, just at last, but they got to the station in time for him to buy her ticket and get into the train with her. They heard the cry of "All aboard" just as they were going through the little passage around the smoke room, and here she turned and faced him.

"Don't try to find my seat," she said. "You mustn't be carried off, you know. Good-by."

She held out her hand to him. He held it while he said:

"Shall I ever see you again?"

She smiled. "Sometime," she said. "Only—— Good-by."

They were alone in that narrow little passage.

Whether it was that her hand tightened just a little on his, or that she moved just perceptibly nearer, or whether it was something he saw in her face—what it was that made the conscientious Vickers go crazy, just then, he couldn't afterward make out.

But he did go crazy—and kissed her!

Then he turned blindly away and leaped from the train. She could never forgive him now.

Only—— Wasn't that flick of white behind the glass door of the moving vestibule the flutter of a waving handkerchief?

It was a thoroughly dazed young man who caught the next car out to the golf club. She had forgiven him everything, even that kiss. The flutter of her handkerchief could mean nothing less. But there was Waring out at the club waiting for them. And Waring had got to be told.

Only Waring wasn't at the club, and what was more he hadn't been there. Perhaps he had read the letters, after all. Perhaps even now he was reading them down at the office. That was the next place to look, anyway. And it was there that Vickers found him.

"Oh, yes," Waring said. "Yes. Hello. Sorry I [illegible] the club. What you done with Audrey?"

"She—she went back to Chicago on the 7 o'clock express," said Vickers, out of a very dry throat.

Waring didn't seem surprised. "Hmph!" he grunted. "Good thing. Her mother's been having a fit about her coming here at all."

Vickers stared, walked rather unsteadily to a chair and sat down. "Her mother!" he echoed, vacuously.

Waring lounged back from his desk and lighted a cigar. Somewhere in the day he was entitled to five minutes' fun.

"You two kids have been getting pretty gay with the old folks, it seems to me," he said.

But Vickers didn't look gay in the least, and the boss had mercy on him.

"It seems," he went on, "that when your second letter came in, suggesting that she buy a typewriter, my wife spotted it as something too literary for me. She showed it to our daughter, Audrey, who's just out of college, with nothing to do, so Audrey took over the correspondence."

His eye rested on the big envelope, and he allowed himself time for a grin.

"I've been hearing from my wife now and then lately," he went on, "and she's kept me posted. She didn't think it necessary to tell Audrey about it, and I guess Audrey came down here with the idea that she could have a little fun with both of us and get away without getting found out. Did she?"

But the boss' grin showed that he didn't need an answer, so, instead of trying to make one, Vickers went over to his desk and began rummaging in one of the drawers.

"Pretty late to start work again, isn't it?" Waring suggested.

"I'm not going to work," said Vickers. "I'm looking for some paper that folds over."

"Better stick to the machine," said the boss. "She's used to that."

And the secretary took his advice.

Noses and Throats Freed of Catarrh!

Hundreds of noses and throats all over this country from Maine to California have been freed from Catarrh with its annoying features. These noses and throats were pretty bad—some of them. They had bothered their owners for long periods. The noses had been stopped up—crusts formed—mucus gathered and made discharges which had to be constantly blown out on handkerchiefs.

Some of this mucus dropped into the throats belonging to the above noses and made them raw and sore, with an annoying constant tickling sensation.

Little wonder that the eyes accompanying these noses and throats became watery and weak—the breaths foul and the sense of smell gradually disappearing.

But what a change has come over these same noses and throats through the Method of treatment originated by Catarrh Specialist Sproule, 303 Cornhill Building, Boston. They became once again the clear, sweet, useful portions of the body their Creator intended. The nasal discharges stopped, because there was no more inflammation and Catarrh germs to cause it. The eyes, the noses, the throats became free and clear. Those stupid dull feelings vanished—and the happy individuals met their friends, frankly grateful they needed no longer worry over what serious thing their Catarrh might develop into.

He didn't get an answer—anything that you could really call an answer, anyway. But on Friday morning the boss brought him a telegram and asked him if he had any idea what it meant. It said:

"If you'll both come home for over Sunday"——

That was all. But Vickers thought he understood it.

"I reckon you can make it, anyway," said Waring.

"No," said his secretary, firmly. "Both or none."

"Oh, all right," said the boss. "Make it so."

Unique Story of Mary Jane

sojourner in the Land of Counterpane. The heat had affected her heart, making life a burden. She was unable to sleep, so terrible was the pain. One night, after the middle hour, she lay struggling for breath. Gazing through her window toward the Northern constellations, she saw Andromeda and Perseus; then these star-groups were obscured by clouds. Upon impulse she wrote the letter. Days later the weather cooled, and she went to a Wisconsin lake and won, again, her struggle against Cetus.

That was all very simply told to me. Mary Jane is a disciple of simplicity. "I am not fashionable," she remarked over the telephone, in describing her hat. Yet she was quite charmingly clad, and therefore simply. She has cultivated the habit of eating simple foods. She likes simplicity in literary forms. We were discussing A. E. Housman's "Last Poems," Housman being a professor of Latin.

"And yet," she pointed out, "you will find hardly a Latin word in either of his books of poetry, that and 'A Shropshire Lad.'"

She likes Housman. But there is no "favorite poet" in this unprinted poet's galaxy. She loves poetry wherever she finds poetry. In Woodstock I had been told that some time ago Miss Daniels was invited to recite some poems before a literary club. She chose Poe's "The Bells." For some days she rehearsed this highly musical and magical piece, desirous of putting it over to her audience. She recited it beautifully, I was assured by my informant, who continued:

"But Mary got hardly a crackle of hand-clapping. Immediately after 'The Bells' somebody recited one of Eddie Guest's pieces, and there was a raucous outburst of applause. They could get Guest, but they couldn't get Poe."

This intimate anecdote I mentioned to Miss Daniels over the teacups. She smiled—in fact, she laughed, ripplingly. Then she said:

"Some of my literary friends fancied that I should do some lecturing on poetry. They proposed to the local alumnae of Northwestern University, at Evanston, that I be engaged to talk on contemporary poetry and illustrate my remarks by reciting from the works of the poets treated. The Entertainment Committee took the matter under advisement. 'But why not get a real poet?' was the question propounded. 'Let's do that.' And they got Mr. Guest."

She added that some time ago a vote of the co-eds at Evanston as to their favorite poet resulted in Mr. Guest being elected by a three-fourths ballot. This reminded me of one of my favorite stories, and I told it.

"In Philadelphia a couple of years ago I met my old friend, Tom Daly"——

"T. A. Daly?" she inquired.

"Thomas Augustine, the same. He used to do a good deal of lecture work, reciting his own poems as a part of his program. He was in demand by colleges and churches. He told me that on one occasion, when he appeared in a church, he was introduced by a gentleman who, thinking to compliment him, compared his work with that of Edgar A. Guest. Daly was overcome; his performance that night was a miserable failure. And I believe he stated that after all the agony was over, he went out behind the church and cussed."

"I trust he cussed loud and long," commented Mary Jane, softly.

She knows poetry. She likes the moderns and the ancients—when they are poets. Her mind, like her big poetry book, is a storehouse of lyrical treasures; and there is always room for great prose, too. I happened to mention Emerson's essay on "Compensation" as a reconciler with life.

"I have read it, many times," she said.

What upheld her, sustained her, kept her from going down and out, in those weary years of the Land of Counterpane? Her stored-up spiritual contacts, naught else. She said so, herself, with emphasis. Ever since she was a little child she had been copying poetry and prose into the volume which, in its present form, she calls her "poetry book." Her memory for beautiful things being acute, in the long weeks at a stretch when she was unable to read, when her room was kept darkened, when fierce old Cetus was ramping around just outside the door of her room in the hospital, she repeated to herself many passages from great writers, some of them being in sonorous Latin. Entire poems ran through her mind, songs of challenge cheered her, the wisdom of the ancients gave her spirit strength, and the girl refused to die.

Many times she felt she was very close to dissolution. She had no fear of death, despite her strong zest for life.

"I was quite calm," she said. "As to survival after death, what do we know? We do know that nothing ever perishes. Things change. I am a pagan."

"You are a beautiful pagan," I remarked, being glad to know that she knew exactly what I meant by that.

And somewhere along in that farrago of conversational confidences, this learned young person of beautiful simplicity and direct honesty of soul said something which to me was a complete poem of strange, rare quality. The words I am unable to quote here, but the meaning bulks big when one remembers that this girl has dwelt in the

YOU MAY WIN A BIG PRIZE

Yes, indeed, you may win a big prize quickly by taking part in this simple Word Finding Puzzle. To do so you need only make up a list of words from letters in our famous slogan, "COFFEE—THE NATIONAL DRINK." [illegible]

How to Win $1,000 Without Spending an Extra Penny

Everyone may take part in this Word Finding Puzzle and you may decide for yourself whether you wish to enroll your list in Class "A," or "B," or "C." This is an optional offer. But if you "Qualify" for Class "A" by ordering $5 worth of our famous Soluble Barrington-Hall Coffee, which we advertise through this prize-distributing plan, and your list takes first or second prize you will be awarded $1,000; if you're "Qualified" for Class "B" by ordering $3 worth of our coffee you will receive a prize of $500; if you have not "Qualified" you would receive a prize of only $20. You use coffee every day in your home, so you can "Qualify" for the bigger prizes with a regular household purchase.

PAUL CASE, Box 452, E-62, Brockton, Mass.

valley of the shadows—as most others view it—for the major part of eight years. She said that even if she had died she need not have bewailed her fate, because she had found life so full of wonder and beauty.

The mystery and the meaning of pain—that was one topic we discussed at our table tete-a-tete. Mary Jane Daniels pities those who have not suffered pain. She is sorry for those who have not experienced the discipline of hunger. She looks with compassion upon those to whom life appears to be a mere matter of seeking ease.

"If you could write books to catch the crowd, and get money to buy Rolls-Royces and other luxuries, would you do it?" I asked her.

"NO!" It was almost a shout, and Mary Jane's voice is gentle. "Not for me are astrakhan jackets and sheer hosiery as necessities."

Dr. Leo Hardt had told Miss Daniels, "You need a business manager."

We are just getting glimpses here. When Mary Jane was 5 years old her brother started to school. She wanted to go, and when he came home the first day she tore up his books. His father bought new schoolbooks. Mary Jane tore them up. Then they put the child out to a private tutor who taught her to read. Before she ever had a day's schooling she was both reader and writer.

She was only 5 when she wrote a novel. It was called "The Gourmand." For 20 years she has been an assiduous student of words. She finds magic in them. Somehow, at that tender age, she had acquired the word "gourmand" and its meaning. Names of the characters in her novel were purely imaginary. There were many chapters. She wishes she had preserved it, so that she might revisit the imaginary realm of her childhood. When she lay chained to the rock, time and again the characters in "The Gourmand" reappeared to her, and they helped.

Miss Daniels now is writing a real novel, grown-up size. She told me the title, but I am not telling you everything. From the little she was induced to say about this work it may be stated that it will reveal, rather sharply outlined, the personality of a peculiar individual, Mary Jane Daniels by name. Peculiar is to be interpreted here as a most complimentary term.

Incidentally, "Parnassus on Wheels" is one Morley book that appeals to Miss Daniels with persuasive force. There is a reason. When she was about 17 she and a girl friend, of an imaginative mold like herself, planned an overland journey into the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee. They were to rig up a trucklike wagon, hitch a horse to it, lay in a stock and sell cough drops to the natives of the Cumberland Mountains. Other things were to be in stock, but the cough drop was the piece de resistance. The girls had heard that everybody down there had colds.

"The Caravan of Hippocrates was to be the name of our outfit," she explained, "but we shortened it to The Hippo. But my friend had to go to the Southwest for her health, so we abandoned our enterprise. Then when Mr. Morley's hero fitted up his wagon and sold books through the countryside, putting Parnassus on wheels, of course the story appealed to me. My friend has recovered her health and we may yet make The Hippo expedition a reality."

So, you see, Andromeda still has eyes set on the far horizon and feet eager to stray on the paths of all the earth—even down South to sell cough drops to the Cumberlanders!

Mary Jane Daniels suggests the late Marie Bashkirtseff because she is so exceedingly otherwise. Marie rebelled against early death in loud complainings. She pitied herself because she was unable to attain world-wide fame before she got full-fledged for flight up the dizzy altitudes. Mary Jane's outlook and attitude are healthful, wholesome, not at all hysterical, outre or bizarre. She pities not herself, but only those who indulge in self-pity. And she cares more for artistic perfection in her work, or a measurably close approach thereto, than for the immediate plaudits of the multitude.

Mary Jane Daniels never may write great poetry—and then again she may. That is yet to be determined. But she has done and is doing something far finer: she has lived and is living great poetry. There is a poesy which finds its expression in human language. There is another poesy which finds its expression in human life. The one is an arranging of words in black ink on white paper. The other is a harmonizing of the hostile elements of the spirit. Poetry that is written cannot be so great as poetry that is lived. No person described as a poet ever succeeds in applying to paper more than a negligible modicum of the spiritual essence which provokes the poetic utterance. The real poem remains unwritten: it is the poem that has been lived by the poet and is a vital part of the poet and therefore cannot be isolated without doing violence to the spirit.

Mary Jane Daniels has lived a long series of such poems. Let us indulge the hope that she may continue to live them for many years, and that eventually—why not now?—she may consent to share them with others who love the beautiful things of the spirit.

Punching Himself to Keep Well at 75

effect on some people when told they have a weak or defective heart is often detrimental to their health. However, if they are sensible they will not give in. For 25 years now I have been warned to be careful because of my heart.

Going through one of the big colleges a few years ago a young doctor in the medical research department asked me if I would not like to see a photograph of my heart. By some X-ray method he was able to my heart on a screen. It was rather an uncanny performance. Meanwhile, he lectured me on what he believed was overstrain of this organ, owing to the active life I led. He said I should be most careful. About a year later I read of his death. Perhaps this is one of the numerous instances where a man knows a thing but fails to apply the knowledge to himself. I merely mention it to explain that I am not offering any advice that I have not applied to myself and found not only workable but most beneficial.

Being sick represents a waste of time. I get more fun out of life by keeping well and doing the things I enjoy than that class of people do who are given to traveling around seeking health, and coddled and humored by those who make it a business to cater to the rich sick in sanitariums and hospitals.

Let those who suffer as I have suffered retrieve themselves as I have retrieved and present to them my apologies for this rather personal dissertation.

"How I Became Popular Overnight!"

"They used to avoid me when I asked for a dance. Some said they were tired, others had previous engagements. Even the poorest dancers preferred to sit against the wall rather than dance with me. But I didn't 'wake up' until a partner left me standing alone in the middle of the floor.

"That night I went home feeling pretty lonesome and mighty blue. As a social success I was a first-class failure. At first I wouldn't believe that you could teach by mail because I always had the idea that one must go to a dancing class to learn. But I figured I could risk 25c—especially since you guaranteed to teach me.

How Dancing Made Me Popular

"Being a good dancer has made me popular and sought after. I am invited everywhere. No more dull evenings—no bitter disappointments! My whole life is brighter and happier. And I owe it all to Arthur Murray!

"I was astonished to see how quickly one learns all of the latest steps through your diagrams and simple instructions. I mastered your course in a few evenings, and, believe me, I surely did give the folks around here a big surprise when I got on the floor with the best dancer and went through the dance letter perfect. Now that I have the Murray foundation to my dancing I can lead and follow perfectly and can master any new dance after I have seen a few of the steps.

"My sister's family have all learned to dance from the course I bought from you and it would do your heart good to see how fine her little kiddies dance together after quickly learning from your new method of teaching dancing at home without music or partner."

Learn Any Dance in a Few Hours

Whether you want to learn the Fox-trot, One Step, Waltz or any of the new dances, you won't have any trouble in doing it through Arthur Murray's new method. More than 120,000 people have learned to dance by mail, and you can learn as easily.

Arthur Murray is the World's foremost authority on social dancing. Through his new improved method of teaching dancing by mail he will give you the same high-class instruction in your own home that he would give you if you took private lessons in his studio and paid his regular fee of $10 per lesson.

Teeth Like Pearls

Don't leave that film-coat on them

Wherever dainty people meet, you see prettier teeth today.

In old days most teeth were film-coated. Now millions use a new-type tooth paste which fights film.

Make this free test, if only for beauty's sake. Ten days will show you what it means to you.

Those cloudy coats

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it. Much of it clings and stays under old-way methods.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That's how teeth lose luster.

Film also causes most tooth troubles, and very few escape them. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The new-day method

Dental science has found two effective ways to daily fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

After many careful tests these methods were embodied in a new-type tooth paste. The name is Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over began to advise it. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it every day. And to millions of homes it is bringing a new dental situation.

Other discoveries

A way was also found to multiply the alkalinity of the saliva as well as its starch digestant. Those are Nature's agents for neutralizing acid and digesting starch deposits. Pepsodent with every use gives them manifold effect.

These discoveries are everywhere changing the old methods of teeth cleaning. They have brought a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

A delightful test

We offer here a delightful test which will be a revelation.

Send coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

What you see and feel will very soon convince you. You will learn the way to benefits you want. Cut out coupon now.

Is this health and happiness in your family?

HAPPY is the mother who sees her family buoyant with health. For health is essential to happiness. The healthy person is promised a life complete in usefulness and enjoyment.

The health of your children, husband and yourself is dependent upon internal cleanliness—proper elimination of food waste. From a clogged intestinal system to chronic disease is only a step, says a famous medical authority. There are intermediate periods with minor accompanying disorders. But only a short time carries a person from the first attack of intestinal clogging, with its resultant poisoning of the body, to serious, even vital diseases.

Guard Your Children

The mother must take systematic measures to prevent intestinal clogging in her children. Headache, fretfulness, loss of appetite, coated tongue, etc., all indicate that clogging is present and that poisons are saturating the body. Vital resistance is lowered and the child is prey to contagious diseases.

Value of Internal Cleanliness

Physical and mental well-being are the rewards of internal cleanliness. Parents and children alike can establish sound health by acquiring this priceless habit through the regular use of Nujol. Nujol is not a laxative. Nujol maintains internal cleanliness by lubrication. Nujol lubricates and softens the food waste and hastens its passage through and out of the body. It thus prevents the formation of dangerous poisons in the intestine. Physicians recommend Nujol not only as the best method for overcoming intestinal clogging, but as the most effective means of preventing it.

Make health and happiness easy. Have your family take Nujol as regularly as they wash their faces or brush their teeth. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water it is harmless. Nujol promotes the habit of internal cleanliness—the healthiest habit in the world. Keep a bottle of Nujol always in the bathroom cabinet. For sale by all druggists.

Nujol

For Internal Cleanliness

Faulty Elimination

A noted medical authority states that intestinal clogging is not so much a disease but a fruitful soil in which diseases grow. Faulty elimination is not only the cause of lesser ills, headaches, bilious attacks, sleeplessness, etc., that impair bodily and mental efficiency, but it is also the source of most of those serious organic diseases which break down the body and shorten life.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome faulty elimination, says an intestinal specialist, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition, and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation and exhaustive tests, has found in lubrication the best means of overcoming faulty elimination. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste. Thus it enables Nature to secure regular, thorough elimination. Nujol is not a medicine and cannot cause distress. Nujol hastens the rate of flow of the intestinal stream, preventing intestinal sluggishness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world for the relief of faulty elimination in people of all ages.

Complexion Troubles. Science now knows that poisons from intestinal sluggishness are the chief cause of personal unattractiveness. Carried by the blood they reach every body cell, the millions of cells that compose the skin, the roots of the hair and the eyes. No wonder that through faulty elimination the skin becomes sallow, muddy, roughened, blotched or disfigured with pimples or other blemishes. It is not strange that the hair loses its sheen and the eyes become dull.

Nujol should be taken regularly for the complexion. Nujol overcomes and prevents intestinal sluggishness. It thus keeps the body free from poisons which are the principal cause of complexion troubles.

Nujol is woman's most effective aid to a clear, healthy, lovely skin.

Elderly People. In youth and perfect health the intestine supplies a natural lubricating liquid in sufficient quantity to soften the food waste and hasten its movement out of the body. In advanced years this lubricant decreases in quantity. Hence the need for something to give assistance. The action of Nujol so closely resembles that of Nature's lubricant that it is especially beneficial to those in advanced years. Nujol softens the waste, thus enabling the intestinal muscles to move it along and out of the body.

VI - WE'VE GOT TO SAVE A LITTLE MONEY THIS YEAR - LAY ASIDE SOMETHING EACH WEEK
I THINK YOU'RE PERFECTLY RIGHT
THE FIRST THING WE KNOW WE'LL BE OLD AND NOTHING TO FALL BACK ON I'LL BE JUST TOO GLAD TO ECONOMIZE - AND HAVE A NEST EGG
NOW I'LL JUST TAKE ENOUGH OUT OF THE ROLL EACH WEEK TO LAST THROUGH THE WEEK AND THAT'S ALL THE REST GOES IN THE BANK
OH WON'T IT SEEM WON-DERFUL TO HAVE A BANK ACCOUNT
INSTEAD OF GOING TO A THEATER TONIGHT WE CAN USE THESE PASSES I'VE GOT TO THE AUTOMOBILE SHOW - - I'D LIKE TO SEE THE SHOW ANYWAY
YES AND WE CAN GO TO SOME CHEAP ITALIAN TABLE D'HOTE FOR DINNER
OH-H- JOE! ISN'T THAT A DARLING CAR!?
'T'SA PEACH ISN'T IT?
WHAT'S THE PRICE OF THIS MODEL -
TWENTY SIX NINETY DELIVERED
HOW SOON COULD WE GET DELIVERY
OH IT JUST FITS YOU
HEH - HEH - HEH - WELL - -
COULDN'T I GET IMMEDIATE DELIVERY?
IF YOU PUT IN YOUR ORDER NOW YOU MIGHT GET A MAY DELIVERY
VI - I THINK WE OWE IT TO OURSELVES TO BUY THAT CAR - AS A MATTER OF FACT I CAN SEE WHERE IT WOULD BE AN ECONOMY -
YESSIR - I THINK THE SAME AS YOU DEAR
AND HERE'S 'NOTHER THING - WE OUGHT TO ENJOY LIFE WHILE WE'RE YOUNG - - WE'RE YOUNG ONLY ONCE AND THESE ARE OUR BEST YEARS
THAT'S JUST THE WAY I FIGURE IT
INSTEAD OF GOING TO THEATERS AND SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY, WE'D BE MOTORING AND SAVING MONEY
WHY-Y-Y CERT'NLY
OH DEAR - I DO HOPE WE'RE DOING THE RIGHT THING
YES, YES, WELL WE'VE DECIDED TO GIVE YOU OUR ORDER FOR THE CAR - - CAN'T YOU HURRY THE ORDER ALONG?

I CAN'T SWIM
NEITHER CAN I
THE IKMIK CAN TAKE ME OUT AND I'LL COME BACK WITH A ROW-BOAT
HULP!
I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO - I'LL BUILD A BOAT
YOU MUST HURRY, BOOB, DEAR - DAD AND I WILL GO AND GET OUR THINGS
5
WHEN I GET BACK TO CIVILIZATION I'LL STAND IN THE MIDDLE OF THE STREET AND LET A TAXICAB KNOCK ME DOWN - I'M LONESOME FOR A GOOD OLD-FASHIONED ACCIDENT
THIS BOAT IS PERFECT - I'LL GO IN THE SHIP-BUILDING BUSINESS AFTER PEARL AND I ARE MARRIED
UNCLE PHONEY AND AUNT COO COO WILL BE GLAD TO SEE ME WHEN I GET BACK TO DULUTH
HURRY UP - LET'S ROW OUT TO THE SHIP - I HAVEN'T HAD A PLATE OF SOUP IN TWO MONTHS
PEARL, DARLING, DON'T LOOK AT ANY OF THOSE SWELL-DRESSED GUYS WHEN WE GET BACK TO AMERICA
SOME-THING'S WRONG!
10
GEE, I FORGOT TO NAIL ON THE BOTTOM!
AND WHERE ARE THE OARS?
11
I DON'T THINK I SAW A SHIP, ANYWAY, BOOB
GEE, I WISH I HAD A GOOD PLATE OF OLD-FASHIONED NOODLE SOUP

YOU WOMEN CAN GET TOGETHER DURING THE DAY — THAT'S ALL RIGHT — BUT WHEN WE MEN WANT TO CHEW THE RAG WITH OUR FRIENDS YOU SQUASH US — BUT JUST FOR SPITE I'M GOING TO ASK PROF. BULLER, JUST RETURNED FROM AN EXPLORING TRIP, UP HERE FOR A CHAT THIS EVENING!
THERE, DON'T CRY - I DIDN'T SAY YOU COULDN'T HAVE HIM COME!
GLAD TO SEE YOU, PROFESSOR - HOW WAS THE TRIP?
WONDERFUL! I'LL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT IT.
YOU SEE I MADE MY HEADQUARTERS ON THE ISLAND OF HOKO - IDEAL PLACE - THE MEN JUST SIT AROUND UNDER THE PALMS AND SMOKE OR HUNT AND FISH!
THE WOMEN DO ALL THE WORK — THE MEN DON'T DO A TAP!
THE MEN PUT IN THE BEST PART OF THE NIGHTS GAMBLING — IT'S THE LEADING PASTIME — WOMEN OF COURSE ARE BARRED!
CERTAINLY NOT, MRS. MEEK.
I HOPE YOU MEN WON'T MIND IF I RETIRE — I WAS SHOPPING TO-DAY AND I'M FAGGED OUT.
IN THAT COUNTRY THE WOMAN HAS NO RIGHTS - SHE ACTS AS THE SERVANT OF HER LORD AND MASTER
THE WOMEN ARE NOT PERMITTED TO MINGLE IN THE CONVERSATION WHEN THE MEN ARE HAVING A POW-WOW, AND ON THE ISLAND OF HOKO THE WOMAN BRINGS THE DOWRY — BUT SAY, MEEK, ITS GETTING LATE — I MUST BE GOING!
I CERTAINLY ENJOYED LISTENING TO YOU TO-NIGHT, PROFESSOR — CALL AGAIN, WON'T YOU?
SURE, I'LL RUN IN AGAIN, MEEK.

WINNING PLAN IN $100,000 PEACE AWARD GOES TO POPULAR VOTE

Name of Winner of $100,000 Not to Be Announced Until Ballot Is Taken — Jury Headed by Elihu Root Unanimous in Selection of Them From 22,165.

PLAN IS PIVOTED ON WORLD COURT

Membership in the League of Nations as at Present Constituted Not Required, but Drift Is That Way.

The winning plan in the American Peace award created by Edward W. Bok is made public today and is printed herewith by the Post-Dispatch. The name of the author, whose theme immediately earns a money prize of $50,000 and probably another $50,000 later on, is not made public, and will not be until a "national referendum" has been held on the plan.

The Jury of Awards of which Elihu Root is chairman, announces that but one member of the jury knows who wrote the plan. That member is said to be Miss Esther Everett Lape. The jury received 22,165 plans. It was unanimous in its vote that No. 1469 was the best one. The plan is the work of one person. Therefore the four additional awards of $5000 each for parts of plans that might be woven into the best plan will not be awarded.

In the national referendum, by which the Jury of Awards hopes to obtain an expression from the American people of their opinion of the plan, the jury will have the assistance of virtually all the large dailies in the United States. Besides these, some 500 smaller dailies and 7000 weekly papers will publish the plan and print a ballot giving the reader facilities for voting. Many magazines of large circulation will do the same, and a large number of copies will be circulated independently.

This independent circulation is to be carried on through some 70 national organizations, such as the American Legion, the Federation of Women's Clubs, and others. Besides these, 100,000 clergymen and 400,000 students have been asked to aid.

The reader is asked to vote Yes or No on "Do you favor the winning plan in substance. If he desires to go beyond this Yes or No expression, he is asked to send his extended views to the committee. A ballot and the jury's summary of the text of the plan will be found on Page 2 of today's Post-Dispatch.

As originally arranged the payment of the award was to have been made in two installments of $50,000 each, the first when the jury made its selection, and the second "when the plan in substance and intent is approved by the United States Senate; or, if and when the jury of award decides that an adequate degree of popular support has been demonstrated for it." Because of inevitable delay in if not the impossibility of securing approval of it by the Senate, the decision to make payment in full if popular test approves without waiting on the Senate was reached.

The contest closed on Nov. 15. A large staff undertook the work of weeding out the possible wheat from the definite chaff. Some 200 manuscript, it is understood, passed this preliminary test and were turned over to the Root committee which reached its decision in December, the winning plan being presented to Mr. Bok on the day before Christmas.

Adherence to International Court.

The plan provides primarily for the adherence of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, and "that without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States Government should extend its present co-operation with the league and propose participation in the work of its assembly and council" under certain conditions and reservations which are specified under the headings: "Safeguarding of Monroe Doctrine," "No Military or Economic Force," "No Obligations Under Versailles Treaty," "League Open to All Nations," and "Development of International Law."

Under "No Military or Economic
